FINDS SHANGHAI NO MAN'S LAND LIFELESS RUIN

Tribune Man Visits Jap Victory Area.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 21.—[Monday.]—While China and Japan continued to negotiate on armistice terms, this correspondent yesterday made an 80 mile automobile trip through the Japanese occupied zone. The towns of Liuho, Tazang, Kating, Luti and a number of smaller towns and villages were visited.

More than 200 wrecked motor buses and trucks were counted, and many of them were completely burned. All were lying along a thirty mile road connecting Shanghai and Liuho. The vehicles were formerly the property of the Chinese bus transportation companies.

Japanese Troops on Guard.

Practically every town and village throughout the entire Japanese zone is now garrisoned by Japanese soldiers, and with the exception of an occasional old man or woman peasant working in the fields, the entire Chinese population has evacuated.

In Liuho, with a normal population of 10,000 or 15,000, only two decrepit old Chinese men and one woman were seen, besides one Chinese civilian who was bound hand and foot and was being given the third degree by a Japanese military officer. The Chinese was being questioned concerning the killing of a sentry who was shot on the outskirts of the town yesterday morning. A large number of Japanese soldiers were standing about the man.

Other towns visited contained large sections of building, leveled as a result of air raids and fires. In Kating I found a mass of wreckage of what at one time was a group of hand spinning factories devoted to the weaving of so-called Turkish towels.

Long lines of Japanese soldiers and cavalry were passed along the roads, some moving supplies to the front, others withdrawing toward Shanghai or being transferred from one point to another.

A mile long line of hand carts was going toward the front. They were loaded with baled hay for cavalry use. All the carts were propelled by Japanese soldiers stripped to the waist and tugging at their heavy burden. The Japanese are no longer able to secure Chinese coolies, for the latter have fled.

Relief Badly Needed.

Unless the Japanese are compelled through international action to indemnify China for losses resulting from the Japanese invasion of the Shanghai area, it will be necessary for the various charity bodies of the world to come to the rescue. Otherwise, a major catastrophe is inevitable.

This is the consensus of opinion of a number of leading citizens of various nations, including officials and civilians who have made a cursory inspection of the damaged areas to try to estimate the losses with the aid of Chinese officials.

Estimate of Losses.

Dr. Wu Ta-chun, head of the Chinese department of statistics at Nanking, yesterday issued an estimate of losses resulting from the Shanghai war. He said that property damage amounts to 1,560,000,000 Chinese dollars, or about $400,000,000.

He claimed that 80 per cent of the Chinese property within the Japanese military zone, valued at $200,000,000, was destroyed; destroyed buildings were valued at $60,000,000; factories at $18,000,000. Workers thrown out of employment were estimated at 250,000 with a monthly wage loss about $1,000,000.

Civilians killed totaled 8,000; wounded, 82,000; missing, 10,000; with more than 180,000 families directly affected.

Educational institutions closed include ten universities and technical colleges and thirty high schools. More than 3,000 teachers are out of employment. The number of schools and university buildings either destroyed or occupied by Japanese military forces includes twelve colleges, seventeen high schools and forty-nine primary schools. The value of the educational property destroyed was put at $4,000,000. About 190 primary schools are closed, affecting 40,000 pupils.

Many Factories in Ruins.

Ruined factories within the Japanese zone constitute twenty-five per cent of the total number of factories in the entire Shanghai area. Eighty per cent of all cotton mill workers are out of work.

Railway losses were estimated at $4,500,000, while the damage to roads

DE VALERA ARMY PUTS FEAR IN NORTH IRELAND

Troops on Border Cause of Alarm.

De Valera's Answer

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 20.—The London press and news agencies today quoted the telegram which President Eamon de Valera of the Irish Free State sent to THE TRIBUNE yesterday from Dublin. De Valera's message was in the nature of a reply to a warning by Great Britain directed against his intention to abolish the oath to the British crown and retain the land annuities which, under the William T. Cosgrave administration, were paid to England.

The British government's warning was uttered in a speech by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, at Birmingham Friday in which he said that any such suggestion "would undoubtedly revive the bitterness and differences which it was hoped had been removed forever."

De Valera in his message to THE TRIBUNE said: "At this stage I shall only say that if the bitterness and differences are revived the fault will not lie with the Irish people." The press here used this telegram as a basis for editorials and news items.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, March 20.—(AP)—Authorities of Northern Ireland today watched with anxiety and alarm an increasingly serious situation in the Irish Free State, where President Eamon de Valera is intent upon further severance of the ties to England.

VISCOUNT CRAIGAVON. [Acme Photo.]

Drilling has been resumed illegally by De Valera's Irish Republican army in various parts of the Free State, officials here said. There was a feeling that the attacks from ambush on a party of men cycling to an Hibernian hall in County Londonderry on St. Patrick's night might be made a pretext for active aggression in the northern territory.

A machine gun has been used in Irish Republican army maneuvers in at least one instance close to the border.

Rifles Are Transported.

The automobile of Coroner J. H. Murphy was stolen at Dundalk last week and was understood to have been used with two other cars for the transportation of rifles into Northern Ireland from the arms dump at Louth. The stolen car was recovered at Newry, in County Down.

Prime Minister Viscount Craigavon had to pass southward through Portadown yesterday on his way to propose the health of the bride at a wedding in Belfast. Police arranged for a football match of the Irish league at Portadown to be prolonged five minutes to allow the prime minister to pass through the town without interruption.

The northern government dealt promptly with the ambushing of the Hibernian party, which was fired on near the town of Magherafelt, by offering a reward of $2,500 for information leading to the identification and arrest of the assailants. Viscount Craigavon visited in a hospital the two men wounded in the attack to express his personal sympathy.

No Third Party Seen.

The suggestion that if President de Valera's government abolishes the oath to the king of England and retains land annuities which England regards as payable to her the matter would be referred to the league of nations at Geneva was viewed here with general skepticism.

There was a feeling that the British government never would allow interference by a third party in such matters. Abolition of the oath and retention of the annuities are two of the intentions of the Free State's new president, who campaigned before the election of the new Dail Eireann on that issue.

New Suspect Questioned at Lindy's Home

BULLETIN.

East Stroudsburg, Pa., March 20.—(AP)—A message referring to the kidnaping of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. and found bound to the leg of a dead carrier pigeon was carried by its finder, Leroy Bond, to the Hopewell, N. J., home of the flyer yesterday. Bond refused to divulge the contents of the message, but said authorities at Hopewell described it as the most important clew in the case in more than a week.

New York, March 20.—[Special.]—The center of interest in the search for 20 months old Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. and his kidnapers returned tonight to the Sourland hills. All suspects in the case are being questioned in the Lindbergh home and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh himself is doing a part of the questioning.

There were two men interrogated late today. One was Henry [Red] Johnson, suitor of Betty Gow, the Lindbergh nursemaid, and the other an unidentified suspect about 32 years old who was brought to the home by New Jersey troopers. The unidentified man appeared to have been badly beaten.

Late tonight, however, the police announced that Johnson had been sent back to Jersey City without having contributed anything new of importance to the investigation.

Eyes Are Discolored.

An automobile escorted by two policemen on motorcycles sped through Broad street, Hopewell, a few minutes before 1 p. m. and turned into the dirt road leading to the Lindbergh estate. Those who caught a glimpse of the automobile said a trooper was guarding a prisoner in the back seat. The prisoner's eyes were discolored, his face was puffy and he appeared to be suffering from a broken nose.

No information was obtained as to his identity. The troopers said they knew nothing about "any new suspect" and calls to the house were referred to Trenton.

Meanwhile, from Hopewell there were reports that Col. Henry Breckenridge, Col. Lindbergh's personal attorney, and Col. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police, left the estate for an unannounced destination during the morning, but returned soon after the mysterious prisoner had been taken to the house.

Third Week Nears End.

Before this afternoon's flurry of excitement, the third week since the baby was stolen from his crib appeared to be dragging toward a close without a single definite clew to the abductors. The police, disheartened, admitted in a statement issued at Trenton that "there were no developments over the week-end of interest in the Lindbergh investigation."

In the case of Henry Johnson, the authorities insist he is not suspected of the kidnaping, but merely was at the Lindbergh home for a check on his knowledge of the house and grounds. They say it is possible that Johnson might have unwittingly disclosed information to the abductors.

LIGHTNING, SNOW, HAIL, SLEET COME ON CITY AT ONCE

A freak thunder and lightning storm visited the city early this morning, startling Chicagoans who had retired earlier with the ground covered with snow. They were further startled when they looked out of their windows to see snow still falling.

The thunderstorm struck heaviest on the far south side, and police received dozens of telephone calls inquiring about explosions. They advised, "It is just the weather." The freak conditions spread to the north and west sections also. On the north side the snow turned to sleet and hail, accompanied by lightning and thunder.

In other ways the weather yesterday—the first day of spring—was unusual. Spring came to Chicago officially at 1:54 p. m., the moment at which the vernal equinox occurred. But the temperature was downright chilly, with 32 degrees as the maximum, and a mean temperature of 29 degrees, which was 7 degrees below normal.

No prospect of improvement is held out for today by the official forecast, which promised snow or rain and temperature about the same.

Family Is Held Captive; Loop Store Robbed

Three bandits made a $10,000 haul last night in a cleverly plotted robbery which was completed in two acts, the first in a north side home and the second in a loop store. A woman accomplice participated in the second act.

About 9 o'clock the three robbers halted Herman D. Saperston, his wife, Ruth, and a friend, Mrs. Elizabeth Rosenthal, in front of the Saperston residence at 5050 Glenwood avenue. Saperston is manager of the Cutler shoe store in the Palmer house at 111 South State street and has been employed by the company for twenty-two years. Each of the bandits assigned himself to one victim each.

"Just take us up to your apartment," urged the bandit leader. "We've a proposition."

Demand Safe Combination.

In a few minutes the three victims and robber trio, all armed with pistols, entered the apartment. Two of the men held the women prisoners in the living room. The third led Saperston into the kitchen. There he demanded the combination to the Cutler store safe and the keys to the store. Saperston denied he knew the combination.

"We know better," warned the gunman. "We've watched you for thirty days and have seen you open the safe. Give us the information if you want to live."

Bandit Goes to Store.

Under repeated threats Saperston capitulated. He divulged the safe combination and handed over the store keys. He was then taken into the living room and turned over to the other robbers. The one who had wrested the information from Saperston left and drove to the Cutler store. At 9:45 o'clock he was seen emerging from the store with a woman, both carrying bundles. This incident was revealed later by Henry Smith, a Pinkerton watchman.

At 11 o'clock the bandit returned to the Saperston home and announced he had obtained the money. The three robbers then cut the telephone wires and cautioned Saperston against notifying police before half an hour had elapsed. Saperston waited a few minutes and then notified police from a neighbor's phone. He met police at the store and they found the safe open, with $10,000 which it had contained missing.

Lost Girl Tells Pop-Eyed Cops Amazing Tale

If you'd ask most little lost 7 year old girls to tell you a story you'd probably get one about a big bear and a little bear or about Red Riding Hood or the little red hen or about old Mr. Fox.

But Gertrude Luchsinger was a little lost blue eyed 7 year old who was different. Her story goes over two continents and takes in a war in England about six years ago, all the animals in Lincoln park, one mamma who gives her babies away and another one who adopts babies regularly, some kind uncles in Philadelphia and Woodstock and a couple of corporations and a railroad.

After hearing the story all through, the Central police were convinced that [1] Gertrude was a person fated to great adventure, or [2] Gertrude was a budding novelist of great promise.

Cold, Hungry and Lost.

She was found wandering in Jackson boulevard near Wells street yesterday. To a passerby she complained that she was cold and hungry. He fed her in a restaurant and called the police. Patrolmen William Fuller and Arthur Smith took her to the Central station and she gave them the history of her short but varied life.

"I was born," she said, "in New York. Mamma's name was Jean Luchsinger. Daddy—all I know about him is that he got killed in the war in England six years ago.

"Four years ago mamma gave me to another lady. I don't know that lady's name, but I began calling her mamma. So I had two mammas. The first one came to see me now and then, but she lives in Philadelphia with Uncle Jack Phillips.

"O, yes, I have a sister, too. Her name's Alice May, and she lives with Uncle Bill and Aunt Jennie at Woodstock, Ill."

Adds Baby and Pup to Cast.

With just a little prompting from an admiring group of policemen, Gertrude continued her yarn.

"My second mamma worked for the Western Electric in New York. But seven months ago she adopted a little baby. Three weeks ago we came to Chicago on the train. We all lived in a house close to the park with all the animals in it. Let's see; there was mamma and the baby and me and the pup and a colored maid. Her name was Ella.

"Three days ago mamma said she was going back to New York. So we all got into a taxi—all but Ella—and went to a station. Mamma put me and the little dog and the little baby on the floor and bought the tickets. Then she picked up the baby and the dog and got on the train and left me."

Since that, according to Gertrude, she had shifted for herself. The first two nights, she said, pleasant women gave her sleeping quarters in "nice clean beds."

Sleeps Against a Shack.

"Last night," she added casually, "I leaned up against a shack all night."

The police sent Gertrude to the Juvenile detention home and asked the authorities in New York and Philadelphia to seek her relatives. While this search was in progress a call was received at the Des Plaines street police station. A woman informed the desk sergeant that her 7 year old daughter Gertrude Luchsinger had been missing from her home at 329 South Ashland avenue since early in the afternoon. And so the police knew that Gertrude is a novelist.

GIRL AND DOG LOST

For a few hours yesterday 4 year old Geraldine Burns was a lost girl. She was found wandering at Halsted and Monroe streets by E. E. Jester, 1506 Rosemont avenue. Her companion was a big, white dog. Jester took the girl and her dog to the Des Plaines station, where she remained until her mother, Mrs. Mae Burns of 1853 Burling street, claimed her.

ENTIRE REVENUE PROGRAM BACK IN A TURMOIL

Leaders Strive to Regain Control.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—[Special.]—Bowing to the will of the insurgent bipartisan majority of the house that has forced the rewriting of the billion dollar tax increase bill, the ways and means committee will meet tomorrow morning to devise substitutes for sales taxes prescribed by the coalition.

REPRESENTATIVE CHARLES R. CRISP. [Harris & Ewing.]

Negotiations today between the Democratic leaders and the insurgents indicated a possibility of compromise on the retention of the sales tax provision in the bill, but with the list of exemptions from the impost greatly extended. If such a compromise should be effected the bill would provide not for a general but for a selective sales tax.

At a conference this afternoon of insurgent leaders presided over by Representative F. H. La Guardia [radical Rep., N. Y.], the brains of the house rebellion, the minimum terms of peace with the repudiated Democratic and Republican leadership were decided upon. These terms are the exemption from the sales tax of all foods, all clothing, farm implements, hand tools, medical and hospital supplies, surgical instruments, and numerous other articles.

May Revert to Mills Plan.

Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.], who is chairman of the sales tax subcommittee, said tonight that the ways and means committee will consider the exemptions proposed by the insurgents and decide what other taxes must be resorted to for the revenue lost through the additional exemptions.

Representative Charles R. Crisp [Dem., Ga.], acting chairman of the ways and means committee, said that with the exemptions extended to the degree demanded by the insurgents it will be necessary to revert to a part, if not all, of the tax program proposed by Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills but rejected by the committee in the framing of the bill.

This program included excise taxes on gasoline, consumption of gas and electricity, increase of first class postage from 2 to 3 cents, a 5 per cent tax on automobiles, a 2 cent tax on bank checks, increase of tobacco taxes, and a tax on real estate transfers.

Compromise Possible.

Nearly fifty classes of articles are already exempted from the sales tax either in the bill or in amendments the committee agreed to accept last week. These articles are chiefly staple foods, feeds, books, periodicals, and religious service equipment. If the additional exemptions demanded by the insurgents are allowed the sales tax would still apply to furniture, building materials, automobiles, and several thousand other articles.

The fact that the insurgents had indicated a willingness to compromise on a basis of additional exemptions was interpreted widely as an admission by the coalition of the futility of attempting to balance the budget without a substantial amount of revenue from sales taxes. La Guardia, however, denied any weakening on the part of the coalition and still talked of forcing the withdrawal of the entire sales tax provision.

"We have the votes to knock out the sales tax," he said, "and we are going to do it. We have raised income taxes on the rich who can afford to pay and we are going to raise inheritance taxes still further and then we are going to wipe out sales taxes on the poor who cannot afford to pay."

Estimates Vary Greatly.

He asserted that more than 200 millions of dollars would be obtainable from the increased income taxes alone. Mr. Crisp estimated that the increased revenue from this source would be less than 80 millions.

"I am just as much in favor of collecting from wealth all that can be collected as any member of the house," he said, "but under the conditions of business today you cannot raise the money from income, corporation, and inheritance taxes to balance the budget. Therefore the question was presented to the committee as to how this money was going to be raised. We doubled the income tax;

we doubled the estate tax, and I grant you that if rich men die fast in the future after the 18 months in which they are allowed to pay, the rates in this bill on inheritances will produce a great deal of money, but they will not produce it for 1933.

"It is argued by the opponents of a manufacturers' excise tax that it imposes a burden upon the poor man and violates the principle of taxation in accordance with the ability to pay. There are two answers to this argument: First, a tax on a manufacturer at a 2¼ per cent rate will be so small on a poor man, even assuming [which is not the case in many instances] that the entire tax is passed on to the consumer by the manufacturer, as to be negligible.

"Assume the case of a family which spends $2,000 a year. Probably one-half of this amount would be spent on foodstuff exempt under the proposed tax. The remaining one-half would probably be spent for articles on which the manufacturers had paid a tax. However, this does not mean that the individual would pay 2¼ per cent, or $22.50 tax on his $1,000 of purchases, for the tax is levied on the manufacturers' sale price and not on the jobbers' or retailers' price. The manufacturers' sale price on many of the common commodities is not over 70 per cent of the retail sale price, thus the tax burden on the individual would only be $15.75 for the year even if the tax were all passed on. If the tax were one-half absorbed by the manufacturer the consumer would only pay $7.88. Surely this is no intolerable burden for him to bear in support of his country in these times of great stress."

Salary Reduction Proposal.

While the ways and means committee is revamping the tax bill tomorrow the special economy committee of the house will bring in proposals for the reduction of salaries of government officials and employés which it is estimated would reduce expenditures beginning with next year to the extent of from 50 to 100 millions of dollars. The plan most favored is a graduated scale of reductions ranging from one per cent on the lowest to 20 per cent on the highest salaries.

Up to date congress so far from putting into effect any actual curtailment of expenditures is proceeding in the direction of voting more than 300 millions for 1933 in excess of the aggregate expenditures of 1932.

For the department of agriculture, including highway construction, the President asked for 186 millions. The house appropriations committee pared off 11 millions chiefly by postponing a 9 million dollar appropriation for roads. The house pared off $35,000 more and then the senate added one million.

Rumblings Check Senate.

The President recommended nearly 57 millions for the interior department. The house reduced the amount to $50,446,432. The senate appropriations committee increased it to $54,870,754 and the senate itself had raised the total to more than the 57 millions asked by the President when the elder statesmen became alarmed at what was going on. With election day approaching they had begun to hear ominous rumblings back home. They hastily beat a retreat, adopting the motion of Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.] sending the bill back to the committee with instructions to reduce the total to 45 millions.

For the state, justice, commerce and labor departments the President asked nearly 130 millions. The house reduced it six millions and the senate committee put back a million. Mr. Hoover requested a trifle over 1 billion dollars for the treasury and postoffice departments. The house committee pared off 23 millions but the total was more than 1 billion 400 millions by the time the house had passed the bill. The estimates for the expenses of the White House, the veterans' administration and the numerous boards and commissions aggregated a little more than one billion from which the house committee cut 55 millions and 50 millions of that was only a hoped for falling off of the demand for loans on veterans' adjusted service certificates next year.

At the present stage of appropriation legislation, therefore, congress is proposing to expend 2 billions 696 millions on departments, boards, and commissions for which the President asked 2 billions 373 millions.

OHIO MINE BOSS HURT IN STRIKE OF COAL DIGGERS

Governor Threatens to Call Troops.

Athens, O., March 20.—[Special.]—An air of tensity tonight pervaded the Hocking Valley coal field, where approximately 7,000 miners are on strike. Martial law has been threatened if there are further disorders.

Early today, after a night of disorders, five men, all of them mine officials, were injured, one seriously. The men were stoned by pickets. One bullet was fired, striking an automobile.

The rioting started following the statement of mine officials that they intended opening the Lick Run mine of the New York Coal company; and the Millfield No. 6 of the Sunday Creek Coal company.

Late last night when rumors of the reopening of the mines first reached the striking miners, more than 150 gathered near the latter mine shaft and dynamited a trestle on a spur track leading into the mine.

Struck in Back of Head.

Andrew Chute, assistant foreman of the No. 6 mine was hit in the stoned a group of mine officials attempting to prevent further destruction.

Chute was riding in an automobile with Walter Duncan, pay roll clerk. Duncan was uninjured.

Telephone wires leading into the whole area have been cut by the miners who have been striking since Feb. 1 in protest to a general cut in wages.

Late today Gov. White, after a conference with Adjt. Gen. Frank D. Henderson, issued an ultimatum to the striking miners in the Hocking Valley district that unless violence ceased at once, martial law would be declared in the area immediately and members of the Ohio National Guard sent to the scene.

Dynamite in Pennsylvania.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 20.—(AP)—Dynamiting broke out anew early today in the week old strike of insurgent miners of the upper and lower Pennsylvania anthracite region. A stick of dynamite, exploding on their porch, blew the families of Mr. and Mrs. James De Rosa and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Clara out of their beds in Pittston. None was hurt.

The charge exploded downward, demolishing the porch and rousing the entire neighborhood.

Although De Rosa, owner of the place, has not worked in the mines for five years and Clara has been idle for months, police lay the attack to strikers. They believe the house was attacked either through mistaken identity or as a gesture of warning to others in the region.

MAY HAVE CLEW TO BABY STOLEN FIVE YEARS AGO

New York, March 20.—(AP)—New hope for the parents of William J. [Billy] Gaffney, kidnaped five years ago from his home in Brooklyn, flared today with the story of Mrs. R. S. Hawley of Emoryville, Cal., reported to the missing persons bureau here.

Mrs. Hawley wrote that early in 1927 a woman believed to be from Brooklyn settled on a farm near there with a baby of about the same description as that of the Gaffney baby.

California authorities have been asked to make a thorough investigation.

The Gaffney case was given prominence here recently when the baby's mother publicly expressed sympathy for Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

HAMILTON FISH, IN CHICAGO, FIGHTS TAX TO 'SOAK THE RICH'

Representative Hamilton Fish of New York, stopping in Chicago yesterday en route to Rockford, where he will address the American Legion today, declared that high taxes on large incomes would drive billions of dollars into tax exempt securities and delay the return of prosperity.

"I am not in favor of the 'soak the rich' attitude of the house of representatives," he said. "With a 65 per cent maximum on the largest fortunes, and with high state and local taxes, it would appear that the richest men in the United States will have to pay at least 75 per cent of their income to government.

"However, I deplore the use of the word communism by the Democratic leader, Mr. Rainey, in describing the action of house members who voted for the increased rates on big incomes. I think the increases bad business practice, but they will do a great deal to knock the prop out of the communist, Socialist and pink intellectual charge that the ultra-rich control the government of the United States."

'KIDNAPING' OF CO-ED TURNS OUT TO BE A PRANK

Columbia, Mo., March 20.—(AP)—The "kidnaping" of Miss Mary Butterfield of Kansas City, who was to have been crowned St. Pat's queen at the University of Missouri last night, turned out to be a prize college prank, yet the mystery surrounding the "abduction" was by no means solved today.

Miss Butterfield was released by her "abductors" late last night in time to be introduced at the annual ball given by the students in the college of engineering, although too late for the coronation ceremony.

Today she said she was unable to name the five men, presumably students, who thrust her into an automobile and took her to Moberly, 36 miles north of here. She said she was well treated and passed the time playing bridge. She was returned here at 11:30 p. m.

The "kidnaping" threw the campus into a turmoil yesterday. Local police and the sheriff here were notified of the "abducting," and even the state highway patrol lent its assistance.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Butterfield came here last night after learning of the "abduction."

Dr. Albert C. Heckel, dean of men, said he would continue his own investigation of the abduction tomorrow.

Pharmacy Explosion Traced to Blaze Set by Firebugs

After investigating the explosion which caused $10,000 damage early yesterday to the Rose pharmacy, 4639 North Damen avenue, Lieut. Frank Johnson of the detective bureau declared that the blast followed a fire, probably of incendiary origin, and was not a bomb, as was first believed. Two men were seen in the store a few minutes before the explosion. Lieut. Johnson said he would question Hyman Cohen, proprietor of the pharmacy, who is ill in a hospital.

HUNT 'PHANTOM' WINDOW BANDITS; 2 SUSPECTS HELD

Cripple Police Cars with Their Gunfire.

Police held two men at the detective bureau last night in hopes of linking them with the "phantom" band of hoodlums who, since November, have smashed windows of nearly fifty stores in the loop and outlying sections and stolen merchandise valued at $100,000. On six occasions police have engaged the elusive marauders in gun battle, only to be repelled by an uncanny return fire which crippled their cars.

The prisoners at the bureau are Nick Detente, 28 years old, 2117 Jackson boulevard, and Paul Bataglia, 30, of 604 South May street. Detente was seized when an automobile, answering the description of one of the machines of the "phantom" outfit, and containing two pistols and a shotgun, was found in back of his house. Inside Detente's home, Sergt. George Schupolsky found an overcoat which he declares was stolen in a window smashing burglary at 414 South Halsted street recently. Bataglia was arrested when he called at Detente's home.

Cripple Police Cars.

The career of the "phantom" gang is considered one of the strangest records in local crime by Capt. John Horan of the Central station and Deputy Detective Chief Walter Storms. The gang operates in military-like fashion, using a squad of marksmen who seem at will able to puncture the front tires of pursuing machines. They operate just before dawn, using two cars. One is parked in front of the store to be looted, the other across the street. This strategy enables them to catch any roving police squads in between.

On Nov. 24 the first gun fight between the elusive looters and police occurred. On that day the two automobiles were drawing away from the Reed tailor store, 104 West Lake street, with $3,500 in clothes, when Lieut. Louis Klatzco and Sergt. Martin Cullerton came upon them. A chase followed, marked by an exchange of shots. It ended when the front tires of the pursuers flattened under bullet punctures.

Car Riddled with Bullets.

The "phantom" crew appeared Jan. 15 at the Berg-Eisenberg tailor shop, 309 South Dearborn street. Two men stood on the sidewalk with shotguns, protecting their confederates as they looted the store. An A. D. T. squad car answering an alarm, drew up squarely between the two parked cars. The agency machine was riddled with bullets. Two minutes later Sergt. Packey Doyle and his bureau squad pursued the window smashers. Their tires were torn by gun fire.

Two weeks later the window smashers were interrupted at the Fie Ladies shop, 1327 Wilson avenue, by Patrolman Tom Doyle. He drove them away after trading bullets. The gang next looted the Highway Clothing store at 6234 South Western avenue, owned by John Sovetsky, known as the "million dollar" fence. They got $3,000 in suits, and escaped from Policemen James Sheehan and George Keeting after tearing the front tires of the police car.

The last police battle with the thieves occurred at Normal boulevard and 67th street March 4 when Sergt. William Sammons and his squad tried to intercept them. A volley of bullets blew out the front tires of the police car and shattered the windshield. Examination showed seventeen bullets in the car.

FALL CAUSES WOMAN'S DEATH.

Pneumonia, which developed as a result of injuries incurred in a fall in her home on March 3, caused the death at the county hospital yesterday of Mrs. Catherine Boranek, 34 years old, 4215 Grenshaw street.

2 DIE, 2 HURT AS TRUCK AND AUTO COLLIDE

Both Upset in Crash on North Side.

A man and a boy were fatally injured and two other men were critically hurt yesterday in the collision of a touring car and a newspaper circulation truck at Grace street and Sheffield avenue.

Harry Miller, 18 years old, 3042 Lincoln avenue, a helper on the newspaper truck, and D. Alden Christenson, 31 years old, 2910 Shakespeare avenue, a passenger in the touring car, lost their lives.

Thomas E. Baldwin, 30 years old, 1306 Ritchie court, an interior decorator and the owner and driver of the touring car, received a fractured skull and was still unconscious last night at the American hospital. Edward Sobie, 35 years old, 1732 North Albany avenue, another helper on the truck, was taken to the Lake View hospital with a broken back.

Drivers Escape Injury.

Robert Kemmer, 1633 North Albany avenue, driver of the truck, and Lee Culler, a commercial artist living at the Ritchie court address, escaped injury. Culler, a passenger in the touring car, refused to tell police where its occupants were bound at the time of the accident. He admitted he had been drinking, police said. The touring car, an imported model, bore a French license.

Police blamed Baldwin for the accident after Culler had admitted that Baldwin failed to stop or slow up when he approached Sheffield avenue, a through street, while driving in Grace street. Culler and Kemmer were both held for the inquests today were both held for the inquests today.

Both Cars Upset.

Both cars turned over as a result of the collision, and firemen were called to help extricate the victims.

Christenson was the youngest son of the Rev. Carl Christenson, pastor of the Saron Evangelical Lutheran church. The Rev. Mr. Christenson left the pulpit yesterday in the midst of his Palm Sunday sermon to hurry to the side of his dying son.

These two deaths and one other in Cook county raised the 1932 toll to 243.

Mrs. Anna Goldberg, 69 years old, 2035 Melrose street, was killed last night and her son, Edward, 34 years old, and his wife, Esther, 23, both of 3511 Barry avenue, were injured when their automobile was struck and overturned by another car at Higgins road and Mason avenue. Chester Gray, 3417 North Central Park avenue, driver of the other car, was arrested.

Five High School Students Hurt.

Five high school students, two of them girls, were injured early this morning when their automobile crashed into the side of a North Western freight train one and one-half miles west of North Chicago. All were taken to the St. Therese hospital in Waukegan, where physicians said they were not hurt seriously.

The five are Merrill Phillips, 19 years old, of Gurnee, the driver; William B. Beattie, also 19, Gurnee; Harland Craft, 18, of Lake Villa; Anna Beck, 17, of Gurnee, and Hazel Backovitch, 17, of Libertyville. The group were returning from a show at the time of the accident. Three of them were catapulted through the roof of the automobile at the crash. Beattie, the least injured, ran nearly a mile for help.

3 Robbers Terrorize 13 in Drug Store; Get $250

Three armed men, masked, entered the Liggett drug store at 2259 Madison street last night. Twelve customers in the place and Richard J. Alexander, the manager, were forced to stand in line. Two of the bandits guarded them while the third took $250 from the cash register. No attempt was made to rob the customers.

GANGSTER SLAIN ON RIDE; BODY IS TOSSED IN DITCH

Find Frank Battaglia Shot to Death.

Frank Battaglia, 26 years old, a member of the "42" gang, was found dead in a ditch yesterday along a gravel road in Worth township, the victim of a gang ride. He had been shot four times through the head.

Battaglia was a minor hoodlum with a police record running back to 1926. Recently, police said, he had been a member of a gang which held up drivers of merchandise trucks on the west side and stole their trucks and goods. A dispute within that gang, or some petty bootlegging squabble, was given as the probable motive for the murder.

The slaying ended a police search for Battaglia which had been going on since last summer, when he escaped from police in a gun fight.

Shot Heard by Farmer.

The road beside which Battaglia's body was dumped is an extension of 87th street. The body was a few hundred yards east of Harlem avenue.

Battaglia apparently was slain where his body was found. Charles Jacobs, a farmer living nearby, heard several shots at 10:30 o'clock Saturday night.

Joseph Kempaga, another farmer, found the body yesterday morning. Coroner Walsh and Sergts. Frank Donohue and Charles Reynolds of the coroner's office went to the scene. They found bloodstained bits of glass from an automobile window, indicating that Battaglia had been shot inside the death car. A partly smoked cigar lay near his body.

Brother of Sam Battaglia.

Battaglia was a brother of Sam Battaglia, another "42" gang hoodlum, who is held in the county jail on a charge of robbery growing out of the holdup on New Year's day, 1931 of the C. & O. café, North Clark street cabaret.

Frank Battaglia served four months in the county jail in 1926 on a charge of attempted burglary. In September, 1930, he was sentenced to a year for carrying a concealed weapon by Judge Lyle, but appealed the sentence and won a reversal.

He lived at 807 Loomis street, police were told by Mrs. Anna Battaglia, his bride of seven months.

15 Seized in Tennessee; Charge Illegal Assembly

Knoxville, Tenn., March 20.—[Special.]—Sheriff Riley and a score of deputies of Claiborne county, Tennessee, near the Kentucky border, arrested fifteen men late last night at Tazewell on charges of assembling for illegal purposes. The sheriff claims the men, many of whom are miners and mine union officials, are communists.

Slain Robber Unidentified; Police Seek His Relatives

Capt. Al Christensen of the Sheffield avenue police station sent out a description yesterday of the young bandit who was shot and killed Saturday night by Traffic Policeman Francis O'Toole in front of 2849 Burling street. Capt. Christensen believes the robber came from a good family. The youth was about 20 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighed 140 pounds. He had fair complexion, blond hair and gray eyes. He wore a black curly surfaced overcoat and a hat in which were the initials "E. G. K."

COATING OF FELT GIVEN TO STEEL; NEW FIELD OPEN

Finish of Imitation Silk May Be Developed.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 20.—(AP)—Felt coated steel, a new material, was announced tonight by the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research.

The felt coating of metal opens a world of new commercial possibilities. It means that for many practical uses steel can be covered with all sorts of protective or attractive finishes, even to the imitation of a silken surface.

The new laminated metal was developed by Dr. A. W. Coffman. By use of alloys the hitherto alien materials are made an integral part of steel, on one or both sides.

Cooling Is Important.

The alloys are heated to something just beyond their "pastic" points, the temperature at which they become soft before turning into a true liquid. In that stage and above alloys of tin, lead, and zinc amalgamate with the linings. Exactly the right cooling is necessary for success.

The coatings mostly experimented with thus far are asbestos and cellulose.

Without rupture of these linings, says the report, the steel has been corrugated, cut with the ordinary tools of a tinsmith, rolled into pipe and even "drawn." A cellulose coated piece of steel was elongated eight per cent by cold rolling.

New Uses Are Seen.

"This metal," says Dr. Coffman's report, "affords flexibility of protection against a variety of corrosive agencies, a fact that will no doubt create many uses other than as roofing and siding for building construction. Excellent pipe line protection should be provided. Paneling for a large number of purposes, fireproof material for fire doors and the manufacture of novelties also come within the scope of possible applications."

The felt lining can be saturated and covered with the new plastics, which imitate anything from jewels and silk to various woods. These coatings can be lacquered or painted. The coated steel is said to lose its "ring" when struck a blow.

Fur May Be Attached.

Answering a question about fur coating, Dr. W. A. Hamor, assistant director of the institute, says: "Fur probably can be attached to steel by use of such a low melting point alloy as wood's metal or rose's metal, as an adhesive.

"We have had no reason whatsoever to attach fur to metal. If we were planning an investigation we would be decidedly unoptimistic regarding the possibility of producing a piled fur surface, unless it would be a furred skin that would be attached to the metal."

INJURY TO LEG CAUSES DEATH.

Complications resulting from an injury to his leg last December caused the death at the county hospital yesterday of Jesse Phelps, 73 years old, 7218 Calumet avenue.

MEXICAN BANDITS DITCH TRAIN; FAIL IN ATTACK; 3 DEAD

MEXICO CITY, March 20.—(AP)—Bandits derailed an international train from Laredo, Tex., today at a point 12 miles north of Queretaro, causing two deaths in the wreck and another among the bandits in a subsequent attack.

A fireman and an express messenger were killed when the engine and four cars of the train, which was bound for Mexico City, went into a ditch. The bandits attacked the train immediately afterward, but were driven off by a small guard after one bandit was slain.

The bandits, reported to number 50 and described as agrarians, had removed a section of rail.

Polish Cabinet Shaken Up; Land Bank Head Gets Post

FIND WISCONSIN TAXES DRIVING INDUSTRIES OUT

Survey Shows Heavy Loss in Wages and Revenue.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 20.—[Special.]—The present trend of taxation in Wisconsin, a trend inspired by Gov. La Follette's apparent policy of "soaking the rich," is driving home industries to other states, thereby depriving Wisconsin workers of millions of dollars in wages and losing millions of revenue for the state, county, and city governments.

This situation is disclosed in a survey of present industrial tendencies in such manufacturing centers as Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha, Janesville, and other cities. The manufacturers assert that although the tax burden has not yet become so heavy as to warrant the expense of moving long established plants to other states, the tax load has produced a well defined policy of spreading all expansion programs to points outside Wisconsin.

Find Instances in Point.

Concrete instances were uncovered where prosperous Wisconsin concerns, which had purchased the plants of companies outside Wisconsin for annexation to their home plants, were dissuaded by legal advisers after study of Wisconsin tax laws. Indiana and eastern states have been the principal beneficiaries of the anti-Wisconsin trend, the survey indicated.

A case in point is that of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company, whose main offices and home plant are situated in West Allis, a suburb of Milwaukee. The president of the company, Gen. Otto H. Falk, cited five instances in which Allis-Chalmers, one of the largest machinery manufacturers in the country, had been forced by Wisconsin taxation to abandon its initial policy of concentrating activities at the home plant.

Expansion Program Adopted.

In the last few years Allis-Chalmers has embarked on a broad expansion program. In February, 1928, it purchased the Monarch Tractor company of Springfield, Ill.; in May, 1931, it acquired the Advance Rumely company, makers of thrashing machines, at La Porte, Ind., and last January it bought the Birdsell Manufacturing company, makers of farm implements at South Bend, Ind. Only a few weeks ago Allis-Chalmers took a further expansion step with the purchase of the Ryan Grader company of Chicago.

"I first became associated with the Allis-Chalmers company in 1912," Gen. Falk recalled. "At that time and for some years afterwards I was an advocate of the policy of concentrating operations in Wisconsin. In accordance with that policy during a reorganization of the company we closed two plants in Chicago and one at Scranton, Pa. That left us one plant in Cincinnati, one in Milwaukee and one at West Allis."

Taxes Bring Change in Policy.

It was along about 1925, Gen. Falk said, when the home concentration policy had to be abandoned. The directors, he recalled, had come to the view that the company required a plant for building transformers, involving an expenditure of approximately $1,000,000. Plans were drafted and estimates obtained on the cost of building in Milwaukee.

"Then came the repeal of the offset tax," said Gen. Falk. "Under the offset system we had our choice of paying the higher of two taxes, income or personal property, but not both. With its repeal the company was saddled with three taxes—income, personal property, and real estate."

As a result, Gen. Falk declared, the directors vetoed the proposed $1,000,000 Milwaukee plant and instead purchased the Pittsburgh Transformer company of Pittsburgh.

Second Step Follows First.

"That was the first step," he said. "The second came when we purchased the Monarch tractor plant. At the time it amounted to little industrially. Today it is developed to a plant covering 160 acres, and in the last year has operated more satisfactorily and in fuller capacity than any plant we have. The state and people of Illinois have been more than anxious to have us increase our Springfield facilities and have done everything possible to make our domicile a happy one. We have never regretted taking that step."

The company met the same welcome when it purchased the Advance Rumely plant at La Porte, according to Gen. Falk. The La Porte facilities comprised two large units, normally employing 2,000 workers.

"The Indiana people literally have been turning themselves inside out to do everything possible for us," Gen. Falk said. "As a result of their cooperative spirit we have decided to concentrate more and more of our manufacturing activities there. The equipment of the Birdsell and Ryan plants both will be set up in La Porte."

Calls Wisconsin the Loser.

Both plants might have been transferred to Wisconsin, except for the tax situation, Gen. Falk declared. In each case Allis-Chalmers purchased only the patents, trademarks, machinery and good will, leaving the buildings and real estate to be sold elsewhere.

"In the case of the Birdsell company, production would have lent itself nicely to our plow works at La Crosse," Gen. Falk said. "The choice involved the employment of several hundred men at least, which would have meant much to La Crosse. But when the tax situation came up for consideration the directors promptly chose La Porte.

"With respect to the Ryan company, production could have been handled at West Allis as well as at any other plant. Again the directors decided in favor of La Porte. That, too, means the employment of several hundred additional men."

Flaw Found in Theory.

The theory that in the end the consumer pays a company's tax bills may apply on national taxation but does not apply to Wisconsin taxes, according to Gov. La Follette's critics. Gen. Falk pointed out that 95 per cent of the Allis-Chalmers machinery products are sold outside the state.

"We have never been averse to paying taxes in line with those imposed on our competitors," he said. "In some instances we have even paid a little more than we were obliged to pay. But when the state government puts our tax bills entirely out of line with our rivals in other states, then ordinary business judgment dictates such a course as we are now following of expanding in more friendly states."

Another Company Acts.

The Pittsburgh Plate Glass company is another large concern adopting a policy similar to that of Allis-Chalmers, according to Ludington Patton, vice president in charge of the Milwaukee plant. Burdensome taxes and the new compulsory job insurance law are deterrents to any expansion in Wisconsin, he declared.

"We can't very well move our present plant outside the state," said Mr. Patton, "but we can concentrate our expansion in our twenty units scattered in nine or ten other states. It is not only a question of corporation taxes, but of income taxes as well. We can't ask capable executives to leave other states and take charge of departments in the Milwaukee plant unless we assure them they will not suffer from the greatly increased taxes on their personal incomes."

Frank R. Bacon, president of the Cutler-Hammer company, manufacturers of electrical equipment, declared that "the tax threat is holding up expansions which would otherwise be warranted, even in view of the depression.

"Not long ago the Cutler-Hammer company considered replacing its older buildings in Milwaukee, meaning a total outlay of $500,000," said Mr. Bacon. "In view of the tax situation these plans were dropped.

"What is even worse than the policy of penalizing industry is the definite effort made by the present administration to set up class hatred. It is not only a question of chastizing the wealthy, but of engendering class antagonism. Wealth is made to appear as made of dishonesty or exploitation."

Alvin Kletzsch, president of the Kletzsch Realty company and the Kletzsch Holding corporation, summed up the situation in Milwaukee in an address recently, quoting figures from manufacturers to show that in the last three months alone expansions involving 1,145 jobs and $1,700,000 in annual pay rolls went to other states by reason of Wisconsin taxes.

BABY SAVED BY INHALATOR AFTER 116 HOUR BATTLE

Prescott, Ariz., March 20.—[Special.]—May Jeane Johnson, born here Feb. 26 last, will go down in the records of the Prescott volunteer fire department as one of the most remarkable cases the inhalator and resuscitator squad of the department ever will be called upon to handle.

When only 14 days old the baby developed bronchial pneumonia, and when it appeared evident to the attending physician that the infant had little chance of recovery the firemen were summoned.

Night and day thereafter for 116 hours, without a minute's letup, the squad, working in shifts of two, administered oxygen. After two days the baby showed no signs of improvement.

But soon the tiny lungs began to clear, nourishment could be taken, and the fever dropped.

At the end of the 116 hour period the firemen were discharged, and today the child is well on the road to recovery.

FILL CHURCHES FOR OBSERVANCE OF PALM SUNDAY

Old Rite Commemorates Triumphal Entry.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Chill breezes did not deter many thousands of Chicago's devout from participating in the world-wide observance yesterday of Palm Sunday. It is the day which recalls Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem and ushers in the most solemn days of Lent, known as Holy week. Worshipers streamed from churches of many faiths at noon carrying with them palm leaves, the token of the day.

In Catholic and many Episcopal churches these palm leaves, which symbolize the triumphant Christ, had been blessed. At Holy Name cathedral Cardinal Mundelein blessed the palms. Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese occupied his former pulpit at St. Luke's church, Evanston, where he blessed the palms distributed to the worshipers there.

A Contrast in Triumphs.

In a morning sermon by the Rev. Dr. Douglas Horton, pastor of the United church of Hyde Park, the Palm Sunday story was recalled to illustrate the way Christ faced evil. Dr. Horton contrasted the triumphs of Roman generals who rode into the city in chariots, with Christ's entry into Jerusalem riding "the most humble of burden bearing animals" and knowing the certainty of the crucifixion before the end of the week.

The Rev. Dr. Clinton G. Cox, pastor of the Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 64th street and Marshfield avenue, told his Palm Sunday congregation that "the gang" crucified Christ. It was the same type of crowd, he said, that makes up gangland today. Dr. Cox criticized the Lindberghs for calling in members of gangland to help them find their kidnaped baby.

Dr. John Thompson will be the Holy week preacher at the noon day services today at the Chicago temple, Clark and Washington streets. These services, together with noon day services at the Blackstone theater, are held under the auspices of the Chicago Church federation. Holy week services will be conducted by the Episcopal Church club of Chicago at the Garrick theater. Bishop Stewart will preach.

Stewart Upholds Tradition.

In a recent book published by Canon H. A. Prichard, widely read New York religious author, Bishop Stewart was named as one of the nine outstanding preachers of America. For 25 years the Holy week series were preached by the late Bishop Charles Palmerston Anderson. As successor to Bishop Anderson Bishop Stewart is carrying on the tradition established by his predecessor.

The Christian Business Men's committee will continue its evangelistic services during the week at the Selwyn theater.

MISSING MAN IS FOUND CHAINED TO TREE IN EAST

Berlin, Md., March 20.—[Special.]—Charles W. Brown, 31 years old, who had been the object of a man hunt since his disappearance last Tuesday night, was found manacled with iron chains to a tree in Holly Grove swamp, six miles from here, today.

A farm youth who made the discovery, obtained a sledge and a chisel with which he severed the chains which encircled the captive's arms, legs, and neck.

FLOSSMOOR AIRS SUSPENSION OF CHIEF TONIGHT

A rousing time, with civic fur flying, is expected tonight at the village board meeting in Flossmoor. The expected rumpus is over the summary suspension of Police Chief Edward Dugdale.

CHIEF EDWARD DUGDALE.

Chief Dugdale was ousted Saturday night by Francis Hoyne, village trustee and chairman of the police committee. He is a son of former State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne. Hoyne relieved Dugdale of official duties "pending the board meeting Monday night" on charges of insubordination.

The suspension came as a shock to many residents of Flossmoor who have come to refer to Chief Dugdale as "so honest he leans backwards." Trustee Hoyne declined last night to detail the charges of insubordination, merely announcing that "you can't bite the hand that feeds you and get away with it." He refused to explain the comment. Chief Dugdale reserved comment, but announced he will fight any effort to dismiss him "with a blot on my record." One report was that Dugdale had found disfavor for his refusal to arrest parking violators.

Frances Marion, Scenarist, Is Reported Seriously Ill

Los Angeles, Cal., March 20.—[Special.]—Frances Marion, film scenarist, was reported today to be in a serious condition at the Good Samaritan hospital. She suffered a heart attack.

LOUISE FAZENDA TELLS CHANGE IN CLOWNING RULES

Using one's countenance to stop the flight of a custard pie used to be a sure fire method of drawing a comedian's salary—but it doesn't work any more. Says Louise Fazenda, most consistently funny of the feminine clowns, who dropped in on Chicago yesterday. The little girl who was born down at Lafayette, Ind., and moved to the film capital at the ago of two months, is about to make her initial bow to a firsthand audience, and she was all gooseflesh about it as she hopped off the California train.

"It's characterization that counts with audiences these days," confided the blonde Louise. "It used to be makeup that amused. Now it isn't what you wear, but how you catch the mannerisms of the character in certain situations, that leaves 'em rolling out of their seats. It takes more subtlety, and it is much harder work. In the days when I stumbled into comedy roles because Polly Moran happened to be sick and nobody else was handy, I didn't like comedy. It simply lacerated my vanity—the getups they wished on me, when I had a beau right on the lot, too. Now I like it."

When the famous snow fell in California recently, the comedienne chuckled, a sick friend who was visiting her wandered to the window that morning and remarked that there was snow all around.

"I thought she'd lost her mind from illness," laughed Louise. "I nearly fainted when I went to the window to help her back to a chair, and saw that snowfall."

KILLS ESTRANGED WIFE AND SELF.

New Brighton, Pa., March 20.—(AP)—Enraged because his estranged wife, Mrs. Margaret Smiley, 27, refused to return to him, Edward Smiley, 36, a brick worker, shot and killed the woman today and then committed suicide.

CHURCH ROW IN SPAIN CURTAILS HOLY WEEK RITES

Parades Given Up Rather than Ask Permits.

MADRID, March 20.—(AP)—Catholics throughout Spain attended the customary Palm Sunday services in the churches today while the country generally prepared to observe the first Holy week of the new republic without official government participation.

The balconies of houses were covered, in accordance with tradition, with palms sold by the poor. Religious street parades planned for today were suspended, however, in several towns of Catalonia and the Basque-Navarre provinces to avoid possible disorders. The ceremonies were held in other parts of Spain.

Spain has been threatened with a lack of the Holy week processions which for centuries have attracted thousands of visitors, particularly to Seville.

Seville Center of Observance.

Religious organizations announced "they would rather suppress the processions than ask for the necessary authorization" from the government under article 27 of the new constitution.

For hundreds of years, with only minor interruptions, Seville has been a center of religious pilgrimages during Holy week. Tourists and religious faithful have gathered there from all nations to participate in the processions and services that began on Palm Sunday and ended on the Saturday before Easter.

In addition to the Seville observance, similar demonstrations were held in the principal cities and Catholic centers of Spain.

Catholics Adamant.

Officials throughout Spain made overtures to the Catholic associations in efforts to have them change their attitude, but these were unsuccessful except in the minor towns.

During the Holy week celebrations the most famous sculptured figures and sacred groups in the country, most of them in Seville, were brought from the churches and carried through the streets followed by priests dressed as Nazarenes, while thousands of worshipers lined the avenues chanting religious couplets and prayers. The priests carried lighted tapers in the night processions, forming impressive spectacles.

Rome Observes Day.

ROME, March 20.—(AP)—Christ's triumphant entry into Jerusalem was commemorated here today with the rich, picturesque Palm Sunday ceremonies traditional in this chief city of the Catholic world. In the Vatican the Bresca family of Genoa, following a 350 year old custom, presented Pope Pius XI. with elaborately decorated palms.

In St. Peter's Cardinal Pacelli, high priest of the basilica, celebrated high mass and led a procession through the big bronze doors of the edifice, in commemoration of Christ's procession.

A large number of Americans in Rome for Easter attended today's services. They saw the statues and crucifixes in all the churches covered with black and purple cloth in sign of mourning.

Quincy, Ill., March 20.—[Special.]—Mrs. Henry Biuneck, 77, of this city, was struck by an automobile late last night and died in Blessing hospital early this morning.

INDIAN'S TRIAL FOR MURDER OF CO-ED IS NEARING JURY'S HANDS

Globe, Ariz., March 20.—(AP)—A stolid Apache cowpuncher's denial that he slew a Columbia university co-ed, and the assertion of a department of justice agent that the Indian had confessed the crime, will be pondered tomorrow by a federal court jury.

Testimony was completed yesterday in the trial of Mac [Golney] Seymour, the Redman, accused of fatally stabbing Henrietta Schmerler, 25 year old anthropology student.

Judge Albert M. Sames' instructions to the jurors and final argument by counsel only remains to be completed tomorrow before the jury retires.

New York Starts Drive to Clothe Its Jobless

New York, March 20.—[Special.]—The emergency unemployment relief committee announced today that a "spring housecleaning" drive for clothing for thousands of unemployed men and women who need presentable clothing will be launched here tomorrow. Every housewife in the metropolitan area is urged to "clean up and give," and the drive will be continued through the spring housecleaning season in an effort to bring to light "thousands of garments which are desperately needed to aid those in search of work."

A LADY'S LOVE IS WON BY VOICE ON POLICE RADIO

Then Her Suicide Threat Shatters "Romance."

San Francisco, Cal., March 20.—[Special.]—The lady started it all when she became infatuated with the voice of a police radio broadcaster. That might be explained by the fact he is a Los Angeles policeman and his first name is Floyd.

Up in her home in the Santa Cruz mountains she would turn on her short wave radio and sit enthralled while Floyd—his last name is Cullings—would call out "Squad No. 4, attention! Robbery at No. 5 Straight street," or "Squad No. 6, some Hollywooders are helpless on Crooked street. Get them home."

Then she began writing. She became a widow named "Mrs. W. I. Brown," and her letters to Cullings were filled with stories of her 12 year old daughter, Dorothy Maybelle, and her boy, Harold, 10, the bedridden crippled child who adopted Cullings as his own "daddy" upon hearing his voice by radio.

A couple of days ago Cullings received a letter which said Harold had died and that his mother was taking Dorothy Maybelle to San Francisco where both would be drowned in the bay to end their sorrow.

Cullings immediately radioed the police here. For two days they searched the waterfront and stopped every woman and girl headed that way. Squads were sent around the shores of the bay. Oakland kept watch and plain clothes men rode on every ferry boat.

Today "Mrs. Brown" confessed. She is not a widow nor is her name Brown. She and her husband conduct a general store in the mountains and they are childless. They formerly lived in Los Angeles.

"I fell in love with the voice of the policeman," the wife said, "and wrote the letters just so I could be in touch with him.

"I don't know why I did it. I became infatuated with that voice about three months ago and invented the children and various situations in order to correspond with him. Then I decided my husband might be jealous if he found out, so I thought I would break off the correspondence by telling Mr. Cullings I was going to end everything, and I never dreamed of the terrible consequences that followed my indiscretion."

The San Francisco police captain who directed the search remarked, "Hell, ain't that Los Angeles all over?"

NORTHUP TELLS PLATFORM FOR ATTY. GENERAL

Promises to Help Reduce Taxes, Check Crime.

John E. Northup, first assistant state's attorney, who recently won victory in the prosecution of the sanitary district whoopee case, yesterday announced the platform on which he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general of Illinois.

JOHN E. NORTHUP.

The reduction of taxes, checking of organized crime, and the selection of a staff of assistants of character and ability beyond reproach are high lights in his declaration.

"I should look upon public office not only as a public trust but as an opportunity to be of the greatest service to my fellow citizens of the state," Mr. Northup said. His platform follows:

"I believe that the two greatest and the most necessary objectives for every public office at this time are:

"First: To assist in reducing excessive taxation to lower and more normal levels.

"Second: To check and destroy organized crime so far as humanly possible.

Northup Outlines His Aims.

"In furthering the usefulness of the office of attorney general it would be my aim:

"First: To call to my assistance the most highly qualified staff. I stress this, knowing from my handling of civil and criminal matters that such a staff is indispensable in a great law office. The state's legal work exceeds that of any private office, and it should have the services of men just as capable as the best private law office must have to retain its clientage.

"Second: To assist in the unification of all the prosecuting agencies of the state for the more effective suppression of organized crime.

"Third: To make or assist in making a careful survey of the situation in Illinois as to organized crime.

Would Fight "Gas" Tax Dodgers.

"Fourth: To prevent in connection with other prosecuting agencies of the state a loss to the state of between three and one-half to four million dollars a year through evasion of the gasoline tax.

"Fifth: To assist in every way to prevent the loss of revenues to the state from any posible source.

"Sixth: To check the unlawful misapplication by fraudulent means of money derived from state taxation.

"Seventh: To see that legal opinions for the use of all state departments shall be speedily and most thoroughly prepared.

"Eighth: To give close personal attention to every department of the office, such as that relating to the inheritance tax laws and others.

"Ninth: To assist wherever possible in the proper application and enforcement of the banking laws.

"Tenth: To give most careful and exhaustive consideration to matters affecting the public interest which may have been acted upon by state boards or commissions, such as the Illinois Commerce commission, so far as the attorney general has the power to act. I have had no connection of any kind with any state board or commission such as the Illinois Commerce commission. I should therefore be entirely free and unembarrassed to act upon all matters passed upon by such boards and commissions."

This plank was thought directed at Charles W. Hadley of Wheaton, another Republican candidate for attorney general, who resigned from the chairmanship of the Illinois Commerce commission to make the race.

Tells More of His Purpose.

"It will be my purpose, if elected attorney general," Mr. Northup's platform continues, "to do my utmost to safeguard the interests of the people of Illinois. A public official, whatever his title or office, who proposes to 'get by' and to perform the ordinary routines of his office prescribed by law cannot be of any great use in accomplishing what I have outlined.

"He must organize and use every effort to meet the exceptional and dangerous conditions confronting us. There must be a revival of confidence in the law and renewed respect and regard for law and order."

Mr. Northup will make one of the first extended speeches of his campaign at noon today in Aurora.

FEINBERG SAWS WOOD FOR CROWE, VOTERS WARNED

Busse Says Old Regime Is Seeking Power.

Speaking as chairman of the campaign committee of the Deneen group, William Busse, county commissioner and veteran in Republican county politics, issued a statement asserting that the election of Judge Michael Feinberg as state's attorney would mean the return to power of Robert E. Crowe, former prosecutor.

"Aside from the question of lower taxation and lower appropriations for governmental expenses," the statement read, "the chief issue in the present primary campaign is to prevent the restoration to power of the political organization and affiliations of Robert E. Crowe.

"If the gangster is to be effectively combated, and if waste in government is to be stopped, the policies that have characterized the administration of State's Attorney Swanson and First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup should be wholeheartedly indorsed.

Gang Power Broken.

"The racketeers and crime lords have no understanding with State's Attorney Swanson. Through Swanson's activity, the gangster and the criminal no longer parade their power and influence. State's Attorney Swanson has sent a total of seventeen persons to the electric chair and two others are awaiting the same fate.

"It is significant that there has been a noticeable reduction in the number of murders in our city during the last three years.

"United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson has had an effective part in stopping the work of notorious criminals. Al Capone, Ralph Capone, Terry Druggan, Frankie Lake, Jack Guzik, and Sam Guzik have all been convicted and sentenced.

A Bipartisan Alliance.

"Mr. Crowe hopes to be restored to power through the nomination of Michael Feinberg for state's attorney. Judge Feinberg, with other sitting judges nominated through the influence of Mr. Crowe in past years, has an alliance with the Democratic leaders to control the south park system, whose commissioners are elected by the judges of the Circuit court.

"Of the twenty judges of the Circuit court, eleven are Republicans and nine are Democrats; but, through Mr. Crowe's influence and alliances, the south parks have been utilized as a bipartisan agency for Mr. Crowe and those affiliated with him.

"The Swanson-Northup ticket is opposed to the restoration of Crowe to political power."

Democratic county candidates headed by State Senator Thomas J. Courtney, contender for the state's attorneyship, will speak at the four north side meetings which tonight mark the opening of Judge Henry Horner's Cook county campaign for the governorship.

Judge Horner will speak in the 43rd ward at 651 West North avenue, in the 46th ward, at 916 Belmont avenue, and in the 47th at 2407 Blaine place. At the same time the governorship candidate is speaking at these meetings, Mayor Cermak will address another meeting at 2345 Devon avenue in the 50th ward.

BOTH PARTIES IN HOT BATTLES FOR WARD JOBS

'ack of Yards' Area One of Main War Sectors.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The "back of the yards" area and the old Town of Lake wards on the south side are the scene of lurid battle—Republican and Democratic—over candidates for ward committeeman, the one job on which the campaign exhibits no lassitude. The world may call them "ward comedians," but they take their fighting seriously and the struggle for party control has filled the lists with contenders.

Many appear to have been "planted" to split up the vote, an ancient dodge invented along old Archer road. In all, 48 Republicans and 53 Democrats, a total of 101, are running for 18 places in the nine wards from the 11th to the 19th, inclusive—each party elects one committeeman from a ward.

Contest in 11th Ward.

From the river to 43d street, the 11th ward, which lies west of Wentworth avenue, is in the throes of one of its usual Republican contests. William S. Finucane, present committeeman, again has for his chief opponent Arthur W. Sullivan of the Deneen group. Finucane, who was with the board of local improvements under the old city hall régime, has been a committeeman since 1920. His group represents the survivors of the old organization led by Ernest Magerstadt, former sheriff. Finucane, who has just been appointed secretary of the state industrial commission, is lined up with the Harding-Emmerson group for Custer for governor. Sullivan is for Len Small.

Among the candidates is Julius J. Link, who was sentenced last June to six months in the county jail on charges of attempted extortion of $10,000 from Oscar De Priest, Negro congressman. Link is also a Republican candidate in the primaries for secretary of state. Others running for committeeman are Albert Klein, Albert Strissel, and John Kochan.

On the Democratic side, Joseph B. McDonough, county treasurer, has a walkaway—only seven opponents. They are Leo Slivinski, Joseph Kalinovsky, Walter Pacanowski, Thomas Reed, Frank A. Schultz, Robert M. Dunn, and Conrad Wika.

G. O. P. in 3 Cornered Fight.

Republicans have a triangular fight in the 12th. Committeeman George D. King, who was an examining engineer in the old city hall régime and is now with the public schools engineering staff, is with Harding and Crowe, Custer and Feinberg. Felix F. Kucharski, now committeeman of the old 13th ward, is a Small manager. James L. Perry, who was an attaché of the old board of review, is carrying the Deneen banner and is for Swanson for state's attorney.

For the Democrats, Frank V. Zintak, who is slated by the organization for renomination for Superior court clerk, is opposed by John Korzeniowski, who is on the lists at Igoe headquarters. Others are James B. Shanahan and Thomas J. Fitzgerald.

Elmer J. Zelhart, the Deneen candidate, is with Swanson in the 13th ward. Percival G. Baldwin, supporting Carlstrom for governor, is a former state senator. Emil J. Krug is for Brundage; George O. Lehr is backing Small. Robert Dockerty is the candidate of Ernest Withall, committeeman of the old 15th, business manager of the board of education, and a cog in the old city hall machine. Dockerty is with Harding-Galpin-Emmerson for Custer and with Harding-Crowe for Feinberg and the Republican "harmony" county ticket. Other candidates are Julius J. Rosenheim and Allan J. Moynihan.

On the Democratic side, Committeeman James Baker is opposed by John S. Zolna, who is on the Igoe lists, James E. Hayes, Frank Dusek, and Ned C. Bakes.

14th Ward Contest.

In the 14th ward Howard E. Reddy, a Harding man, is again in his biennial battle against Committeeman James W. Breen, former assistant corporation counsel in the old city hall administration. Breen is a Small manager. This time Reddy has top place on the ticket, which is supposed to count for something, and the struggle is the warmest in years. Reddy's managers say he is going like a fire in a lard factory. Other candidates are Victor J. Lipinski and Max A. Schroeder.

The Democratic feud is even hotter than the Republican. Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady and James J. McDermott are chief contenders. Both are on the organization ticket as a "hands off" job. The real fight is between O'Grady and Judge John J. Sullivan, who is behind McDermott. A campaign paper has been published and every day sees broadsides poured in. O'Grady, who was sponsor of the search and seizure repealer bill which Gov. Emmerson vetoed, beat William R. O'Toole for alderman a year ago. Now O'Toole is running for O'Grady's old seat in the house while O'Grady is running for O'Toole's place as committeeman. O'Grady and O'Toole, former foes, sat together at a recent party affair at the Hotel Sherman like political turtledoves.

Other candidates are Stanley Lewandowski, Daniel F. McCarthy, Thomas J. McCormick and Victor Konetski. One bit of comicality is that Judge Sullivan still controls the ward patronage, which was approved by O'Toole before the breakup came.

Mast Is Deneen Candidate.

Frank Mast is the Deneen candidate in the 15th ward. Arthur F. Golk is with Custer. State Representative Michael A. Ruddy is with Small. A fourth candidate is Rudolph F. Muehlhausen.

Richard Frolich, Democractic committeeman, is without opposition.

William H. Reid, present committeeman, has for his leading opponent in the 16th ward Robert E. Neely, former chief deputy internal revenue collector. Neely, who is the Deneen pick, recently was squeezed out of his federal post for political reasons dictated by the recently appointed collector, Gregory T. Van Meter, and his political godfather, George F. Harding. Neely later filed for committeeman.

"Doc" Reid is an old bureau chief of the city hall machine that was thrown out last April and he is traveling with Harding and the three Homers, Homer Tice, Homer Galpin, and Omer Custer for governor. The "Doc" has been committeeman since 1916, when he pushed Mr. Deneen out as committeeman of his own Englewood ward, the old 31st. Other candidates are: Fred F. Linke, William A. Johnson, Maurice O'Connell, and John S. O'Donnell, who is for Carlstrom.

For the Democrats, Ald. Terence F. Moran, present committeeman, has six opponents, John C. Sipple, Martin Fitzgerald, Matthew Flanigan, James P. Kerrigan, Roy G. McMahon, and Patrick J. Tuohy.

The 17th, old home ward of ex-Senator Charles S. Deneen, has a spirited contest. Robert E. Barbee, former alderman, is running as the Deneen pick against William J. Balmer, present committeeman, who used to be superintendent of public service in the former city administration. Balmer is with Judge John Lyle for state's attorney. Harry S. Ditchburne, an assistant state's attorney, is running as an independent. He is for John A. Swanson for state's attorney and he opened the First ward headquarters for Swanson. Ward leaders figure that Ditchburne might walk down the middle between Barbee and Balmer. Richard C. Day is actively campaigning. Others who filed are Maurice M. Renehan, Eugene V. Taylor, and Frank M. Petersen.

As to the Democrats, Coroner Frank J. Walsh is opposed by James M. Eurke, who is with Igoe. Others are Chester J. Murray, Ambrose T. Murray, William J. Nolan, and Michael Mohan.

Vandenberg Out of Race.

Herman C. Vandenberg is not running for reëlection in the 18th ward. Conrad E. Almquist, who is for Brundage for governor, was deputy clerk in the Municipal court clerk's office for several years under the régime of James A. Kearns, now city treasurer. Almquist managed the Vandenberg campaign last time. Albert Johnson, an assistant state's attorney, is running with the Deneen indorsement. James L. Brogan is supporting Custer for governor and the Harding-Crowe-Feinberg county slate. Charles R. Palmquist, also is with Custer. He is chief clerk in the Illinois free employment agency. Frederick C. Franke is with Small. Two other candidates are Harry Bandringa and William H. Vreeland.

On the Democratic end, Committeeman Peter J. Brady is opposed by Bernard A. Conlon, who is on the Igoe list, and David Foley, Edwin Dietrick, James F. McMahon, Andrew J. Walsh, James J. Hartigan, and Henry Conlon.

Contest Is Spirited.

An energetic contest is on the boards in the 19th between Charles A. Nowak, present committeeman, and Robert C. Rohn, for Republican committeeman. Mr. Nowak, who is backing Custer and the Harding-Crowe-Feinberg county slate, is on the so-called "harmony ticket" for sanitary trustee. Mr. Rohn, who is president of Ald. O. E. Northrup's 19th ward organization, has been indorsed by the Deneen group.

Ald. Northrup writes: "While Mr. Rohn has the indorsement of the Deneen group, he is strictly a candidate of the O. E. Northrup 19th ward Republican organization."

Walter W. Mandleco and Fred Overheu are other candidates for committeeman.

On the Democratic side, Committeeman Thomas D. Nash is opposed by Peter J. Brady, Charles F. McDonough, John J. Lynch, and William O'Rourke.

Notes of the Primary Campaign

Walter M. Duff, candidate for congress from the Second district to succeed Morton D. Hull, who is not seeking renomination, has been indorsed by the Deneen group. He is supported by George E. Q. Johnson, United States attorney.

The Norwegian-American club has announced a long list of indorsements headed with the names of United States Senator Glenn, Attorney General Carlstrom, candidate for governor, and Lieut. Gov. Sterling.

Headquarters for Francis J. Sullivan, Democratic candidate for secretary of state, have been opened in his office, suite 1413, 100 West Monroe street.

Julius Klein announced that his service men's committee in his campaign for congressman-at-large includes Howard P. Savage, Everett H. Allison, David Lee Shillinglaw, and George Sugarman.

Revision of the laws governing relations between landlord and tenant is advocated by Victor Frohlich, Democratic candidate for attorney general. He contends that the statutes now give too many advantages to the landlord.

EGYPT PREMIER ESCAPES BOMB BLAST IN CAIRO

CAIRO, Egypt, March 20.—(AP)—A bomb exploded in a street here last night just before Premier Ismail Sidky Pasha passed the spot on his way home from a banquet for the diplomatic corps.

No damage was caused by the bomb, which was thought to have been exploded as a demonstration against the premier. It apparently was the work of an amateur, similar to bombs previously used in political demonstrations in Egypt.

An attempt was made last year to assassinate Premier Sidky Pasha, whose government has been opposed by the Wafdists [nationalists]. Taha Hussein, who was discovered in the premier's railway coach disguised as a servant with a hatchet concealed in his cloak, was sentenced to seven years' hard labor, but died after a 50-day hunger strike.

HOW THE BROWNS SAVED $52.87 ON AUTOMOBILE AND FIRE INSURANCE

MR. B.—You've handled our household budget beautifully, Mary, and reduced all our living expenses except insurance.

MRS. B.—It wouldn't be safe to reduce these. We might lose everything we own.

Well, my dear, we can save money on our insurance without sacrificing a bit of protection. Frank Marshall told me some facts about insurance that will surprise you. We could have been saving $0.20 to $0.35 cents out of every $1.00 we have ever spent for our insurance.

Why, John, that hardly seems possible!

As Frank explains it, he insures with Liberty Mutual and, as a policyholder, he is one of the owners of that company. It's a Mutual Company and they pay dividends to their policyholders instead of to stockholders. He has received dividends each year of 20%. We've been placing our automobile and fire insurance with a stock company, and we haven't got back any dividends at all.

Aren't all companies organized the same way?

No! There is a big difference between companies. The Liberty was organized to serve its policyholders — not for private gain. They sell direct—no commissions to brokers and agents —so their selling expense is a lot lower than in stock companies.

They insure preferred risks only and their losses are much lower. They sell a dollar's worth of automobile insurance for less than one-third what the average company spends. And in the Liberty, this means a lot to us because of their mutual plan of returning profits to policyholders.

How silly we've been to pay out all that extra money!

Yes! Last year we paid total premiums of $210.36 for fire insurance on the house, rent insurance, residence liability, burglary, windstorm, and automobile insurance. By placing all these with Liberty and its affiliated company, United Mutual, we would have earned dividends which would have reduced the net cost of our insurance to $157.49. We would have saved $52.87.

We could certainly use that money. Are they both strong financially?

The Assets of the two companies amount to $26,531,171, with Reserves of $21,203,058 and a combined Surplus of $5,328,113 (December 31, 1931).

Will they pay us promptly if we should have an automobile accident or a fire?

OPPONENT CALLS HULL A JUMPING JACK ON DRY LAW

Traces Peorian's Record on Prohibition.

Pekin, Ill., March 20.—[Special.]—Everett M. Dirksen, a liberal and a popular Pekin Legionnaire, who is running in the Republican primaries against Congressman William E. [Ed] Hull, ex-distiller of Peoria, who voted for the Jones 5 and 10 law, ripped into his opponent today, terming Hull "the world's champion flipflopper."

Two years ago Dirksen and the "Young Turk" movement carried Peoria and Tazewell counties, and the other four counties in the district pulled Hull through by only 1,155, which the old guard accounted too close a squeeze for comfort. In his latest campaign utterances, Dirksen discusses Hull's record on the prohibition question.

Called Jumping Jack.

"Mr. Hull is a political jumping jack who has forever been on the side of expediency and not conviction," says Dirksen. "He is like the old lady on a South Sea island whom a missionary sought to dissuade from the habit of smoking. To her the missionary said, 'Sarah, do you ever expect to get past St. Peter and into heaven with the odor of tobacco on your breath?' She retorted, 'Young man, when I go to heaven I expect to leave my breath behind.'

"When Mr. Hull goes to congress he invariably leaves his convictions behind. Consider his record on prohibition. He voted for the vicious and notorious Jones 5 and 10 law, which inflicted cruel and unusual punishment on the mere possessor of a pint of liquor, a law which in my judgment was a clear violation of the bill of rights. Then to crown this infamy, he sent a dispatch to a Peoria newspaper, saying 'I know this is a bad bill, but I voted for it.'

Back to 2.75 Beer.

"What a shameless confession to make. What guarantee can he give that he will not vote for other 'bad bills' that might be sponsored. In November, 1930, in an address to the foreign language division of the Union league in Chicago, he clamored for 'free beer, for a free people, tax free and license free.' In the same month he issued a pamphlet recommending 4 per cent beer and 85 cent whisky. In January of this year he had forgotten the whisky and clamored for 4 per cent beer.

"In February he had lowered the ante to 2.75 beer, and all this time he refused or failed to answer the questionnaire of the Women's Prohibition Reform organization."

Senate Rivals, Both Veterans, Find Similarity in Campaigns

BY PARKE BROWN.

For one place on the primary ballots the Republican and Democratic races have reached a point where the politicians are talking about their remarkable similarity.

WM. H. DIETERICH.

On the Republican side, United States Senator Otis F. Glenn is conceded such a tremendous lead that no neutral believes it can be overcome. He is spending almost his entire time attending to his duties in Washington.

On the Democratic side William H. Dieterich, congressman-at-large, is the regular organization candidate and has a large following of his own throughout the state. Neutrals say he looks like a sure winner. He also is devoting most of his time to his congressional work.

Long in Public Service.

Another phase of the similarity, it has been pointed out, is that each of these men has a long record of public service behind him. And the similarity goes still further in that each is opposed by an active campaigner with little record in public office.

Senator Glenn's only opponent conceded any importance is Newton Jenkins, a Chicago lawyer sometimes identified with the La Follette-Norris radicals, who is seeking the senatorial nomination for the third consecutive time. He says that he has covered almost the entire state and when in Chicago is speaking nightly.

Congressman Dieterich nominally has eight opponents, but only one of them is considered as even being in the race. He is Scott W. Lucas of Havana, former national judge advocate general of the American Legion, who resigned that post to enter this race.

Lined Up with Igoe.

Lucas is linked up with Michael L. Igoe, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, and with him has campaigned a large part of the state attacking the methods by which the Horner-Dieterich ticket was given the organization endorsement.

During his recent St. Patrick's day visit here, when he told the Irish Fellowship club that the "serpent of prohibition" must be driven out of the United States, Senator Glenn said he would have little time for campaigning before the primary.

"I went throughout the state in the primary and election campaigns four years ago," he said, "and the people of Illinois know me. And I trust that now they know even better what I will do if they send me back to Washington. It is an old but not wornout saying that actions speak louder than words. I am willing to be judged by my actions since I was elected."

It was accepted that Senator Glenn was referring to his activities against the evils of prohibition, his opposition to bureaucracy, his work for the Illinois waterway and other high spots in his official record at the capital.

But his record goes back considerably beyond his congressional term. He had been elected twice as state's attorney of Jackson county before, in 1920, he was elected state senator from the 44th district. That was the year Len Small was elected governor for the first time. In the two sessions of the assembly that followed, Glenn was the most powerful assailant of Smallism in either house.

His opponent, Jenkins, ran unsuccessfully for the Chicago city council in 1920. He was a "service men's candidate," a label that he still employs. In 1924 he entered the Republican primary for United States senator Charles S. Deneen won with 357,541 votes. Senator Medill McCormick was second with 351,601. Jenkins was third with 114,239.

Defeated Again in 1930.

Jenkins tried it again in 1930. Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick won with 714,505. Senator Deneen was second with 496,412. Jenkins was third with 161,261.

An effort has been made to make much of the increase in Jenkins' vote from 1924 to 1930. But analysis shows he lost considerable ground on a percentage basis. In 1924 he received 13.3 per cent of the total Republican vote In 1930 he received only 11.4 per cent of that vote. If he had run as well in 1930 as he did in 1924 he would have received 187,600 votes instead of the 161,261 cast for him.

Where Glenn always has been anti-Small, Jenkins is now the Small candidate for senator.

Dieterich Strong Candidate.

Congressman Dieterich proved himself a strong candidate when he was sent to Washington in 1930 by the voters of the state at large. He topped a field of four major candidates by 87,184, receiving a total vote of 1,062,606, of which 610,277 came from Cook county, although he was a downstater.

But Dieterich already had a record of public service at that time. He had been city attorney of Rushville, county judge of Schuyler county, and state representative in the general assembly for two terms. And he had a Spanish war record as a member of a provisional regiment.

His opponent, Lucas, has practiced law in Havana for sixteen years and was state's attorney for two terms. He was elected state commander of the American Legion in 1925 and the executive committee of the national Legion named him national judge advocate in 1927.

His standing in the Legion was high but there was surprise among politicians of the state when last fall he announced that he had given up his post in that organiation in order te run for United States senator.

FIELD MUSEUM SETS A RECORD DESPITE TIMES

Despite the reduction of its financial support, due to the depression, the Field Museum of Natural History was enabled to go through 1931 without curtailing its services to the public, it was stated yesterday in the annual report of the institution, published by the museum press.

STEPHEN C. SIMMS.

The attendance during 1931 was 1,615,540, the greatest in any year since the museum opened. In addition, 1,300 traveling exhibits were viewed in the public and parochial schools of the city by approximately 500,000 children.

Another 300,000 children attended entertainments and lectures provided by the Raymond foundation, making the total number of persons directly reached by the museum's educational influence more than 2,240,000 during the year, it was estimated by Stephen C. Simms, director.

The principal economies made necessary by reduced revenues were effected in the museum expeditions, Mr. Simms stated. The museum had sixteen expeditions in the field, both in America and abroad. They were conducted on a smaller scale than those of previous years, however.

RICHBERG KEPT ON CITY PAY BY 10 MILLION LURE

Records Tell Big Payments to Wilkerson Foe.

A $10,000,000 refund to Chicago gas consumers was revealed yesterday in city records as the goal of Attorney Donald R. Richberg in getting $121,000 out of the city treasury for himself when employed as attorney for the city in gas litigation.

It was Richberg who attacked THE TRIBUNE recently for its support of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson for the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The attack was made by Richberg, as counsel for the railroad labor organizations, in a letter to Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the senate subcommittee considering the appointment of Judge Wilkerson.

Richberg's expert engineering assistant in the gas rate fight drew out of the public funds approximately $350,000. In all $682,000 was spent in that litigation, of which more than $600,000 was taken from the city's pocketbook during the lucrative decade throughout which Richberg was attached to the public pay roll.

City Loses in Court Fight.

The money was never refunded, and Richberg's connection with the city terminated after the Illinois Supreme court had ruled against the city. It led a former corporation counsel to remark: "The results are nil. The whole thing has been a huge farce."

On the other side of the ledger appear thousands of words in reports by Richberg on his progress. The records show that a report usually preceded a request for more money. In brief, each gave the impression: "Victory is just around the corner." That picture was dangled periodically before a succession of city councils, and never failed to coax further appropriations out of the municipal coffers.

Richberg started out modestly with a remuneration of only $425 in 1914, the first year of his city connection. The next year he drew $5,353. The lawyer's financial sun kept rising until in 1925 his salary reached the peak of $15,669.

City's Payments to Lawyer.

A summary by years of the amounts paid to Richberg out of the treasury follows:

1914	$ 425	1921	$15,225
1915	5,353	1922	6,700
1916	11,400	1923	4,148
1917	13,432	1924	3,650
1918	13,432	1925	15,669
1919	11,900	1926	7,550
1920	12,841	1927	2,800

Engineer Gets $350,000.

E. W. Bemis, an engineer, was appointed on Richberg's recommendation. During those years he drew approximately $350,000 from the city funds. A summary of the legal and engineering expenditures during the litigation and after Richberg appeared on the scene follows:

Year	Accounting and engineering.	Attorneys.	Total.
1914	$ 995	$ 425	$ 1,420
1915	80	10,553	10,633
1916	78,953	26,274	105,227
1917	173,564	14,399	187,964
1918	138,620	22,019	160,639
1919	65,904	11,950	77,854
1920	33,905	15,302	49,207
1921		15,225	15,225
1922		6,700	6,700
1923		4,148	4,178
1924		3,650	3,650
1925	745	15,669	16,414
1926		7,550	7,550

Start of Rate Battle.

The gas litigation arose out of an ordinance passed by the city council in July, 1911, fixing the gas rates for a period of five years, the maximum rate being 75 cents per thousand cubic feet for the first year, and then decreasing. The gas company got an injunction preventing the enforcement of the ordinance rates on two conditions.

Those conditions were that the company should not charge more than 80 cents, and that the company should refund the difference between the 80 cent rate and the ordinance rates if the court should find that the ordinance rates were just and reasonable. The rates were 80 cents until 1917, by which time it was estimated that the refund would total $10,000,000.

The decision went against the city. If the state Supreme court had decided the case in favor of the city, Richberg would have been given another lease on the pay roll. Then, there would have still remained to be tried in the Circuit court the question: Were the 1911 ordinance rates reasonable?

Richberg wrote glowing reports to the city council elaborating on how he had won this and that legal or technical point. The hopes raised by those reports tumbled when Richberg's case went to the state Supreme court.

CAPTAIN DOLLAR, 88, SAYS WORLD'S FINE FOR THOSE WHO WORK

San Rafael, Cal., March 20.—(AP)—Looking back over a career that started in a machine shop in Scotland, Capt. Robert Dollar today celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday and pronounced the world "a fine place if you want to work."

CAPT. ROBERT DOLLAR. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

The birthday of the dean of American shipping men was observed quietly at his home on San Francisco bay. Friends and relatives called during the afternoon after the captain had returned from church.

Mrs. Dollar, to whom he was married 57 years ago, was unable to take part in the observance, having suffered a fall two weeks ago that still confined her to bed.

Hundreds of letters, telegrams, radio and cablegrams carrying birthday felicitations were delivered from all parts of the world.

PECK EXPECTED TO TESTIFY AT HIS TRIAL TODAY

Ralph L. Peck, former president of the First National bank of Palatine, is expected to take the witness stand before a jury in Federal Judge John P. Barnes' court today in an effort to disprove the government's charges that he embezzled approximately $30,000 of the bank's funds during 1928 and 1929. His defense, it was indicated during cross-examination of the government's witnesses last week, will be in the nature of an alibi.

Peck, who practiced law in Chicago for a number of years, was president of the bank from 1920 until last January, when he resigned at the request of the board of directors. Evidence produced before the jury by Assistant United States Attorney Owen A. West tended to show that Peck collected on numerous loans made by the bank and failed to turn in the money. His defense for this action, it was explained, was that the bank owed him several thousand dollars and he kept the money he collected to offset this debt.

A perusal of the bank's records in 1931 failed to show, however, that the institution owed Peck any money, according to Robert P. Monson, special investigator for the department of justice. Immediately after Monson's investigation, Prosecutor West said, Peck made restitution of approximately half of the missing funds.

NO. SHORE TOWNS PROTEST PLANS FOR SHERIDAN RD.

Seek to Discourage Use for Through Traffic.

BY HAL FOUST.

A formal protest will be mailed to Gov. Emmerson this week against the state highway construction program for Sheridan road through the north shore suburbs. Walter L. Edwards, president of the Hubbard Woods Improvement association, said yesterday that the letter to the governor will include resolutions adopted by the village boards of Winnetka, Wilmette, Kenilworth, and Glencoe.

"We want to discourage rather than to encourage the use of Sheridan road for through traffic," said Mr. Edwards. "This fast traffic should be diverted to the route paralleling the North Western railroad and the new Skokie valley highway.

Would Aid Home Owners.

"The north shore suburbs believe the state would benefit home owners and motorists by spending available funds in the completion of these more westerly routes rather than rebuilding sections of Sheridan road. The suburban home owners should be saved from the noise, fumes and hazards of through traffic. The motorists should be given a fast and safe highway such as Sheridan road can never be."

The protest centers on the state's plans to rebuild Sheridan road in the Hubbard Woods ravine. It is charged that this program would distract from the scenic value of the winding macadam trail through the wooded gorge.

There is no denying that this ravine drive is beautiful, and also that it is dangerous. It is frequently the scene of accidents during the Ravinia opera season. On an inspection trip in THE TRIBUNE road car yesterday, a large sedan was seen to skid a couple of feet on one of the sharp turns and break a rear wheel on a drain inlet. The driver, whose skill averted a head on collision, gave his name as H. W. Jordan, 320 Cumberland road, Kenilworth.

Want Beauty Preserved.

"We want the ravine to stay as it is, a thing of rare beauty," said Mr. Edwards. "We want through traffic to be accommodated elsewhere."

Robert Kingery, manager of the Chicago Regional Planning association, contends that the state's reconstruction scheme will remove the hazards without lessening the scenic attractions.

"At the instance of this association," he said, "the state has agreed to waive its requirements as to maximum grade and curvature so as to preserve the parkway character of the drive. A flat pavement properly banked would take the place of the present slippery surface with its high crown and bumps.

"The plan calls for a little widening, first on one side and then on the other, to give a longer vision around the curves. It contemplates a slight lowering of the steep hill on the south side of the ravine. The state landscape architect will be assigned to protect the trees and undergrowth from damage. The entire plan follows suggestions of Jens Jensen, president of the Friends of Our Native Landscape.

Needed to Handle Traffic.

"Sheridan road will be needed for traffic between the suburbs even after the Railroad avenue and Skokie valley projects are completed. The Regional Planning association foresees a growth of more than 30,000 population between Winnetka and Waukegan in the next decade.

"Sheridan road should be made safe for intersuburban traffic while facilities for express travel are being built farther west. Sheridan road will be needed for local traffic even after an off shore superhighway on islands may be developed as a continuation of Lincoln park's out drive."

The state administration has not indicated whether it will proceed with its present plans. However, Frank Sheets, state highway engineer, was quoted by Mr. Edwards as having commented that there are many sections of the state anxious for highway construction. Outsiders predict the Sheridan road ravine will not be disturbed on the eve of next fall's gubernatorial election.

NORTH, SOUTH, WEST TRIBUNE WANT ADS DO THE BEST JOB FOR LANDLORDS

In every one of 19 typical Chicago neighborhoods covered in a recent study of the reading preferences of tenants the Tribune led by 2 to 1 or more!

Tenants were asked: If you were hunting for an apartment, to which newspaper want ad section would you turn first? In Rogers Park 75% of the tenants interviewed preferred the Tribune. Only 23% preferred the second newspaper. In Austin the figures were 69% and 29%. In Jefferson Park, 75% and 25%. And in Grand Crossing, 84% and 16%.

Among the 990 tenants in the 19 city and 2 suburban neighborhoods interviewed the Tribune led the second newspaper 3 to 1! The third newspaper, 19 to 1! The fourth newspaper, 25 to 1! And in several neighborhoods the second and third papers were not mentioned at all!

These figures demonstrate why for years Tribune apartment-to-rent advertising has been getting best results. Tenants rely on the Tribune. Prefer it. Turn to it first when they seek a new apartment. Make Tribune advertising the most productive kind you can use.

SURVEY FACTS

The investigation covered tenants in 157 apartment buildings advertised by 37 agents in various Chicago newspapers. The buildings were selected so as to get a cross-section of Metropolitan Chicago. 19 city and two suburban neighborhoods were included. Rents in the buildings checked ranged from $25 to $275.

1,171 WHISTLES, 30,396 SAFETY PINS FOR PUPILS

Board Keeps Up Purchase of Athletic Supplies.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

As a minor means of reducing expenses, Trustee William D. McJunkin has urged the board of education, without success, to eliminate the purchase of athletic goods this year. He says he favors sports and athletics, but he declares it is impossible to collect in taxes or borrow the $90,180,263 which the budget authorizes to be spent during 1932.

W. D. M'JUNKIN.

Mr. McJunkin estimates that the board wastes $500,000 a year on its supplies, which include physical education supplies. Under this heading—as illustrative of its buying—the board purchased and distributed to the high schools alone last year 30,396 safety pins. There are 138,272 students in the senior and junior high schools. The safety pins are listed as first aid supplies. The board also bought 5,649 spools of zinc oxide adhesive plaster at a cost of $1,149.69.

Year's Supplies Listed.

Among other supplies the board bought and distributed to high schools were 147 "official horns" for athletic events at a cost of $86. Also 140 stop watches at a cost of 1,080 and 1,171 whistles for basketball games at a cost of $286.

The list of physical education supplies distributed to the high schools last year and their cost is given in the following table:

"The amount is relatively small," commented Mr. McJunkin, "but for a year I think we should discontinue the purchase of these supplies. We can use up what we have in the warehouse, and then permit the parents to do this added buying for this year.

"I favor sports and athletics as much as any one, but we haven't the money to buy the supplies, and I see little hope, at present, of being able to borrow it."

BANKHEAD AND BAILEY FACE FIGHT THIS WEEK TO KEEP SENATE JOBS

Washington, D. C., March 20.—(AP)—Decisions involving contests against two southern Democratic senators—Bankhead of Alabama and Bailey of North Carolina—are in prospect this week by the senate elections committee.

Chairman Shortridge today called the committee to meet Tuesday. The amended petition of complaint filed yesterday by George M. Pritchard, Republican, charging fraud in the 1930 North Carolina contest will be considered then.

Senate Democratic leaders so far have been standing firmly by both Bailey and Bankhead and if the party lines up solidly prospects of unseating either are doubtful.

The issue in the North Carolina case before the committee is whether the Pritchard charges form sufficient ground for full investigation by the senate.

The committee will receive Tuesday the divided report of a subcommittee which inquired into the contest of former Senator J. Thomas Heflin against election of Bankhead in 1930. The Republican majority recommended that the seat be declared vacant. The Democrats of the subcommittee disagreed and recommended that Bankhead be permitted to retain the seat.

TWO JAP ARMY OFFICERS PLAN TO FLY PACIFIC

New York, March 20.—(AP)—Two Japanese army officers, Capt. V. Nagoya, and Sergt. K. Ashai, announced today that they would attempt to fly the Pacific ocean within the next thirty days for the $25,000 prize offered by the Tokio newspaper Hochi Shimbun.

Load test flights were made this afternoon in the new Bellanca monoplane they have purchased for the trans-ocean flight.

The ship, powered with a 450 horsepower super-charged Wasp motor and with a gasoline capacity of 1,100 gallons, took the air with 7,000 pounds dead weight, with Stuart Chatwick, chief test pilot for the Bellanca works, at the stick.

Nagoya, who will pilot the ship across the ocean, went along as an observer, as Chatwick circled the field. Numerous other test flights will be made before the two take off for an unannounced destination on the Pacific coast within the next two or three weeks.

DRYS PREVENT JURY TRIAL IN PADLOCK CASES

League Lobbyists Did It, Norris Declares.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—[Special.]—Anti-Saloon league lobbyists, it transpired, obtained a change in the anti-injunction bill passed last week whereby the legislation providing for jury trials in contempt of court proceedings shall not apply to prohibition padlock cases. As a result a person accused of contempt of a court order padlocking premises for violation of the prohibition law will not be entitled to a jury trial.

GEO. W. NORRIS. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Senator George W. Norris [Radical] Rep., Neb.] told how the Anti-Saloon league lobbyists called on him seeking the exemption of padlock cases from the jury trial provision and how the senate conferees finally agreed to the elimination of the senate bill provision of jury trials for all contempts. Mr. Norris refused, however, to name the lobbyists.

Not Fairly Enforced.

"Any man charged with contempt in any court in the United States ought to have a jury trial," said Senator Norris.

"I have said so to the representatives of the Anti-Saloon league who have come to me about this bill. I have said to them, moreover, that in my judgment, prohibitionist that I am, 'you are not as good prohibitionists as I am. Prohibition is on trial. It has lost many of its best friends. We all have to concede that. In my judgment it has not been honestly and fairly enforced at any time since the law was enacted, and if we follow you and say we want a different rule as applied to prohibition cases from what is applied to any other case we are going to lose the support of more good people in this country who will take the other side of the question and demand the repeal of prohibition.'

Dry Cranks and Wet Cranks.

"I am not finding fault with those who wanted to change this bill, because they had a reason for it; there was some reason for it based on logic; but in my judgment the two classes of people who have done more harm to their respective causes—one wet and the other dry—are the wet cranks and the prohibition cranks. If we want to have the people respect the prohibition law, we ought to ask for nothing under that law which we are not willing to ask for under any other law."

The bill as it passed the house was satisfactory to the dry organization. It did not provide for jury trial of prohibition padlock contempts. In the conference committee the house conferees, at the instance of the Anti-Saloon league, insisted on the elimination of the senate provision. Senator John J. Blaine [Radical Rep., Wis.], a wet, was one of the senate conferees, but agreed to the concession, explaining that "while I am opposed to prohibition and do not believe in it, and never have believed in it, if there is any change in the law I want to make it openly and above board when the bill under consideration applies particularly to prohibition."

WOMAN J.P. DROPS HER DUTIES IN KITCHEN TO FINE 72 FOR GAMBLING

Schenectady, N. Y., March 20.—(AP)—Supper was simmering on the stove in Mrs. Mittie Benedict's kitchen last night when a small army of men darkened her front porch. Mrs. Benedict, who is a justice of the peace, went to the door.

"We raided a gambling place and want to arraign these men," announced a state trooper.

There were 72 prisoners. Mrs. Benedict wiped her hands on her apron and ordered them brought in. The proprietor was first to plead.

"Fifty dollars fine," announced Mrs. Benedict unwaveringly. Five employés paid similar fines.

The 66 others she fined $2 each. Then—

"Is that all?" asked Mrs. Benedict.

"That's all, ma'am," replied the trooper.

Mrs. Benedict sniffed the air. "Just in time," she announced. "Now get them out of here in a hurry. If I don't get into that kitchen in another minute those baked potatoes will be burned to a crisp."

"TIRED OF IT ALL"; HE KILLS HIMSELF IN UNDERTAKER'S

R. E. Harmeyer, 75 years old, 1014 East 54th street, last evening entered the undertaking rooms of Charles F. Bilger at 5203 Lake Park avenue and, going into a washroom, shot himself in the chest.

As he staggered out, Bilger asked him why he had shot himself and Harmeyer answered: "Just tired of it all." He was taken to the Illinois Central hospital, where he died soon afterward.

Four sealed letters in his pockets were turned over to attachés of the coroner's office.

JOB CAMPAIGN GETS RESULTS IN SOUTHWEST

The midwestern headquarters of the American Legion's employment campaign, in the Stevens hotel, was informed yesterday that jobs for 634 men had been found in the last twenty-four hours. Sixty communities in Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas and Kansas were covered in the reports.

The Chicago drive, in which the Federation of Labor, women's clubs and various civic organizations are cooperating with the Legion for "the reemployment of men and money" will be continued this week, it was announced, with 10,000 volunteer workers canvassing all employed citizens and property owners for pledges.

A meeting of the workers in the 22d and 23d wards will be held tonight in the Legion headquarters at 2401 South Kedzie avenue.

New Board of Trade Legion Band Attracts Park Crowd

The newly organized band of the Board of Trade post, No. 304, American Legion, attracted a crowd in Grant park yesterday with a rehearsal, its first public appearance. Armin F. Hand, leader of the band, said that by Memorial day the band would have 100 members.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

LEGISLATING RUIN.

The revolt of the house of representatives from its patriotic and responsible leadership threatens the nation with the greatest crisis since the assassination of Lincoln. It is of deadly significance that the members who fought so savagely to wreck the national finances were led by the New York representative, La Guardia, who is alien in mind and spirit from Americanism, who has no loyalty to our form of government, and shows every indication that he is willing to destroy it and American freedom from tyranny. That he and his followers should be able to stampede the house of representatives against the reasoned protests of American leaders of both parties, leaders of approved character and seasoned judgment, is a challenge to the nation, and the nation will demand an immediate restoration of common sense and a return to responsible leadership.

If reason does not return to the membership and the preposterous taxes are imposed upon the already overburdened nation they will dry up the sources of revenue as a burning wind destroys a harvest.

The destructive folly of the proposed tax measures has been fully and forcefully presented to the house. Chairman Crisp of the ways and means committee pointed out that even with the higher rates the income tax will not yield enough revenue to balance the budget. The returns filed on March 15 bear him out. Congressman Rainey warned the house of the real meaning of these measures and of the spirit which proposes them as heading the American people toward communism. Chiperfield of Illinois strove to bring the house back to reason.

"You talk about conscription of wealth," he said, "but we can only put the labor of this country to work through the wealth of the United States. And if you confiscate the source of employment you will cause more unemployment." But the runaway house paid no heed.

Every page of the record discloses the purpose of the house to soak those whom congressmen describe as the rich. At just what point poverty becomes riches is not clear. The house has raised its committee's schedule of rates beginning with incomes of $8,000, from which it might be concluded that an $8,000 income is evidence of great wealth. The idea is that by confiscating a growing share of the earnings of all who receive more than $8,000 a year the poor will somehow be benefited. The higher income tax is justified as a punitive measure and a social corrective.

Congressmen refuse to face the fact that crushing taxation of those of moderate means can only result in decreased purchasing power, which in turn can only retard business recovery; while punitive taxation of larger accumulations of capital will inevitably drive them into tax exempt and therefore relatively unproductive investments. At a time when the crying need of the country is for purchasing power and for capital investment in industry, both of which would provide jobs for the unemployed, congress proposes to restrict buying and make capital investment as difficult as possible.

Congress should understand that while it can smash every reviving hope of American recovery, by no form of taxation, national, state or local or all together, can the tax eaters and radicals extort fourteen billion dollars, nor yet ten billion dollars, a year from the people. They can waste the land like a plague of locusts, they can tax and confiscate by every device financial quackery or radical theory invents, but they cannot draw mounting billions from a nation whose powers of production their greed and folly have paralyzed and whose capital resources they have diverted and exhausted.

MORE MACHINE GUNS FOR OUR ARMY.

Additional machine guns are to be issued to infantry, cavalry, and engineer units in the United States army, and every soldier is to be trained in the use of these weapons. The change has been ordered by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, with the purpose of increasing the fire power of American combatant units both in offense and defense.

The general is no mere classroom soldier, as this order exemplifies. His reading in the field of military science has been reinforced by his combat experience at the front in France. He well knows that the most effective of all weapons used in the last war was the machine gun. It was immensely useful in the offense and it was incomparable on defense.

Its value was demonstrated as recently as in the Chinese defense of Shanghai. Without machine guns the Chinese could not have held out for longer than a few days. With them they resisted the Japanese successfully for a month. An army well supplied with machine guns and automatic rifles and accustomed to the handling of these weapons in the field will have an advantage in fire power over an army less well equipped, the importance of which can scarcely be exaggerated.

The United States is fortunate in having as the chief of its army staff a man who knows war at first hand. It is to be regretted that altogether too many staff officers do not share this experience. They know war only as it may be learned from books and lectures. How costly a staff dominated by men without experience in action can be is well indicated by the chronicles of the world war. If the staff officers had known what they were ordering their men to do there would have been no such hecatombs as there were at the Somme, at Verdun, along the Chemin des Dames, in the Argonne, and at a dozen other bloody fields.

Perhaps the most significant incident of the entire war was the emotional collapse of that staff officer who eventually visited the muddy fields over which he had ordered men by thousands to advance to certain death. When he realized what he had done in his ignorant folly he was unnerved. His blunder, born of inexperience and false pride, was repeated in greater or less degree a hundred times. The presence of a MacArthur at the head of the staff is the best assurance that this country can have that such fatal blunders will not be committed by our command.

SCHOOL DEBTS OF DISHONOR.

The plight of the Chicago school teachers and other unpaid school employés is probably without parallel in the record of American municipalities. A large body of self-respecting, self-supporting, intelligent and important men and women, essential public workers upon whose work the community theoretically bases its confidence in its own future stability, is destitute and dependent upon the most precarious means of living. The situation seems to have found an angle of repose in hopelessness. By the leniency of creditors, many of whom are in a bad way themselves, and the generosity and help of friends who have been able to help, these unpaid public employés have managed to make shift. Their debts have increased and their supplies have run low, but they have managed to keep going without money.

Shoes have worn out, clothing has gone threadbare, food runs low, rent is overdue, medical and dental needs are deferred and every corner is scraped for resources, but credit is about exhausted and the precarious aids are getting thinner. Nevertheless the teachers' morale has been sustained with remarkable cheerfulness with the help of some understanding public sympathy, but in the face of considerable indifference. There have been times when there could be two opinions as to the wisdom of school policies supported by the teachers. There can be two opinions as to some of their ideas now, but there cannot be two opinions as to the shamefulness of the condition in which they are put because of the failure of the board of education to give them their pay.

It is impossible to find any excuse for the board. If it is helpless now it is because its conduct for years has been such as to make any financial adversity a disaster, but justified condemnation of the worse than futile trustees will not provide the teachers with a roof, clothes and food.

If it were possible to place the schools in a receivership that might be the way out, making the back pay of the teachers and other employés the first claim upon school revenue. The maintenance of the schools, however important, must be a second consideration. Chicago has no right to have schools in the conditions it imposes upon the men and women who must keep them open.

A CHALLENGE TO THE DRY BOSSES.

Congressman Britten is to be congratulated upon his measure to amend the Jones five and ten law, not only because the amendment is desirable in itself but because it will provide a test of the present strength of dry bigotry in congress. The Jones act was a prize exhibit of the fanatical aspect of prohibitionism and had much to do with awakening the public to the full significance of the dry régime. It expressed the perverted moral values as well as the ruthlessness of the professional and the extremist drys and revealed how little check upon their excesses the more moderate supporters of prohibition were likely to apply.

Congressman Britten proposes that the law shall distinguish between casual and minor offenders and habitual or commercialized offenders. In the former cases the amendment substitutes fines not to exceed $500 and/or jail terms not to exceed six months for the $10,000 fines and five year terms possible under the present law. This, Mr. Britten explains, will prevent heavy fines and sentences by bigoted judges or juries for such offenses as drinking in public, carrying a flask, home brewing or distillation in quantities less than a gallon or for transporting less than a gallon in an automobile.

The fate of this amendment will be watched with interest and the vote upon it, if it is brought to a vote, as we may assume it will be, must show, we think, the irreducible minimum in the present congress of die-hard prohibitionism. Perhaps the Anti-Saloon league bosses will not think it wise to defend their child. Congressman Britten has done well to confront them with the alternatives of a defense which will discredit them still further or a retreat which will acknowledge that the revolt against their tyranny is no longer to be defied.

Editorial of the Day

"THE FRONT PAGE IS POISON TO US."

[New York Evening Post.]

Gangsters have taken a step up in the world as a result of the Lindbergh kidnaping—and they have taken a step downward, too. They stepped downward into a deeper public hatred when the country sensed that the great increase in the cruel industry of kidnaping was due to the crime machinery created by prohibition. They themselves felt this. Al Capone, from his cell, did what he could to dissociate bootlegging from kidnapings. The press took up his tip and interviewed gang leaders on the subject. For the first time everything these outlaws had to say was solemnly set down and respectfully read. And now two of them are elevated to the ranks of ambassadors of the law. One of the most interesting aspects of this new "publicity" is their attitude toward it. They do not want it. They do not like it. They say that this advertisement exalts them to such eminences amongst their fellows that they are in danger of an envious assassination. "The front page is poison to us," said Spitale. "From now on I'll be watched not only by the newspapers but by the gangsters." Was there ever a better argument for the printing of crime news in the press? The good people who would have the newspapers omit all mention of criminals and lawlessness will please observe this plain statement that such publicity is "poisonous" to those who are supposed to be exalted by it.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

HERE WE ARE right in the middle of the campaign to nominate candidates for governor of the proud old commonwealth of Illinois, and the populace are showing about as much excitement over it as they would over a race between an ice wagon and an old fashioned hearse. The trouble is that too many of us are either watching the stock ticker, digging fresh holes back of the barn to hide our hoardings, or else wondering how much we'll have left after we pay the new government surtax to get all het up over a state election. Excuse us, candidates, these be parlous times.

THIS IS MONDAY! We always hail Monday with joy, for a whole week lies before us on Monday. A whole week in which Mr. Garner can whisper to us whether he is wet or dry. It may not be this week. It may not be next week. But some week Mr. Garner is going to tell us. We hope.

INEVITABLE.

She is one who
Strains her eyes
Far ahead on Distant skies;

For whom wind can Never press
With a strong Enough caress;

For whom every
Hilltop lifting
Into far clouds,
White and shifting,

Must be reached, and Roads that bend
Must be followed
To the end.

But she is a Woman still—
She cannot Escape at will.

What might tear with Quick demands,
Hers are woman's Heart and hands . . .

Some man's arms will Hold her fast
'Til his dreams are Hers at last.

FERRY ADAMS.

WE VERNAL EQUINOXED yesterday at exactly 1:54¾ p. m. and it is now spring, officially, scientifically, popularly, and by common consent. Public acknowledgment of the arrival of spring must be made or otherwise the happy residents would never know it, so beautifully springlike are our winters since the climate changed. All winter long the sun not only beamed down brightly and sweetly but it fairly gushed and the green grass grew all around, all around. The roses out in the yards and the gardens—well, it was just one dogoned bloom after another, and the young orange trees made the whole winter long seem just a church wedding. Ah, what a climate! What a climate! (Loz Onglaize papers please copy.)

HOLD, FRIENDS! ere you condemn too harshly those who would dance on the sands in Rogers Park in the altogether. They may be members of a nudist cult, as alleged, and again they may be in training for the day when the rest of their clothes have gone to the pawnshop. In these days, friends, let us judge with exceeding caution.

PRETTY WORDS.

Tomorrow, dear, I'll don a gown
Of moon's ray edged with seal
And little slippers that will flaunt
A sunbeam in the heel.

Tomorrow I shall wear some stars
And stardust in my hair,
And maybe (you can't prove I won't)
I'll bind a rainbow there.

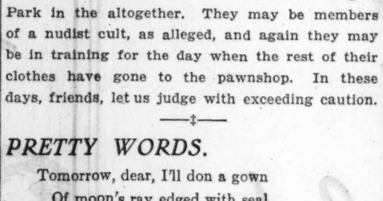
Tomorrow for a coach I'll drive
A comet of the sky,
And ride through sapphire spaces where
The silver planets lie.

Tomorrow you will say of me:
"Too bad that she is gone,
So much of life was sweet to her—
She'd rather have stayed on."

R. ALBRIGHT.

WHAT IN THE WORLD happened to the Japanese war? It dropped down out of a clear sky, raged mightily, and then folded up and skipped down a hole. It ended so quickly that the League of Nations barely had a chance to yell, "Look! we stopped the war," before it all disappeared—zing—just like that.

EVENTS OF THE DAY.



Lopping Jobholders Off the Government Pay Roll in Washington.—Lykell, Photo.

AND THIS BLUE MONDAY today ushers in likewise the last week of Lent. Which is just too bad because now we can explain that we gave up this or that for Lent, but next week they'll know that it was because we haven't got the jack.

ABOUT THE ONLY BUILDINGS they don't tear down nowadays for open air garages are government bureaus, speakeasies, and jails.

OCCUPATIONAL DERMATITIS.

OLD, time honored, almost classical eczema seems to be doomed. Once reputed to be one of the most prevalent diseases, it is now not much more than a name. The long list of ointments bearing names in which the word eczema enters are due for second christening. People are having the usual quota of skin troubles, but their ailments no longer go by the name eczema.

No other tissue compares with the skin in the amount of insult to which it is exposed. It must work in contact with dry air, while every body cell works best when it is in contact with moisture. It is robbed of its grease as well as its moisture. It is exposed to great variations of temperature—at times to temperature of more than one hundred; at other times, to less than zero. The shift from hot to cold may be very sudden. Its position subjects it to physical injury. It is on the firing line when infection is most in evidence.

And finally it is subjected to an unlimited variety of chemical poisons. The conditions of work are constantly increasing the hazards of occupational dermatitis. It has been estimated that one-twentieth of all the skin troubles are the direct result of occupation.

The improvement in the working conditions is more than offset by the development of new industries that threaten with dermatitis. At one time it was estimated that one-third of the employés who worked with linseed oil and meal, who fabricated insect powders, and who engaged in the aniline oil trades had some form of skin troubles. Now the factories making these products have facilities for, and otherwise protect, their employés and, in consequence, their workers do not have much skin trouble. But as an offset there are numerous new trades in which the fact that there is a skin hazard is not understood by either the employer or employé.

Dr. J. E. Kiley has some simple advice as to means of prevention that can be made use of by persons who work with chemicals. The first is to be provided with a cream ointment or salve, and to apply this to exposed skin before starting work and after the day's job is over.

The second is to do all that is practicable to keep chemicals from covering the skin. In some trades it is feasible to wear gloves, either rubber gloves or other material. In some instances tools rather than the bare hands are used in the material. There is more than one process in the course of manufacture where the operator can make use of some knack to spare his hands. A third procedure is for each floor boss to inspect the skin, especially of the face and hands, of all employés for early evidence of skin trouble; to see that the overalls, the hands, the arms, the finger nails, and the hair are kept as clean as possible, and to see that cuts, burns, bruises, scratches, and beginning eruptions are not neglected.

SUN BATH SUBSTITUTES.

M. S. writes: I am 91 years old. My spine was injured many years ago. The doctor says sun baths would be fine for me. How often should I take them, and how long each time?

REPLY.

In cold weather a fairly satisfactory home method consists in stripping naked and standing before a bright fire in an open fireplace for at least a half hour daily. Take most of the light and heat on your back. If you have an infra red lamp use it instead of the fire. Use more than one-half hour daily. Exposure to light from a good high voltage electric light should be of service. When the weather is suitable expose as much of your skin as possible to direct sunlight in the open air. Begin with ten minute exposures.

NOT MUCH DANGER.

N. S. C. writes: I am planning on marrying a man in whose family there is tuberculosis. He is not actively so, I know there is danger of my getting it and also know it is hereditary, but what I want to know is, does it ever run out, such as insanity? Would it be possible for me to live normally without any danger?

REPLY.

Tuberculosis is not hereditary. Adults are not very likely to catch it from adults. Tuberculosis in both husband and wife is rather unusual. It is possible to so live as to avoid danger.

MINORITY A DEFENSE.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I live in Wisconsin and have signed a contract with a correspondence school in Chicago. I have almost completed the course, but I have only paid for one-eighth of it. 1. I am a minor. Can they force me to pay? 2. Would the fact that I am married alter my minority status? 3. Would I have to pay court fees, etc.? S. J. M.

1. Minority would be a defense to liability on the contract. It is sometimes possible to hold a minor to the reasonable value of necessaries which he has received, this depending upon additional facts as to whether the parent is supplying the minor's wants. It seems probable that you cannot be held to such reasonable value.
2. No.
3. If judgment were recovered against you you would have to pay the court costs.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TAXES.

Bernard, Ia., March 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If a world war veteran, receiving compensation, manages to save some: [1] does he have to pay taxes on that? I understand people are taxed to raise this and it couldn't be reasonable to tax it again. 2. At any rate, veterans suffering from disabilities are exempt, are they not? D. A.

1. Such savings would be personal property and also would be income. The question whether they would be subject to personal property tax and income tax and of whether the personal property tax would be worth collecting would depend on what additional assets and income were involved.
2. No.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

COURT PROCEEDINGS NECESSARY.

Chicago, March 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Our tenants are a month in arrears in the payment of rent. They are able to pay. We do not wish to start court proceedings for the sum of $60 so would like to know if it is lawful to retain their furniture until such bill is settled? E. C.

Court proceedings would be necessary in order to hold their furniture.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The Japanese legation received a telegram which says the universal expression in Japan is that the war with China must be vigorously pursued until it is brought to a final conclusion. The diet has manifested the greatest willingness to grant everything asked by the government. The two houses by unanimous vote passed the bills relating to war expenditure, which involve a total sum of $150,000,000.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—A Shanghai dispatch says negotiations for peace between China and Japan have been reopened.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—A Tientsin dispatch to the Times says the report is current that 17 Japanese warships under Admiral Ito have assembled at Pingyang inlet. The Chinese fleet is reported to be at Wei Hai Wei.

CHEMULPO, Corea.—A detachment of 1,300 wounded Japanese arrived here and there is a large number of wounded at Seoul. In addition 2,100 wounded Japanese have been sent to Japan. The Chinese are mobilizing a great force at Kirem and also gathering a strong force at Pow-Ting-Fu.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—A Tientsin dispatch says the Chinese officials report that a battle occurred between the Chinese and Japanese armies near Yi Chow on Oct. 22 and that the Japanese were repulsed, with a loss of 3,000 men on each side. Japanese warships are reported to be cruising off the Shantung promontory or to the south of it, to waylay Chinese transports. The Chinese fleet left Wei Hai Wei yesterday with orders to attack the Japanese squadron.

YOKOHAMA, Oct. 24.—It is reported that the second Japanese army began operations for the capture of Port Arthur yesterday.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—A Tokio dispatch says that Field Marshal Count Yamagata has telegraphed to the war office that a detachment of 1,600 Japanese infantry crossed the Yalu river on Oct. 24 and attacked the Chinese force. The enemy fled. The Japanese advance columns are marching on Lishiven. Later advices by the way of Yokohama show the Japanese army advanced to the attack of the Chinese at Kuilenstod. The battle is now proceeding.

reported to have arrived at the mouth of the Liao river below Newchwang. They landed a party Saturday night, but after reconnoitering the coast line without molestation the Japanese soldiers reëmbarked.

LONDON.—A correspondent of the Times at Newchwang cables as follows: "According to information received here the reason the Vladivostok forts did not reply to the bombardment by the Japanese was because the batteries were not provided with guns. Since the bombardment parties have been working night and day to place guns in position. The bombardment destroyed the Linevitch battery. The Russian losses were slight because the batteries were deserted. The same conditions prevail at Vladivostok as at Port Arthur. The supply of provisions there is running short and the populace is panic stricken. The ice is considered the only real protection."

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 21, 1916.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Francisco Villa may be forced into a fight with American troops within the next thirty-six hours, if reports coming to Gen. Funston's headquarters, both from Gen. Pershing and from Mexican sources, are correct. Gen. Pershing reported today that Villa had been reported defeated by Mexican government troops near Cruces and that he was marching northward in the retreat. Gen. Pershing's report was followed, however, by the unofficial report that Villa was still fighting at Namiquipa, south of Cruces. If the Carranza forces win in the fighting that was said to be continuing late today Villa will have to move northward along a road over which a detachment of American troops is riding southward or leave the road and head for the Santa Maria mountains that parallel the road to the east or to the Oriental range on the west side. Retreat, according to the report, is impracticable because of the presence in the rear of Mexican troops who forced him to turn northward from Cruces and Namiquipa.

COLUMBUS, N. M.—Six biplanes of the first aero squadron, under the command of Capt. B. D. Foulois, arrived today to scout in the mountains for Villa. Two machines left Columbus last night and one this morning. Four passed the night in the vicinity of La Ascencion. Additional troops arrived here to take the place of the 1,000 men sent from the temporary base to pursue Villa.

LONDON. — A new and powerful German attack, this time between Avocourt and Malancourt, west of the Meuse, resulted in heavy losses to the Germans, according to the official communication issued in Paris. The attack was characterized by the use of jets of liquid flame. At one point, east of the Malancourt wood, the Germans made slight progress. Paris admitted. An earlier German attack on Cote de Poivre was repulsed. The French likewise failed in an attack near the village of Vaux.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 21, 1904.

LONDON.—Japan has landed or attempted to land troops at Helena bay, half way between Port Arthur and Newchwang, and only six miles from the railroad. Russian troops are now being hurried to Fuchow, twenty-two miles south of Helena bay, to resist the expected landing. Newchwang is being hurriedly placed in a position of defense, as a Japanese force is expected to land on the coast west of that city. Four Japanese gunboats, three cruisers, and two transports are

WHEN BISMARCK CHANGED HIS MIND.

Chicago, March 17.—Some people seem to think it an indication of mental weakness to admit a change in one's opinion on important national questions. Such a fear is now confronting many Americans—including congressmen and United States senators—whose former belief in the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act has been shattered by the revelations of the serious evils which have grown up under those enactments. And yet they hesitate to confess publicly their loss of faith.

I am wondering if the citation of an historical example, with the reasons for the altered stand of one of the world's most famous men on a national issue, might lend them courage or a staff on which to lean?

In the bitter debates over the Polish question a generation ago Prince Bismarck, then chancellor of the German empire, made an eloquent speech to the reichstag defining his plans and views. Readers of German history will recall it.

Eugen Richter, the great radical leader of the time, whose encyclopedic memory was unmatched, arose from the floor on the conclusion of the address and brought the "parallel column" to bear on the prince's remarks. "The chancellor has been eloquent as usual," he sallied, "but I call the attention of this house to the fact that his opinions today are diametrically opposed to his views ten years ago. This vacillation betrays weakness." And then followed a marvelous presentation from memory of the chancellor's former speech.

The reichstag, according to the records, was deeply stirred and it looked for a few moments as though Bismarck's plan would fall of adoption. He waited for quiet and stepped forward from his chair to reply.

"I have listened with interest to the quotations from my former address and the charges by the honorable member. Everything he says is true. But he fails to observe one thing. Times have changed; developments which I could not foresee have proved my former contentions wrong. With changing times and developments I, too, have changed. The man who fails to recognize altered conditions and act accordingly, the man who fails to advance with his times and adopt saner views, would have no right to be head of a German farm, to say nothing of being chancellor of the German empire."

Cheers greeted him, and his bill passed.

AN OLD SIGN.

Chicago, March 15.—Building wreckers are now demolishing the building at 231-235 West Madison street, thus leaving the west wall of No. 229 exposed. I notice on this wall an old sign, reading as follows: "I. E. HIRSH & CO., WHITE GOODS, HOSIERY, NOTIONS, ETC."

The building being demolished gives evidence of great age, and as 229 must be older, in view of the above sign, I am curious to know the date this firm was in business, as I am unable to locate any evidence in the present business directory. J. F. TAYLOR.

FEES, ETC.

Chicago, March 15.—Facts indicate that the opinion expressed by Joseph Nathan in regard to a radio talk by Judge Michael Feinberg, was very much unwarranted. Does he expect a good man, who is championing the rights of the people who have no voice in closed banks, to hide his accomplishments under a bushel and let the crooked borrowers continue to dodge responsibility?

Doesn't he know Judge Feinberg had nothing whatever to do with the appointing of attorneys and receivers and came into the picture after the appointed officers could not collect money due the depositors of closed banks?

Why criticize the fees of the attorneys? Their fees may be very low when expenses and work involved are considered. JOHN E. WERTHEIMER.

HER MAN'S COLLAR.

Chicago, March 15.—"Just a Bride" is having the same trouble all of us have had ironing collars on white shirts. Put a wee bit of starch in the collars. (Don't ask hubby if he likes it.) Iron wrong side first. This way all wrinkles will be where they cannot be seen. After eight years of ironing shirts I consider myself an expert. I believe I could iron Mayor Cermak's to please him.

BRIDE OF 1924.

RELIABLE INFORMATION.

Chicago, March 15.—I have read your editorial of March 5, entitled "Money Wasted," criticizing the bulletin of the Russell Sage Foundation dealing with poor relief expenditures in various cities of the United States. It is extremely difficult to understand the position that this report represents money "frittered away on . . . bureaucratic nonsense . . ." Why is it necessary to gather data for and compile a population census? Is there any good reason to collect, record, and publish vital statistics? Is the money spent in gathering and compiling information to show trends in governmental expenditures a foolish waste, since for years it has been "pretty generally known" that such expenditures were increasing? And what use are authentic data, expensively and elaborately published, about business and economic trends? If such reliable information as the foregoing is useful within the fields to which the information relates, how can there be just criticism leveled against the collection and use of authentic data relating to expenditures for the relief of human suffering because of unemployment or other economic or social causes?

The business of extending assistance to depressed and suffering humanity is a serious and important business. It is an expensive business. In fact, it is all expense, to be justified only in the preservation of life and the reëstablishment of dependent individuals and families to positions of economic independence. Comparisons of methods and other costs of this humanitarian "business" in industrial communities of this country, based upon authentic data reliably and independently obtained on a national scope, are essential to the efficient and economic performance of these services.

The Russell Sage Foundation is universally recognized as an impartial and authoritative research organization in the field of humanitarian relief. Through an arrangement with the social agencies of a number of the important cities of the United States, the foundation, at a moderate expense, receives accurate data, including the volume of relief and its cost, systematically compiles these data, and supplies them in useful form. During the emergency of the last two years the relief agencies of this country have been attempting to meet problems of unemployment and relief, and the pioneering work done by the Russell Sage Foundation in centralizing such information and making it available for use has been of the greatest value to every one who is struggling to meet the demands of the present crisis.

ELIZABETH H. WEBSTER,
Acting Director Council of Social Agencies of Chicago.

MORE AND FUNNIER.

Chicago, March 14. — Every now and then my TRIBUNE does something that delights my soul. One was the editorial paragraph on the difference in reaction to ruin between the French and the Nordic person; one was the editorial comment on the "hysterical juvenility" of the Japanese; one the column of dispatches from the outstanding confines of the world offering to leave prison and go hunt Col. Lindbergh's baby, and, always, Westbrook Pegler. More evils are spiked by laughing at them than by shrieking at them. Please give us more laughs. MADGE CARLOCK.

SACKCLOTH.

Chicago, March 6.—I have always thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated the excellently constructed editorials in THE TRIBUNE and the editor's well nigh perfect usage of the English language. Hence I was somewhat grieved today when I noted the phrase, "may seem paradoxical," in the opening sentence of one of today's editorials, which reads: "Although the remark may seem paradoxical, the German election was a victory for conservatism."

A paradox is a statement seemingly absurd; therefore the editor is guilty of a pleonasm in the sentence quoted above. In the statement referred to it is tautologically equivalent to saying: "It may seem a seeming absurdity." The phrase is akin to the combination, "Do you mean to insinuate?" and other phrases of that type. J. VAN.

CHINA MAY DEAL DIRECT WITH JAPS ON MANCHURIA

League's Envoys Repeat an Old Proposal.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, March 21 [Monday].—That China and Japan may engage in direct negotiations on the Manchurian question without foreign participation in the parleys is probably the first tentative suggestion from the league of nations' commission now in Shanghai.

This suggestion was made 60 days ago and was rejected by China though such a course has been advocated by Tokio since September, but it is now believed that if Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, virtual dictator of China, feels his position strong enough he may acquiesce.

Failing success on this line, the commission faces a task of tremendous difficulty as far as evolving terms satisfactory to both China and Japan, and even greater difficulty as far as preserving the league's prestige.

No Chance for Chang.

It is generally conceded now that the return to Manchuria of Chang Hsueh-liang, ousted governor, and his corrupt supporters is impossible even if the Japanese consented. Equally impossible would be the commission's upholding the continuance of the present puppet régime of Henry Pu-yi, former boy emperor of China.

The only other solution envisioned now would be Japan's agreeing to a painless dissolution of the Pu-yi government in exchange for formal Chinese recognition of all Japanese Manchurian treaties and installation of a semi-autonomous government in Manchuria headed by Chinese administrators acceptable to both China and Japan.

If this scheme is ever adopted it would probably involve the substitution of American and European advisers, ousting Japanese advisers, and also permanent league observers residing in Manchuria and reporting frequently to Geneva the degree which China and Japan are observing the new status agreements.

Use Private Train.

The commission will probably leave Shanghai for Nanking on March 25, and after three days at Nanking will go to Peiping. A private train, with 17 carriages and with two companies of Chang Hsueh-liang's bodyguards as escorts, are now assembling at Pukow to carry the delegates northward. The commission intends to remain ten days at Peiping and then proceed to Tientsin and Dairen by sea, after which they will spend three or four weeks in traveling through Manchuria.

REDS SEIZE RADIO STATION IN CUBA; 'CALL' A REVOLT

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, Cuba, March 20.—Radio fans throughout the island were startled to hear at 12:25 o'clock this afternoon the voice of a new announcer who cried: "We are the communists of Havana. Down with President Machado! Strike on March 24!"

Investigation by the police revealed the statements had been broadcast from station CMCF. The manager in charge of the station said that a gray automobile carrying seven persons arrived at the station and, interrupting the musical program being broadcast, lined both performers and station operators up against a wall at the point of revolvers and proceeded to broadcast the subversive message.

Antolin Corral, manager of the station, and a trio of musicians who were broadcasting at the time have been detained and placed at the disposition of military authorities. However, Secretary of the Interior Octavio Zubizarreta this afternoon said that the government is well prepared to put down any attempt at public disorders.

GERMAN CITY NEARS BANKRUPTCY; 250,000 'DOLERS' DRAIN FUNDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ESSEN, Germany, March 20.—More than 250,000 people, or 40 per cent of the entire population of the city of Essen, are living on public funds, according to official figures.

Each of these quarter of a million people, unemployed and small pensioners, receive just enough to keep them from starving. In a very few cases the dole exceeds $13 a month, but in many cases it is below that sum. As a large portion of the dole is paid by the community, and only a part borne by the state and reich, the city of Essen is threatened with bankruptcy.

Essen lies in the heart of Germany's industrial center, the Ruhr district. It is the seat of the Krupp company the former kaiser's former cannon factory which is now manufacturing locomotives, sewing machines and other peace time machinery.

MAKE LOTTERIES LEGAL, IS PLEA TO PARLIAMENT

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 20.—While the United States postoffice is endeavoring to suppress lotteries, the British parliament will be asked to legalize them.

Under a rule of the house of commons allowing ten minute discussion, Sir William Davison tomorrow will ask leave to introduce a bill to authorize "raising money by means of lotteries for charitable, scientific, and artistic purposes, or any public improvement."

The bill is backed by several Conservatives and also by E. A. Strauss, Liberal National. It cannot, however, progress unless it is unexpectedly adopted by the government.

CHANNEL ISLAND PLACED ON SALE; OWNER IS BOSS

LONDON, March 20.—(AP)—Brecqhou, one of the smaller channel islands, described as a "paradise" and a "gem set in an azure sea," has been advertised for sale in London.

It is a little kingdom in itself, 160 acres in area. The owner is his own taxing and licensing authority, and is entitled to a seat in the parliament of Sark.

There are only two buildings on Brecqhou—a stone house and a four room bungalow. The buyer will have to produce his own electricity and draw his water from a well. There are plenty of fish and rabbits, and the taxes levied total only $10 a year in normal times.

Peace Negotiations Deadlocked.

SHANGHAI, March 21 [Monday].—(AP)—Negotiations for peace in the Shanghai area were widely reported today to be deadlocked over withdrawal of Japanese forces from Hongkew, one provision of a three point basis of discussions. The suggested terms for an armistice follow:

1. Chinese troops shall remain on their present lines some 20 miles around Shanghai.

2. Japanese forces shall withdraw into the international settlement and from the roads outside the settlement in the Hongkew district, where Japanese before the recent hostilities had extensive holdings.

3. A neutral commission with neutral members shall supervise the Japanese withdrawal and take over administration of the evacuated area.

Dispatches from Tokio indicated the Japanese disapproved of item No. 2 as nullifying the purpose of all their activities around Shanghai.

Japs Strengthen Line.

Meanwhile Japanese military forces were shortening their lines northwest of Shanghai from the Yangtze river to the Shanghai-Nanking railway. Minor withdrawals from the most advanced Japanese positions to the west were going on, but a stronger and more permanent line was being established just west of Chenju, and almost due north to the Yangtze.

With new instructions in hand Quo Tai-Chi, China's vice minister for foreign affairs, and Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japan's minister to China, prepared to resume their discussions where they left off on Saturday night, with the ministers of the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy participating. All the interested parties reiterated their optimism for an imminent peaceful solution, but it was evident that the chances for quick achievement of a settlement hung in the balance.

Order U. S. Warships Home.

The seventeenth destroyer division consisting of the Tracey, Borie, Macleish, Simpson, McCormick, and Truxton, will leave Manila April 18 for the navy yard at Mare island, California, where they will be placed in "the reserve pool" of the battle force.

Submarine division 9, consisting of the S-30 to S-35, inclusive, and the submarine tender Beaver will leave Manila May 2 for Pearl Harbor, T. H., where the submarines will be placed in reserve commission and the Beaver will act as tender for submarine bases there. The carrier Jason now acting as an aircraft tender will leave Manila April 2 for the Puget sound navy yard, where she will be decommissioned. The aircraft carrier Langley will replace the Jason with the Asiatic squadron.

BRITISH QUEEN 'PLAYS' CORNET AND MARCHES FOR HER GRANDCHILD

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 20.—Bandmaster H. W. Twichin, leader of the Salvation Army band, which entertained King George and Queen Mary and thousands of others outside Buckingham palace at lunchtime today, relates an amusing story of an audience he had with the king and queen when summoned to the royal apartments after the concert.

Twichin, who on week days manages a sausage firm, says Princess Elizabeth, who had been listening to the concert with her grandparents, showed great curiosity in his cornet and that the queen, laughingly taking the instrument, marched for her entertainment across the room playing an imaginary solo.

In the course of the concert the queen asked for "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" to be played, and the king's request was "O, Love That Will Not Let Me Go."

RUSSIA SETS UP BUREAU TO CHECK FOREIGN VISITORS

MOSCOW, March 20.—(AP)—The government of Josef Stalin today decided to set up a new immigration bureau under the labor commissariat to supervise the entry and departure of all foreigners during the new five year plan, ending in 1937.

This decision followed an announcement that foreigners coming to Russia merely for curiosity or to hunt jobs would no longer be granted tourist visas. It was explained today that the new bureau's chief function would be to keep out those wanderers because no accomodations are available for them.

A. M. Tsikjon, the labor commissar, announced today that a group of Americans, numbering less than 100 who came here recently on temporary tourist visas hoping to find jobs, would be permitted to remain and would get government aid in finding work. Meanwhile, the jobless Americans who have run out of funds are being supplied with meals and lodging by Intourist, the official Russian tourist bureau. Tsikjon added that in the future job seekers will be sold only round trip tickets.

IN ADVERTISING, AS IN EVERYTHING ELSE, YOU GET WHAT YOU PAY FOR

People don't spend their money in the same way year after year unless they are getting their money's worth. When experienced landlords and rental agents concentrate their advertising in one newspaper year after year, it's the best testimony you could have that that newspaper produces desirable tenants at low cost.

Chicago landlords, as far back as the records go, have bought more apartment to rent advertising in the Chicago Tribune than in any other Chicago newspaper. Today they give the Tribune more rental advertising than they give to all other Chicago newspapers combined!

In advertising, as in everything else, you get what you pay for. The best way to rent apartments in Chicago is through Tribune Want Ads. Let the Tribune help keep your apartments occupied and your income steady during 1932!

CHILE ENFORCES BONUS LAW FOR FIRED WORKERS

Business Houses Oppose New Social Legislation.

BY NORMAN INGREY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VALPARAISO, Chile, March 20.—Chile has become the paradise of the employé as a result of the government's order to the courts to strictly enforce what is considered to be the most advanced social legislation in the world.

It includes compulsory retirement funds, indemnities for dismissed workers, extra life insurance, unemployment relief and medical provision payments, and the abolition of all night work except in the case of daily newspapers. United efforts by employers and foreign chambers of commerce have failed to alleviate what they consider the most burdensome clauses of the law. On the other hand, the government has just issued a stern warning to labor inspectors to see that its provisions are carried out.

Laborers Are Exempt.

The law stipulates that everybody, from the manager to the office boy, who has desk accommodation in an office, is an employé and that there must be a written contract with state indorsement to that effect. Only partners with capital interest in a business and laborers receiving a daily wage are exempt from this status.

Commission agents, though they may work for more than one party, are considered as employés. Time sheets must be kept in all offices and bankers, bakers, reporters and everybody else must sign them. If more than 48 hours are recorded for one week, the employé has a right to extra pay.

Eighty-five per cent of the employés' staff in any one business must be of Chilean nationality. Many foreign companies attempted to escape this irksome obligation by flooding their offices with boys. The government thereupon amended the law, demanding that 85 per cent of the pay roll must go to Chileans.

How Retirement Fund Works.

The general retirement fund for all employés operates as follows: each individual fund is opened with half of the first month's salary after which the law compels the employer to deduct five per cent from each monthly pay check and to supplement it by an equal contribution from his own pocket. Credit notes are passed to the employé every half year, but these compulsory savings cannot be touched until the employé is 50 years old unless he elects to buy a house through state facilities, or loses his job. In the latter case, he can draw monthly on the funds to the extent of 60 per cent of his former salary until the money is exhausted.

All profits over and above eight per cent allowed by the government to commercial firms must be reported under the law and 20 per cent of the surplus divided among the employés, though a limit is fixed to individual participation at three months' salary. Twenty-five per cent of this special bonus, however, must be contributed by the employé to his retirement fund.

Compulsory life insurance is demanded of all employés. A minimum of $1,000 must be carried. The premiums are deducted by the employer from the pay check and paid to the insurance company. In addition there are monthly deductions for health insurance and general unemployment relief, to which the employer also has to contribute.

Abolish Night Work.

Night work is abolished even in bakeries, the only exception being morning newspapers. Each employé is entitled to 15 days' vacation a year at full pay. Provided he furnishes a medical certificate, the worker obtains sick leave for three months at full pay and a further six months at half pay. After that he can be struck from the pay roll without indemnification.

The indemnifications are the heaviest obligations for employers. An employé, unless he resigns or is guilty of serious misconduct, must be paid a month's salary for every year of service before his contract can be terminated. He can lawfully demand such indemnification if his employer moves to reduce his salary. In assessing this compensation the maximum salary allowed is $125 per month, and the maximum period of service taken into account is 15 years, so that no one employé can exceed a claim of $1,875.

A corps of labor inspectors visit all offices to inspect employers' books to prevent contravention of the law, and special labor tribunals have been established to handle the problems involved. A special appeals court has been appointed on which the employé and employer each have a representative, with the deciding vote at the discretion of the chairman of the ordinary appeal court.

Find Law Abused.

Many abuses of the law have been revealed and, despite diplomatic representations, foreign corporations have had to pay out millions of dollars in "indemnification." Employés, lured by the prospect of securing small fortunes and backed by unscrupulous lawyers, have forced employers to "fire" them in order to collect on their claims. As a result employers throughout the country are refusing to engage but the minimum of office help necessary.

The largest problem of all, however, is the accumulation of retirement funds in the state bank—the only institution permitted to accept employés' savings. Conservative estimates place the fund at $100,000,000. The employés themselves are none too happy about it.

Years ago the Argentines had a similar fund and when it became too unwieldy they canceled the law and returned the money.

BREAKS UP A COLD IN A JIFFY

Feel Like a New Person Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system and you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents

GRAF STARTS ON FIRST OF TEN TRIPS TO BRAZIL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, March 21 [Monday].—With nine passengers and a mixed cargo ranging from crankshafts to films, the Graf Zeppelin started at 12:34 a. m. today for Brazil. Ten trips are planned to South America this year, but none during June and July, the rainy season. These trips represent the first trans-Atlantic air schedule.

Fares to Pernambuco, the South American base, are sharply reduced—$475 one way, or $830 round trip, compared to $2,000 one way last year. Trips will be made fortnightly, and the Graf expects to carry 900 pounds of mail on each trip. This at $23 per pound, approximately $21,500 for each round trip, will almost cover the operating costs.

Another ship, the LZ-129, designed for a future North American route, is under construction here. It will be 750 feet long, with 7,000,000 cubic feet capacity, and will be the world's largest airship. Diesel engines of 1,000 horse power will be placed in each of four gondolas. The ship will use helium gas and thus be practically noninflammable, permitting among many other luxuries a smoking room.

3 Autoists Are Drowned; Car Plunges Into River

Winsted, Conn., March 20.—[Special.]—Trapped in an overturned automobile submerged in the Housatonic river near Kent, early today, Edmond Mallahan, Bron Shove and Joseph Vincent perished by drowning. Mallahan was driving the car when it crashed through a fence, overturning into the river.

BRAZILIAN STATE BREAKS WITH RIO; SECESSION NEAR

Leaders in South Press Their Ultimatum.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, March 20.—Secession of the states of Rio Grande do Sul and Sao Paulo from the Brazilian republic loomed tonight, according to dispatches from Brazil which reported that diplomatic relations of the former state have been severed with President Getulio Vargas' de facto government at Rio de Janeiro.

"Insurgent" Brazilian ministers from the south who resigned recently from the cabinet are leading the movement toward secession. They issued an ultimatum yesterday demanding that President Vargas restore a constitutional government.

Cabinet Takes No Action.

The cabinet of the de facto government held an extraordinary meeting but took no action, and it is believed this inactivity caused the reported severance of relations by the state of Rio Grande do Sul today. Sao Paulo is expected to follow suit soon. Both states have frequently threatened secession.

Unrest was reported at Santa Anna, Rio Grande do Sul, in connection with the reported break, and troops are being held in readiness there, it was said.

Vargas Summons Meditor.

DIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, March 20.—(AP)—The de facto government of President Vargas today sought to reconcile its differences with political leaders of the south by summoning Gen. Flores da Cunha from Porto Algere, Rio Grande do Sul, as a mediator.

This development followed close upon a sudden cabinet meeting yesterday, and Gen. Da Cunha arrived today by airplane.

A Montevideo report said that Gen. Da Cunha was quoted as saying his state is ready to face any situation, but he declined to give any more details "unless the situation was clarified."

Situation Reported Quiet.

Meanwhile the political situation was asserted to be "absolutely quiet." A government announcement after yesterday's cabinet meeting, which was summoned when President Vargas arrived from the summer capital of Petropolis, said there is no indication of disturbed public order or threats to the government's security.

There have been reliable reports from various sources, however, that President Vargas, who seized the power in November, 1930, would soon resign or be forced to resign.

EX-BASEBALL STAR OF REFORM SCHOOL IS SENT TO 'BIG HOUSE'

Muskegon, Mich., March 20.—(AP)—Seven and a half to 15 years is not too much to sacrifice when the old alma mater's baseball team faces a losing season.

At least that was the attitude of Cecil Thompson, former star second baseman for old Michigan State reformatory, when he came into court to be sentenced for larceny.

"Michigan reformatory's baseball team needs me," he explained to Judge John Vanderwerp.

But Michigan reformatory's loss is going to be Michigan state prison's gain, for Thompson, Judge Vanderwerp ruled, has graduated by virtue of three terms to the prison class.

I'LL ATTEND FAIR, SAYS PRESIDENT ALFARO, PANAMA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, March 20.—President Ricardo J. Alfaro is looking forward to visiting the Century of Progress Fair in Chicago in 1933, he said today.

Lieutenant Commander John M. Creighton, U. S. N., waterfront supervisor of the fair, after visiting the capitals of Central America arrived in Panama by airplane from San Jose, Costa Rica, accompanied by the American minister, Roy Tasco Davis. They called upon President Alfaro and extended to him an invitation to visit the fair.

Commander Creighton later left for Bogota, Colombian capital, and will call on presidents of the northern countries of South America before returning to the United States.

DANDRUFF
Soon Destroys the Hair

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid Arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid Arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

STATE BUTCHER SHOPS SHUT UP BY QUEENSLAND

Ends Trade Deal with Loss of $10,000,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, March 20.—Another $10,000,000 went glimmering today along with the "state enterprise act," which Queensland state parliament repealed, and the result adds one more indication of what happens to a government once it attempts to enter the trading field.

The Queensland repeal followed right after New South Wales and western Australia had junked enterprises which cost them a similar sum.

The state enterprises act, which Queensland decided had proved expensive enough, cost the state $8,500,000 up to June, 1931, according to Minister for Labor and Industry H. E. Sizer, but complete loss on the scheme will top that total by more than $1,500,000.

Most Disastrous Experiment.

"Labor's most disastrous experiment in Socialism for all time," was how Sizer described the effort of the previous Queensland Labor government to operate state owned farms and state owned butcher's shops, which were projects included in the repeal measure. Edward G. Theodore, previous Queensland prime minister and federal treasurer in the lately defeated Scullin federal Labor government, was responsible for the Queensland act when he was still in the state political field and only casting aspiring eyes at federal political honors.

The project did not pay its way from the beginning. Bureaucracy, restrictions, poor management and all the impediments which cluster around a business which is run by state servants and not by any one interested in expansion, enterprise and profit making, killed the scheme.

Losses in Marine Operations.

The Queensland repeal came right on top of New South Wales's determination that its state trawling enterprise, which cost the mother state more than $2,000,000 in a few years, must go to the junk heap, and followed shortly after Western Australia's decision that its $8,000,000 losses on state enterprises, including government-operated ferries and oceangoing steamers, must be cut. Agricultural implement factories established by that state also failed to gain a sound financial footing.

These smaller trading ventures were dwarfed by heavy losses in bigger fields, such as railroads, irrigation schemes, and the Commonwealth Shipping line—a semi-wartime measure which was crippled by incessant labor disputes and political mishandling and which is declared to have resulted in a total loss of a quarter of a million dollars—but they are significant for they show that the details of commerce and marketing state ownership falls short.

Middlemen More Shrewd.

Queensland's state enterprises act was the last of all these. It was passed in 1918, designed to aid in establishing lower living costs for a population which had not forgotten the smaller prevailing prices of 1913-'14. It began pretentiously with the object of bringing private competition into line by eliminating the so-called superfluous "middlemen" between grocer and consumer.'

Surprisingly, to the labor politicians, the scheme demonstrated that the middlemen were able to judge the market more shrewdly and to meet its needs more cheaply and better than a state operated system which had no inducement to be efficient. The lesson was learned at last and might be offered as an example to many other lands.

But labor itself learned little. Newest proposals of the party include nationalization of credit and state control of the banks, though opponents view this as a short way to a final phase of inflation and utter loss of confidence in currency.

BRITAIN BUILDS NEW FIGHTING PLANE FOR LAND AND SEA DUTY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 20.—An "eight in one" aircraft, capable of as many duties, has been evolved by the British air ministry and construction of the first machine of this type has just been completed. It is known as the PV-6. Details of speed and other capacities of this machine are closely guarded secrets, but they are reported to exceed the accomplishments of any general utility warplane so far evolved.

The PV-6 is a development of the Westland Wapiti now in use in 18 royal air force squadrons. It is a finely streamlined biplane, driven by a single Bristol 555 horsepower "Pegasus" air cooled motor. In normal use it carries a crew of two men. It is an amphibian, fitted for attack and defense, and is suitable for day bombing, desert patrol, long distance reconnaissance flights, gunnery spotting, high speed communications, and aerial photography.

The machine's speed and climbing capacities are exceeded only by fast single seater fighters, and by the new day bombers. With extra fuel tanks full it can fly 1,000 miles nonstop. It can carry a weight of 6,500 pounds, or heavier load still on flights of short duration. Armaments of the PV-6 include a Lewis and a Vickers gun, and a specially developed bomb release which enables the gunner to release bombs in salvo or in series.

ROMANCE BEGUN IN A HOSPITAL ENDS IN COURT

Girl Asks $100,000 Balm from Dr. H. H. Seyl.

A breach of promise suit naming as defendant Dr. H. H. Seyl, 46 years old, 3724 North Hermitage avenue, surgeon and staff member of the Welles Park hospital, has been filed in the Circuit court, it was learned yesterday. The complainant is Miss Agnes Corrado, 20 years old, 1418 Belmont avenue, who asks $100,000 damages.

Miss Corrado charges that Dr. Seyl has constantly been attentive to her since 1928 when he removed her appendix at the hospital. The operation occurred, according to the declaration, which was drawn by Attorney William C. Scherwat, only a short time after Dr. Seyl's wife died.

Marriage Proposed, She Says.

In January of 1931, according to the bill, Dr. Seyl asked Miss Corrado to be his wife. She accepted his proposal and a wedding date was set for the following June. This was postponed from time to time until July 1, when the young woman demanded that the doctor marry her. He refused, according to the bill, saying, "You're much too young to be my wife. We cannot go through with the marriage."

In her declaration Miss Corrado asserts that the doctor's refusal was a shock to her. In spite of his attitude, she says, she still is willing to become his wife. She asserts that this had been her expectation since Dr. Seyl introduced her to mutual friends as his "future bride."

Doctor Denies Proposal.

Dr. Seyl, reached at his home last evening, asserted that no proposal of marriage had ever passed between him and Miss Corrado. He refused to discuss the suit further.

His attorney, David A. Canel, filed an answer to the declaration, it was learned, in which he denied the proposal of marriage and asserted that his client would be able to prove the true relationship. Attorney Canel refused to comment on the action.

Social Disease

This information concerning a serious disease problem is sponsored by the Public Health Institute as a public health measure.

WHAT EVERY PERSON SHOULD KNOW

"Social diseases," syphilis and gonorrhea, are outstanding health enemies—they cause more suffering and unhappiness than any other dangerous communicable disease.

The harmful results of these diseases would be better appreciated were it not for the fact that in the early stages symptoms are usually not of a serious nature.

Gonorrhea is considered by many uninformed persons as being no worse than a cold. But just as neglected colds often develop into pneumonia or tuberculosis—so does gonorrhea often develop dangerous complications resulting in painful chronic conditions in men and serious operations on women.

Fortunately, not every case of gonorrhea produces such harmful results. The greatest danger lies in neglect or improper treatment. Syphilis is frequently less painful in its early stages than gonorrhea; in fact, it may exist in an individual without any alarming symptoms.

Osler, a noted authority, ranks syphilis as the greatest killing disease. It can imitate almost any disease, since every bone and tissue of the body is subject to its attack. For this reason a correct diagnosis requires experienced medical attention and skill as well as modern laboratory facilities.

ADEQUATE MEDICAL SERVICE IS AVAILABLE

In this community adequate medical service is available to all. Those who cannot afford the services of a private physician can find good medical care at leading medical schools, The Public Health Institute, the Illinois Social Hygiene League and other recognized health agencies. Free treatment is available to those without funds.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH INSTITUTE

is incorporated for public service, not for profit, under the laws of the State of Illinois. It is an institution dedicated to the object of combating venereal diseases in this community—through organized effort of all social agencies dealing with this problem. Its main clinic for men is located at 159 North Dearborn Street, between Randolph and Lake Streets, a branch clinic at 129 East 31st Street, and the women's and children's clinic, at 72 East Randolph Street.

Dear Mr Donahue

You'll be glad to know that your paper covers the wants of all classes of buyers. For years we have advertised our fine quality hats, shoes, furnishings and clothing in your paper - in fact we gave you the predominance of our copy - and you know the result.

We had to build a nine story addition last year and then almost immediately that proved too small and we topped it off with a full four story addition.

When we opened our cash bargain basement last December, we chose your paper exclusively to announce it to the public, and in spite of severe weather we were jammed beyond capacity. As a result, we know the Tribune reaches all classes and that it reaches more buyers at a smaller cost than any other medium we know of.

We like to hear pleasant things about ourselves - We thought you would like to hear this good news about yourselves.

Sincerely yours,

*"It reaches more buyers at a smaller cost than any other medium"

When you can get over 300,000 more daily circulation at a lower general milline rate . . . why not concentrate your message in the CHICAGO TRIBUNE!

* * *

The Tribune is the biggest value in Chicago. It is the newspaper first in the preference of readers and first in results for advertisers.

During the past 15 years the Daily Tribune has gained more circulation than the next three Chicago daily papers combined.

And now . . . day after day, the Chicago Daily Tribune reaches and influences the buying of 300,000 more families than any other Chicago daily paper.

Yet, you can reach this multitude . . . over 815,000 strong . . . at a general milline rate that is lower than that of any other Chicago daily paper.

Of course Maurice L. Rothschild places the greatest share of its advertising in the Chicago Tribune. So do other leading State St. stores . . . Chicago's outstanding retailers!

During the past ten years the Loop department stores reduced their lineage in every Chicago newspaper but the Tribune. They increased their advertising in the Tribune by over half a million lines!

In 1931 the Tribune carried 18.4% more retail advertising than any other Chicago paper!

All facts lead straight to the Tribune as first choice in Chicago. Follow the lead of the leaders . . . and sell!

Get the complete facts. Equip yourself with dependable information on the great Chicago market. Do it now!

'ARMY' TO FIGHT INVADING FOE ON MICHIGAN SOIL

Gen. Parker Plans Huge Staff Exercise.

Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commanding the Sixth Corps area, announced yesterday that more than 300 high ranking officers of the regular army, National Guard and reserve will participate in army maneuvers to be held for four days and nights, May 23 to 27, near Camp Custer, Mich. The officers, under simulated war conditions, will perform the staff work for a theoretical field army of 300,000 men, with its constituent corps and divisions. Gen. Parker will be the director of the exercise.

GEN. PARKER.

The "paper army" will be fighting a theoretical invading force that crossed the Mississippi river in 1931 and captured Chicago. The invader, after holding Chicago all winter, is to launch an offensive eastward. In May the field army, designated as the "Sixth Blue army," plans to take up a defensive position stretching from Battle Creek, Mich., down into Indiana and give battle to stop the invaders.

Reserves to Participate.

On May 15, 165 reserve officers in the Sixth Corps area will be called into active duty, to report at Camp Custer for lectures that will prepare them for the combat exercise. The regular army will assemble 120 officers from all points in the corps area. There will be troops from Fort Sheridan and Forts Wayne and Brady, in Michigan.

Communications between the command posts of the army, corps, and divisions will be set up in war style by a detachment of 5 officers and 75 men from the First Signal company, Fort Monmouth, N. J., and detachments from the 33d Signal company, Illinois National Guard, and the 32d Signal company, Michigan National Guard.

On May 22, the adjutants general of Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin will arrive at Camp Custer with general officers of the National Guard of each state and their staffs. Headquarters of the various units to be employed in the battle of maps will be established, and the following day the battle will start.

Bolles to Command Army.

The Sixth Blue amy will be commanded by Brig. Gen. Frank C. Bolles, commanding Fort Sheridan. This field army will consist of three army corps. The first, consisting of three divisions, will be commanded by Col. F. L. Knudsen of the Second infantry at Fort Wayne. The second, also consisting of three divisions, will be commanded by Col. Pegram Whitworth of the Sixth infantry at Jefferson Barracks, Mo. The third, a cavalry corps consisting of two cavalry divisions, will be commanded by Col. Edward Davis, assigned to the organized reserves in Chicago.

The battle will continue for four days and four nights without interruption, simulating all the conditions of actual warfare in the staff work. At noon, May 27, a halt will be called and the officers participating in the exercises will have a chance to make up a part of their lost sleep until the following day, when Gen. Parker will hold a critique, assisted by his umpires, which all officers will attend. Actions and orders of the commanders of the various units will be studied, and a decision will be rendered as to whether the Sixth Blue army held the line against the invaders, or failed.

Burt to Be Chief of Staff.

Gen. Parker, as director, will have Col. W. H. Burt, chief of staff of the corps area, for his chief of staff, and Brig. Gen. Carlos Black, adjutant general of Illinois; Brig. Gen. Ralph Immel, adjutant general of Wisconsin, and Col. John S. Bersey, adjutant general of Michigan, as assistants. Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, 33d division, Illinois National Guard, and Maj. Gen. Guy M. Wilson, 32d division, Michigan and Wisconsin National Guards, will command their divisions.

Jewish Charity Group to Seek 2,000 New Members

The Young Men's Jewish Charities will open a one week drive to enroll 2,000 new members tomorrow evening with a rally at the Covenant club. Philip A. Lieber, president of the charities, will give final instructions to more than 300 team captains and workers in the drive.

Pains So Terrible Could Hardly Close Hands. New Master Medicine Banished Misery and More Than Made Good Its Reputation.

Are you one of the many who suffer daily with rheumatism? If so, then you know the misery it can cause—the terrible pain, swelling, discomfort that takes away your interest in any activity, makes you wonder if life is worth living after all. Perhaps you have tried remedy after remedy, only to find your rheumatism steadily growing worse, until you have resigned yourself that such pains are simply something which must be endured.

But you can find glorious relief, just as thousands of others have done, in Wenvo, the New Master Medicine that goes straight to the CAUSE of the trouble and builds up your entire system, keeping from the blood stream poisons that cause rheumatism or neuritis, stomach trouble, torpid liver, kidney, bladder and other functional disorders, and a general run-down condition.

Following is the experience of just one of many former sufferers whom this wonderful new medicine has freed from the misery of rheumatism. "I had rheumatism in my hands and arms, and my hands were so swollen I could hardly close them . . . the pains were so bad in my arms I couldn't work," says Mr. M. A. Menninger, 34th St., Kansas City, Kan. "Wenvo more than made good, and just as I was told it would do, went to work cleaning my blood stream, and the big change in my condition is due entirely to Wenvo. The masterful way it overcame the terrible swellings and pains proved to me the wonderful merits of Wenvo. I feel greatly improved in every other respect, eat better, sleep better, and go out of my way to tell others of your splendid medicine."

Why continue to suffer needlessly? Let Wenvo bring back the health and strength of youth—banish all your aches and pains. Because so sure are we it will do for you just exactly what you have vainly sought from many other medicines, we are going to make you this exceptional offer—Try Wenvo at our risk! Get a bottle today, take it. If it does relieve your suffering, if you feel and look years younger, then of course the small cost is nothing. But if, for any reason, you are not satisfied with the results—and remember you are the only, the final judge—all you have to do is return the empty bottle and we will cheerfully refund your money. Don't delay another minute. Get Wenvo—do it today! Recommended and Guaranteed by all

U. S. OFFICIAL FINDS RACKETEERS EXPLOIT ALIENS IN NEW YORK

New York, March 20.—[Special.]—Many aliens in New York City are being exploited by racketeers and crooked lawyers, Edward Corsi, commissioner of immigration at Ellis island, declared at a meeting of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America today.

Mr. Corsi said he found all sorts of rackets at the expense of aliens whose cases he has investigated, adding, "While I feel that the immigration service to a certain extent can stop this racketeering, it will go on until agencies such as yours who are interested in the problem will come to the aid of the immigration service and help us to run down these racketeers."

Mr. Corsi declared investigation of the cases of many aliens in this country illegally showed they were being fleeced by racketeers, by supposed friends, and "by certain classes of lawyers who certainly are not an honor to their profession."

TURKEY AND PERSIA ADOPT ENGLISH AS OFFICIAL TONGUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 20.—The governments of Turkey and Persia have decided to adopt English as the language for their official communication. French, which has been the language of diplomacy in the east for centuries, is to be replaced.

The Turkish government is now canvassing England for celebrated English orientalists who are needed as teachers. Altogether, from 3,000 to 3,500 professors and instructors are wanted from Great Britain and the United States.

The two countries entered into discussions on the plan following the breakdown of Riza Khan's efforts to introduce the Roman alphabet in Persia two years ago. English will henceforth be taught in the schools of both countries. It is even said that the Koran will be translated and read only in English in Turkish schools.

IT'S HORSES' DAY; MARSHALL FIELD, WALES UNHORSED

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 20.—Both the prince of Wales and Marshall Field III. figured in week-end hunting mishaps. During a gallop with the Cottesmor hounds at Stapleford Park Saturday the prince's hunter stumbled and lamed itself and the prince had to seek another mount.

Mr. Field's accident was more spectacular, though neither the horse nor himself was hurt. The American was hunting near Melton Mowbray when his horse blundered through a low hedge and turned somersault, with Mr. Field underneath. The mount attempted to rise with its rider entangled in the stirrups, and again rolled over Mr. Field, before he was dragged clear.

Only last week his wife was knocked unconscious when hunting with the Fernie pack. She made a quick recovery and entertained party guests during the Grand National festivities.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide.

ROGERS PK. CALLS ON HER SONS TO FIGHT SUN BATHS

50,000 Circulars Object to Open Air Stockade.

As the wife of a University of Chicago professor was coming to the defense of sun bathing yesterday 50,000 circulars were distributed throughout Rogers Park objecting heartily to the plan to erect an open air stockade for sun baths on the lake shore at Touhy avenue. And the aldermen who will decide the question were beginning to view the problem as a hot potato and were talking of postponing action on it until after the April 12 primaries tomorrow when it comes before the beaches and playgrounds committee for a hearing.

Neither the outraged residents of the neighborhood, following the lead of the 49th Ward Republican Civic league, nor proponents of the stockade, however, were satisfied to have the matter deferred, and the prospects are for a battle in the council chambers.

Opposition Growing.

Opposition in the Rogers Park district was stirred by the 49th ward organization which distributed the 50,000 circulars to homes and places of business, decrying the project. Prominent men and women of the vicinity who received the handbills appeared to agree heartily with the objections listed.

"We do not propose," said Col. James E. White, chairman of the beach protection committee of the ward group, "to argue the scientific merits of nudist sun bathing. We are determined that the experiment shall not be made in our home community. Let them build their nudist cult stockade on the banks of the drainage canal, where the sun is just as hot and the opposition is cooler."

"It's absurd to think that the clubwomen of this district would sanction such a thing," declared Mrs. Earl G. Whittaker, president of the Rogers Park Woman's club. "The people of this neighborhood are much too conservative for such a plan."

Doesn't Wish to Be Quoted.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, refused to be drawn into the controversy, declaring he "didn't wish to be quoted on such a matter."

"But if I am to be quoted," he added, "the one thing I would say is that extreme exposure is unnecessary to obtain the full benefit from the sun's rays."

From the south side of Chicago Mrs. M. C. Coulter, wife of a professor of biology at the University of Chicago, raised her voice in praise of the benefits of sun bathing as she encountered it abroad on the Italian Riviera.

Praises Sun Baths.

"Six weeks spent at the resort called Alassio, near Genoa, did wonders for me and my two children," Mrs. Coulter declared. "The place is a favorite of both German and English people, and while next to nothing is worn by the men and only a trifle more by the women, Europeans have a different outlook on such matters than Americans, and throughout our stay I noticed not the slightest rowdyism or disorder on the beach. I'm certain the same thing could not be hoped for here. However, I would like to go on record as an ardent devotee of sun bathing for health."

Ald. George A. Williston [49th] introduced the petition for the erection of the sun bathing center.

AIRPLANE CRASH DEATH TOTAL IS RAISED TO SEVEN

Disaster to Air Liner Blamed on Fog.

San Bernardino, Cal., March 20.—(AP)—The death of another passenger today increased to seven the toll of lives lost last night in the crash of an American Airways passenger plane near Calimesa, Cal.

Arthur Thomas, Tucson, Ariz., accountant, died today in a Redlands hospital. He was the only occupant of the plane to escape immediate death.

Officials of the American Airways and representatives of the department of commerce assembled here for an investigation with San Bernardino county officials into the cause of the crash. Coroner A. N. U'Ren said an inquest will be held tomorrow.

Flying in a fog, the airplane, piloted by Harold J. Kelsey of Los Angeles, with H. H. Campbell of Dallas as copilot, struck a high tension wire and crashed in an orchard when the pilot failed in a five minute attempt to recover equilibrium.

Witnesses expressed the opinion the pilot became confused in the dense mist, although the ship was exactly on its course.

The main gasoline tank exploded and the plane became a pyre. Portions of the ship were scattered over an area 200 feet square.

The power line broke and the whole district was thrown into temporary darkness except for the flashing of disturbed dynamos in a nearby power house and the leaping flames of the airplane.

Calimesa is 20 miles southeast of here. The plane was en route from Phoenix, Ariz., to Glendale, a suburb of Los Angeles, and was flying down a pass after clearing the San Bernardino mountains.

Besides Kelsey and Campbell, the dead are: Albert Coburn, 21, son of Frederic Coburn, New York, who Thursday relinquished the presidency of the American Airways; H. A. McKellar, 42, employé of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, Los Angeles;; C. M. Goldsmith, clothing manufacturer of St. Louis, and R. L. Robinson of Yonkers, N. Y.

ILLINOIS GRANGE TREASURER GONE; SUSPECT SUICIDE

Belvidere, Ill., March 20.—[Special.]—Citizens of Boone county joined in a search today for Clarence J. Leinbach, 50, treasurer of the Illinois Grange, who disappeared Thursday. Searchers examined byroads in the belief Leinbach had committed suicide. No trace of the man or his automobile was found.

Leinbach was last seen at 8 o'clock Thursday evening by his father, A. C. Leinbach of Sterling, Ill., when he left his father's home to return to Belvidere. His father reported Leinbach appeared to be in the best of spirits. Leinbach's wife did not notify the police until yesterday, as her husband frequently left home for several days at a time on business trips.

She said her husband had been worried over financial troubles. An audit of his accounts was made two weeks ago by the Illinois Grange. Leinbach left a sealed letter addressed to his wife in his office at the Manley Motor company, of which he is a part owner. The wife refused to reveal the contents of the letter, but officials of the company said it hinted at suicide.

3 BLASTS ROCK SPRINGFIELD SCHOOL; 12 HURT

Springfield, Ill., March 20. — (AP) — Twelve men were injured tonight in three explosions which rocked the Springfield public high school building, coming as an aftermath of a series of incendiary fires in other central Illinois towns.

Firemen and nearby residents rushed into the building after the first explosion, believing it had been caused by bursting boilers. They found the boilers were intact and were starting to leave when the second blast came.

Investigators from the state fire marshal's office said the first blast broke gas mains in the basement and started a small fire. Escaping gas was ignited by the fire to cause the other two explosions.

Physicians said four of the injured might die. They are Harry Durham, assistant fire chief of Springfield; Capt. Charles Gaessler of the fire department; John Rapp, a fireman, and James Brown, a high school student.

EDWARD C. PLUMMER, VICE CHAIRMAN OF SHIPPING BOARD, DIES

Washington, D. C., March 20.—(AP)—Edward C. Plummer, 69, vice chairman of the shipping board since 1923, died here tonight after an illness of two years.

He was born in Freeport, Me., Nov. 23, 1863. His permanent residence was in Bath.

An enthusiastic devotee of seafaring interests, and himself the fifth of as many generations of shipbuilders in his pioneer New England family, the shipping board official's marine activities included service as a sailor in his youth and authorship in his later years of books relating to the sea.

He was temporarily commissioned during the Spanish-American war as assistant paymaster in the navy and served on the water.

Mr. Plummer had been forced to leave his desk for a few days at a time occasionally since an operation two years ago, but it was not until last Feb. 21 that he was confined to his bed. He died quietly, with Mrs. Plummer and her niece, Mrs. Sam Foreman of Paducah, Ky., at his bedside. They had no children.

He was appointed to the shipping board in 1921 by President Harding and held various committee assignments thereon, including chairmanships of the important committees on legislation and ocean mail contracts and trade routes and ship operation.

WALTER D. SWENIE, 56 years old, an employé of the city electrical department, died yesterday in the German Deaconess hospital. His widow, Mrs. Katherine Swenie, 5631 South Carpenter street, survives. Mr. Swenie was formerly employed in the Union stockyards, and was well known in that district. He was a son of the late Frank P. Swenie, who was a division fire marshal, and a nephew of Denis J. Swenie, for many years chief of the fire department.

Critic Turns to Beautiful Books Today

Gives Series of Essays on Volumes.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

SOMETIMES one is in the mood for a book that gives pleasure to the eye first and to the mind afterward. Books with lovely illustrations or with amusing ones, or books printed in a type that has an esthetic lure in its blackness on white offer one, at times, a stimulus that is vital. I have just had a sudden yearning to look AT more than INTO books. I wanted my eye intrigued. I searched through the shelves which contain the latest offerings of all of the publishers and I found only seven books which were the kind that I was searching for. In most years the number would have been many times that and the individual volumes probably more luxurious. But the seven blessings gave me great pleasure.

HILAIRE BELLOC.
[Caricature by "Lou."]

First of all there is Part Nine of "The Colophon," the Book Collectors' Quarterly, which is that supremely successful marriage of the printing and illustrating and literary arts. Charming articles about writers and books and collections written by especially keen pens are printed by the various fine presses with occasional illustrations by the best of present day pens and pencils. "The Colophon" is the most distinguished publication in its field in America and is sheer delight to collectors. Its distinction is due to the fact perhaps that every one who has anything to do with it does his work for the sheer passionate joy of the doing. There is no profit in it for anybody, only immense kudos. Oddly enough, however, there is a great deal of profit in it for the collectors who are canny enough to subscribe to it, for its value at sales is many times its original price, and it is published only for subscribers.

Classics in Two Beautiful Books.

The new Aventine Press of New York has recently published two volumes of American classics which are rarely beautiful to look at, and which are as alluring forms as any I know in which to have those particular masterpieces. Herman Melville's "Typee" is enchantingly illustrated by Guido Boer. It is printed in beautiful type, as is also "Leaves of Grass," by Walt Whitman, which includes "Sands at Seventy," "First Annex," "Good-Bye My Fancy," "Second Annex," "A Backward Glance O'er Traveled Roads," and "A Portrait from Life." "Leaves of Grass" is not illustrated, but it belongs with the books which are a delight to the eye for the sheer beauty of its type page.

"A Persian Journey," by Fred Richards [Cape-Smith], is a volume of impressions of the middle east set down in words and with his special skill as an etcher. Much of the description was written on the spot and all of the forty-eight drawings were made there. Persia became artistic world news last year with the great Persian exhibition in London assembled by Dr. Arthur Pope and Dr. Phyllis Ackerman [his wife], who are well known in Chicago. A sudden popular curiosity about the country of Persia and its inhabitants followed the exhibition. Mr. Richards satisfies some of it by creating an eagerness in the reader to go there himself.

Wells Volume in Two Colors.

A special reissue of H. G. Wells' "Time Machine," by Random House, has a preface by Mr. Wells in which he frankly says: "The 'Time Machine' was published in 1895. It is obviously the work of an inexperienced writer." It is amusingly printed in type of two colors, and has designs by W. A. Dwiggins which are interesting if not [to my mind] superb. It is the kind of volume that lures you to possess it, however.

"The Russian Ballet," by W. A. Propert [Greenberg], is thrilling to any one who had a passion [as I had] for the Russian ballet, for it gives a short history of that magnificent group, and is filled with photographs from the most famous of the ballets, and contains a reproduction of the Gontcharova sketch of Prokofieff and a portrait of Lifar. It is, of course, a volume only for the few, but the few for whom it is for will be as thrilled to know of its existence as I was.

And finally a comic book from the press of Basil Rockwell of Oxford [England]. It is called "Nine Nines" and consists of Hilaire Belloc's ideas of the 9 deplorable social habits, the 9 admirable social habits, the 9 follies, the 9 rules for dealing with the poor, the 9 rules for dealing with the rich, the 9 negative rules for walking in the country, the 9 negative rules for walking in town, the 9 jollities and the 9 final things, all pictured by Thomas Derrick. There are 81 amusing drawings with 81 snappy captions, and that is all, but it is a volume of real gayety.

All-American Idol—The Suit Hit of Spring

BY RHEA SEEGER.

SPRING suits have stolen all the fashion shows . . . everywhere you go you will see them, young, self confident and O, so chic, always remembering their lines, and at the same time elbowing a knowing way right down in front where the spotlight of approval is the strongest and brightest.

Seasoned old favorites the coats, dresses and sports clothes seem content to merely support these new suits, standing a bit back on the stage, waiting for their applause that will come after the first enthusiastic welcome has been accorded the grandest kind of a comeback of the all-American idol . . . the suit.

Don't let any one discourage you . . . there are suits for every woman . . . suits for every hour of the day or evening . . . suits of every possible kind of material . . . suits for slim young things . . . suits for plumpish persons . . . suits for town, country, sports and gorgeous, rather snooty, dressup affairs that are nothing short of complete knockouts.

You can be tailored in tweeds as well as heavy silk crêpe, satin and silk prints . . . you can swing a swagger cape or two on suits that have gone into military formations with smooth snug silhouettes, buttons and belts . . . you can tie yourself into bows with a stylish abandon shared with a suit that uses them instead of buttons. You'll find suits that have literally yards of fur trimmings . . . and you can have the same models supremely conscious of their impeccably tailored simplicity, spurning ornamentation.

New Colors Will Make You Stop.

The new colors will make you stop, look and buy, immediately . . . colors that are as fresh and crisp and glowing as bravely blooming tulips on spring green lawns . . . and the darker colored models are splashed with colored taffeta scarfs and bows and blouses.

Two-piece suits, that is the simple skirt and jacket type, offer unlimited possibilities for blouse buyers, who can change daily their entire makeup . . . being frilly and feminine with sheer lawns and laces . . . trim and tailored with pique and linen waistcoats, or perky with bright plaids and stripes.

The other version of the two-piece ensemble is that of a long sleeved dress worn with the new brief waistline length coat. One breathtaking creation is made of sky blue soft wool . . . the dress when on appalls you with its stark simplicity, there isn't a button, hook, tuck, ruffle, collar, belt or pleat in sight, it is as severe as any uniform and how it does cling to your figure . . . but after you see yourself in the mirror, the days that you practically starved, the Spanish inquisition diets you painfully endured, will be completely forgotten . . . all is forgiven when a dress like this can be worn.

Jacket Has Clinging Way.

The coat or jacket is a wee bit longer than a bolero . . . it, too, has a clinging way; you'll feel like a bellhop in it when you button it closely at the waist . . . but like a movie star when your arms slip into sleeves that use for elbow cuffs a full fox skin on each sleeve, fluffy fox in the most delectable shade of platinum gray.

Another of these picture suits is made in a soft almond green color of a pebbled material in wool . . . the dress is long and slender in line, with a yoke of fine black silk net, having appliqued designs of the green wool superimposed. This cutout effect is very sheer and flattering. The coat is short, reaching the hips, the sleeves a three-quarter length and are trimmed with sleek black fox bands.

You can surely and swiftly be suited this spring . . . Chicago collections have never been so diversified in color, style and fabric, or so moderately low in price!

Report Betrothal of Betty Offield and Jarvis Hunt Jr.

Reports reached Chicago last night of the engagement of Betty Offield, granddaughter of the late William Wrigley, and Jarvis Hunt Jr., son of the well known architect. The news came from Phoenix, Ariz., where both the young people have been sojourning recently.

No official announcement was made, but friends of the young couple admitted last night that the courtship of Miss Offield, described as "one of the prettiest and most popular" of last year's debutantes, by young Hunt was no secret. It was said that Hunt and Miss Offield will be wed in the autumn.

Miss Offield is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Offield, 1400 Astor street. Mrs. Offield is the daughter of the late gum manufacturer. Miss Offield will receive one-tenth of the fortune of Mr. Wrigley, according to his will. Mr. Hunt, also popular in his set, lives at 900 North Michigan avenue. He is a graduate of Columbia and Sorbonne universities. Miss Offield and her parents are at present at Catalina island.

Swedish King Forgives Prince He Disowned

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

NICE, France, March 20.—Prince Lennart of Sweden and his bride arrived here today and were reconciled with the royal family.

They were guests of the prince's father, Prince Wilhelm, at luncheon at a small restaurant and afterward all three drove to a hotel, where they were received and congratulated by King Gustav.

Prince Lennart said afterward that the reconciliation had been made possible by the action of the Swedish parliament, which deprived him of all his royal rights. Though he and his wife are traveling modestly as Mr. and Mrs. Bernadotte, he said tonight that it was quite probable that he would in future be permitted to assume the title of Count Mainau, and that his bride, the former Miss Karin Nissvandt, would bear the title of the countess of Mainau.

At Meeting of Literary Club

Miss Lois Truesdale, Miss Betty Knode and Miss Katherine Roach are members of the Literary club, an organization of this and last year's debutantes, which meets every two weeks for discussion of the serious reading the members have been doing since the club started last fall. A meeting was held the other day at Miss Jane Willett's pent-house residence at 2130 Lincoln Park West, when this picture was taken.

Tag Day Is Held at Polish Churches on Committee O. K.

The Ladies' auxiliary of the Sisters of the Resurrection yesterday conducted a tag day in the neighborhood of Polish churches without the approval of the city council, which is required by the tag day ordinance.

Police Commissioner Allman issued a permit for the tag day after it had been approved by the council finance committee Tuesday. Approval of the finance committee in such matters is not final, but members of the finance committee recognized at their meeting that the full council would have no opportunity to pass on the tag day, since there was no council meeting scheduled until March 23.

Hoovers Enjoy Spring; Walk Home from Church

Washington, D. C., March 20.—(AP)—With brilliant sunshine and pleasant breezes heralding the approach of spring, President and Mrs. Hoover walked back to the White House today from the little gray stone Quaker church at Twenty-first and S streets. The chief executive and first lady, who had motored to the church as usual, strolled down Connecticut avenue for nearly a mile, with their secret service escort behind.

Society Goes Roller Skating in N. Y. Park

New York, March 20.—(AP)—Society on roller skates was the spectacle presented to Central Park strollers as spring settled gently over New York today.

Two couples, solemnly ignoring the startled gazes of passersby, rolled and glided up and down the sidewalks near the Metropolitan Art museum. Inquiry disclosed they were members of the "roller skating club," recently organized by Mrs. Fenton Taylor.

Most of the members are known socially, and they are going to have sessions every Sunday afternoon.

Murray Thompson, skating with Mrs. Thompson, was able to stop long enough to explain that "we aren't very good skaters, but we get a lot of amusement out of it—now excuse me, please," and away he went.

U. of I. Easter Vacation Will Start on Thursday

Urbana, Ill., March 20.—[Special.]—Thousands of students enrolled in the University of Illinois will depart on Thursday for their homes for the Easter vacation. Classes will be dismissed at 11 o'clock Thursday morning and resumed at 1 o'clock the following Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. E. M. Biddle Snowbound; Seeks Plane for Relief

Philadelphia, Pa., March 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Edward M. Biddle, socially prominent Philadelphia matron who went to Alaska last December to study women's life in the far north, may be thwarted in part of her plans by the elements.

She was reported to have mushed to the home of Fannie Quigley, famous pioneer woman of the Kantishna district, Jan. 12, to spend a couple of weeks and to have become snowbound there. She has asked to have a plane sent to take her out.

There is no danger in her situation, apparently, but if she is unable to get out soon she may miss spectacles she much desired to see. She still has several calls to make and much territory to cover before going to an outpost on the Yukon where she planned to watch the spectacular, sudden breakup of the winter's ice.

Her husband, a lawyer, said today that he had not heard from her recently, but that he was not worried.

"It quite evidently is simply a problem in transportation," he said.

He and their three small children live at Ardmore, a suburb.

Man Superior to Women; He Even Admits It

Mr. Jones Is Member of Upper Strata.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Women may be better typists than men, but in fundamental qualities of makeup, "Mr. Anonymous Jones" thinks his sex is far superior.

Take loyalty, urges Mr. A. Jones. In blood ties, perhaps the sense is fairly well developed in women. But in loyalty toward the business job there is none of the fierce loyalty in a woman that is typical of the better grade of male employé.

Take romanticism. "In spite of woman's widely heralded romanticism," Mr. A. Jones claims, "they are more practical, more material, more mercenary than men." Boys, he finds, are more willing to accept financial hardships in order to mate. Few girls, in his experience, are willing to lower materially their standard of living to marry a young chap even though he shows promise of a future.

"Yes," adds Mr. Jones, "I have known a number of young men who were willing to sacrifice, to lower their standard of living in order to marry, even though, as in many professional cases, they realize such a mariage would definitely hinder their progress and arrival."

Another charge against women from the same source: "Women are quicker to break a romance on a petty happening. This, because they do not seem to scale life and living on a relative value basis."

And woman's opinion of herself is, to hear Mr. Jones tell it, nothing short of preposterous. In contrast to the other sex, she puts an unconcessionably high value on herself. "What woman in the world was ever married that didn't think she was conferring the highest honor on a man in consenting to marry him?" asks A. Jones. True, she is honoring him—but isn't he doing as much for her? [Ed. note: Who trained us along this line?]

"Does it cost a woman any more to give herself in marriage than it does a man?"

"Take date breaking," and Mr. Jones' last blast at us: "Women feel they can break dates without being called on the carpet—and are greatly aggrieved if an issue is made out of it. But let a man try date breaking and an ultimatum is delivered."

That's enough for today, girls, isn't it?

New York, March 20.—(AP)—Arturo Toscanini will travel the 5,000 miles from Italy to New York to conduct one concert for the benefit of unemployed musicians. Clarence H. Mackay, chairman of the Philharmonic Symphony society, today announced receipt of a cablegram from Toscanini in which the conductor said he would sail on April 19 abroad the liner Ile de France. Following the concert, to be given at Carnegie hall on April 28, Toscanini will return to Europe, where he has been undergoing treatment for an affliction of the right arm.

Betty Galt-Rodman Griscom Wedding Will Be Held May 5

Ceremony at Tucson Will Be of Interest to Many Chicagoans.

BY JUDITH CASS.

A WEDDING of great interest to Chicago society, although few Chicagoans will be present, will be that of Miss Betty Galt and Rodman E. Griscom Jr., which will take place on May 5 in Tucson, Ariz.

The parents of the bride-to-be, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Galt, are former Chicagoans (Mrs. Galt was Madeleine Noyes), but they moved to Santa Fé some years ago. They have had a house in Tucson this winter, however, while their son, Thomas, was attending the University of Arizona, and it is in that house that the lovely dark-haired Betty Galt is to become the bride of the young Philadelphian, who is head master of a boys' school at Tucson.

I understand the wedding is to be small, in the patio of the house, and that the bride's only attendant will be attractive titian-haired Miss Florence Noyes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Ernest H. Noyes of Chicago, and cousin of the bride.

Mr. Griscom is the son of Rodman E. Griscom of Philadelphia and a brother of Clement A. Griscom III., who married Olga Lihme of Chicago. Miss Noyes, who recently returned from Mexico, where she went early in the winter, will go west about May 1.

More Lectures by Hindus.

Maurice Hindus is much in demand among women's organizations bent on learning about Russia. He is to talk on Wednesday afternoon at the Chicago Woman's club weekly meeting and on Wednesday evening he will appear in the New Trier High school auditorium under the auspices of the Winnetka Woman's club.

The north shore lecture was planned originally as an evening meeting for members of the club at the clubhouse, but the demand for guest tickets was so great that the larger auditorium was taken over instead.

The lecture is being given under the combined sponsorship of the literature committee, of which Mrs. Chester Sargent is chairman; the education committee, headed by Mrs. Clarence F. Burley, and the civics and philanthropy group of which Mrs. Julius C. Towle is chairman.

Mrs. Leonard Bridges has enlisted a group of girls to usher, including Margot Atkin, Louise Conway, Louise Fentress, Antoinette and Louise Lackner, Lucie Jacobs, Evelyn Bouscaren, Marcelle Vennema, Margaret Emily Lynde, Lois Truesdale, and Adelaide Atkin. Mrs. Roland D. Whitman is in charge of the ticket committee.

The Kenilworth Infant Welfare society, which was organized about six weeks ago by a group of young women of the north shore to take over the support of the Seward Park station from the Neighbors of Kenilworth, is to hold its first benefit, a bridge party and fashion show, on April 13 at the Kenilworth club. The committee in charge includes Mrs. J. L. Fix, chairman; Miss Virginia Belt, Miss Helen Spear, and Mrs. Hamilton Bonnett. Mrs. Claude Sanders of Evanston is president of the organization.

Valentines to Open Summer Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Valentine certainly are "early birds" when it comes to going to their summer residence, for they are leaving on Wednesday for their Ashland [Mass.] place to remain until next autumn. Their son and his wife, the John W. Valentines, whose apartment at 1315 Astor street, is rented to the young Frederic McLaughlins, will be in the senior Valentines' house for the next three months.

Miss Lillian Dudley, who has been in California since shortly after the holidays, and her mother, Mrs. Raymond C. Dudley, who joined her in Pasadena a few weeks ago, are expected to return to Chicago shortly after Easter.

Miss Helen M. Castle, who is to be a debutante next fall, arrived home on Saturday from Mount Vernon seminary to spend the Easter holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. McNally of 237 East Delaware place.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Bunting of Lake Forest and their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Bunting, are to be at Charleston, S. C., during Miss Bunting's spring vacation from the Holton Arms school.

College Groups Meet Today.

Three college alumnae associations are holding meetings today. The Bryn Mawr College club will hold a luncheon meeting at 12:30 o'clock at the College club at 196 East Delaware place for Mrs. William G. Hibbard, who will speak on "Impressions of Russia and Mexico."

This afternoon Wells College club members will meet at the residence of the president, Miss Alice Barler, to listen to a radio broadcast of the Wells college choir and to have tea.

Dr. Bruno Roselli, head of the Italian department of Vassar college, will speak on "The Price of Peace," at a dinner of the Chicago Vassar club this evening at the Cordon. Mr. and Mrs. Percival Hart [Mrs. Hart is president of the Chicago club], Mr. and Mrs. Daniel H. Burnham Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stevens, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Kelley are among those who have made reservations.

Mrs. William B. Storey, who has been in Santa Barbara since late February, is now in San Francisco, and will not return to Chicago until some time after Easter.

Mrs. George F. McLaughlin of Lake Forest will return on Thursday from a visit to New York with Mr. and Mrs. Justin C. Sturm [Katherine McCormick] of Westport, Conn.

Mrs. Walter S. Crosley, wife of Rear Admiral Crosley, has returned to Great Lakes after a six weeks' trip with the admiral's cousin, Mrs. Edmund Burke Hall of Muncie, Ind., to Central America and Florida. They sailed first to Vera Cruz, visited Mexico City and the ruins of Yucatan, and then went by plane to Miami.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Taylor of the Ambassador East will open the Taylors' summer residence at Nantucket the last of April. Mr. Taylor will join her in June and their son, Stanley N. Taylor, and his little boy, Benjamin, better known as "Buddy," will go east from their home in Tucson to spend the summer with the senior Taylors.

Infant Welfare Group to Meet.

The Winnetka branch of the Infant Welfare society will hold a meeting at 11 o'clock this morning at the residence of Mrs. Morris Wilson at 429 Sheridan road, Winnetka.

The board of the Home for Convalescent Women and Children will hold a monthly meeting at 11:30 o'clock this morning at the residence of Mrs. Wellington Leavitt at 4340 Greenwood avenue. Mrs. William D. McIlvaine is president of the home, Mrs. Charles Middlebrook, vice president; Mrs. Frank Howes, secretary, and Mrs. J. Sidney Condit, treasurer.

The Alumni society of the Asheville School for Boys is to give a dinner this evening at the Saddle and Cycle for Dr. Howard Bement, headmaster of the school, and Mrs. Bement. John D. Ames is in charge of arrangements.

Moissaye Boguslawski will speak on "The Danger of Democracy in Music" at the Illinois Women's Athletic club's weekly tea tomorrow afternoon. Jane Carpenter, a protégé of Mme. Boguslawski will be the guest artist. Mrs. Charles S. Peterson, Mrs. Richard S. Folsom, Mrs. Herman N. Bundesen, and Mrs. John Fitzpatrick will be hostesses.

All Germany Will Pay Homage to Goethe This Week

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 20.—For once in this year, next Tuesday, the entire German nation will forget its petty squabbles and party strife and unite as one man to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the death of Wolfgang von Goethe, its greatest poet. Nation-wide memorial celebrations, festival performances of Goethe's plays, torchlight processions, and open air serenades will mark the day throughout the country.

Weimar, once the charming residence of the grand dukes of Saxe-Weimar, will rank foremost among the German cities honoring the great poet. Here Goethe spent more than 58 years of his life and wrote the greater part of his works.

A memorial celebration in the presence of Gen. Groener on Tuesday will be the climax of the Goethe Memorial week in Weimar. Festival performances of Goethe's main dramas, including "Faust," first and second parts, will be given in the German National theater in Weimar. This theater was built in 1906 to replace the former Court theater, of which Goethe had been director. It was in this building that the German national assembly convened after the overthrow of the empire to give the German people its republican constitution.

Noted savants from all parts of the world will lecture on Goethe throughout the week. America will be represented by Prof. Carl F. Schreiber of Yale university, who will speak on "Goethe and the United States," and by Prof. Frederick J. Woodbridge of Columbia university, at the time Roosevelt exchanged professors at Berlin university.

Too Officious Elder Merits Parents' Rebuke

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Today I am going to use a letter with a definite purpose in mind. That purpose is to stiffen the social backbone of mothers.

"Last week an old acquaintance of the family called one morning when I was busy. I was glad to see her and asked her to stay for lunch although it did inconvenience me a lot.

"One of my boys is in school. The other is just 3. While I was preparing lunch the baby grabbed something off the table. This woman grabbed him and snatched it away from him and then held him by the wrists very firmly and started scolding.

"He was terrified. Naturally, he tried to get away. When he did she gave him a spank and as my older boy screamed, she turned and said, 'Now, what is the matter with you?'"

"I was furious, yet I didn't want to be rude to a guest. So I said, 'The children are not used to that kind of treatment.'

"I'll admit he shouldn't have grabbed anything from the table, but he is just a baby and I certainly didn't feel she had the privilege of whipping him. She didn't apologize for taking such authority, but acted as if I should think it quite all right.

"Of course, from some one the baby had only seen two or three times, treatment like that was such a surprise that he will never forget it. Neither of the boys is perfect. I do not want to be the type of mother who lets youngsters do just as they please, but neither do I want them to mind because they are afraid. In fact, I can't help but feel that his offense was less than hers. I can never feel the same towards her again. Could any mother, under the same circumstances?"

No—and I don't think she should.

We all, I imagine, look back on handling of certain social situations and wonder why we were so weak-kneed. The chief trouble is that we are often taken unawares. But once having had an experience, we should determine not to be too delicate with a grown person who is officious and unkind toward our children. Often, as this mother says, the child's offense is much less than the adult's. We must remember that there are times when excessive politeness to an interfering grownup is unfair, even harmful, to a child.

OUR SECRET AMBITION

The Woman Hater

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Faire Chapelle is the stepdaughter of "Ma" Chapelle, who owns Flaxen's Casino, a café of ill repute, near the water front of Port Bai. Faire and Aya, "Ma's" daughter by her first husband of dubious color, have been trained to assist in Flaxen's. The Chapelles are looked upon as outcasts by respectable island residents and Faire feels their attitude keenly because her father was of unimpeachable antecedents. He had brought her as a little girl into these unsavory surroundings and left her there at his death. She has kept aloof from all that Flaxen's represents.

Sir Philip Persian is governor and commander in chief of the Tama islands, Bai and St. Rosario. His young secretary and ward, Robert Grand, is involved in an affair with Mira Worcester, a faded beauty. Her husband has become suspicious. Sir Philip is anxious to save the boy from a scandal. Malise Bookes, the governor's aid-de-camp, asks Faire, as a favor to the governor, to clear Mira by proving it was she who'd been meeting young Grand secretly, threatening to close Flaxen's and have the Chapelles deported unless she consents. Sir Philip is furious with Bookes when he learns that Faire was forced to accept Mira's guilt. He sends for Faire to try to make amends. He arranges to have her return to her father's people in England. Mira Worcester sails on the same boat with Faire. In London Faire is met by her older widowed sister, Sheba, now Lady Rosewood, who owns a famous beauty salon.

INSTALLMENT XIX.

A WOMAN'S PORTRAIT.

"Can I work in your beauty salon, Sheba darling?"

"You must, Faire."

"I know nothing!"

"Well, I will show you, darling. You have a lot to learn."

"I suppose I am a fool."

"No. You are not a fool." Her sister looked at her closely. "Your life hasn't been lived in a nursery; or a cloister; or even a garden, has it?"

"My God! No!" She thought of Flaxen's. "I've learned early."

"Learned what?"

"The sordid side of things. How I have hated those islands that I suppose all the visitors think so heavenly!"

"I know from your eyes," said Sheba, "that you have been fighting."

Sheba was seated on a dressing stool before mirrors.

The soft summer evening light dimmed. The butler came in and turned on the candle lights in the wall scones. Still they sat talking, though neither Sheba nor Faire felt any longing for childhood reminiscences, nor to resurrect memories of the father who had failed them or of the mother whom Faire, at least, had never known.

"I suppose you've often wondered what mother was like," Sheba barely commented; "she was very sweet and very cold, I think. I remember her dying, and I remember seeing you a day old." That was all the tribute they paid to a past that had cheated them both.

They were concerned, Faire passionately, Sheba resolutely, with the future.

At last: "We must really dress," Sheba sighed; "come to my room if you're ready first, Faire." And they went upstairs.

In her room Faire began to look at herself very carefully in the mirror. At Port Bai she had not cared. Men had told her she was the prettiest female thing on the island, or in the whole of the West Indies, for that matter; she had rarely listened and never believed. She had been sick of sexual charm as exploited—she could remember it only a few years ago—by Ma Chapelle; and then later by Aya, a replica of her mother. Hating the atmosphere of license which breathed upon the café, Faire had never, in spite of all Ma Chapelle's impatient urgings, wished to attract. But now, in the room Sheba had given her, a room charming and efficiently equipped for all the exigencies of a petted woman, longing for beauty rose in her dominant. She must be very beautiful!

She must learn tremendcusly. Tremendously! Here in the triple mirrors she criticized what nature had given her, rich rough hair, eyes dark and deep, golden tan gloriously smooth. The first vanity she had known struck her with passion. "I want to be simply divine!" For what? For whom?

She bathed and put on the wilted organdie and went to Sheba's room.

To reach this one went through a tiny anteroom with a sofa, flowers, a tea table, walls lined with photographs like a portrait gallery. Sheba's maid opened the door to her, and through the farther door Faire could see her sister's bedroom, lacquer and silk, a vista at the end of which was Sheba seated on a dressing stool before a most adequate arrangement of mirrors.

The maid, having let in this untamed looking young sister of her lady's, returned to the bedroom. But Faire lingered, looking at everything about her for sheer satisfaction. The malmaisons with their insistent heavy perfume, the classic line of the Récamier couch, the picture of Sheba and her room in the frame of the doorway, the portraits on the walls.

Then suddenly the woman's portrait stood out as if it flamed! The mature, voluptuous, appealing woman of the picture thousands of miles away on Philip Persian's desk!

Now Faire stood rooted, the vista of lacquer room and four white mirrored Shebas swept from her consciousness in a moment. She could gaze only at the face of this appealing woman, who looked out every day at Philip Persian from beneath the shade of the green lamp.

Sheba turned on the dressing seat and saw Faire standing quite still in the anteroom. She thought to herself: "I knew there was something . . ."

"What are you looking at, darling?" she called.

Slowly Faire answered, not turning: "A photograph, an interesting face."

"Let's see."

She put her bare arm softly through Faire's bare arm.

"O, do you know her, Faire?"

"No. O, no, no! How could I? It arrested me; that's all. A friend of yours, Sheba?"

"A friendly client. It is an old photograph—but she always uses it still. It's flattering."

"What's her name, Sheba?"

"Mrs. Chevronne."

. . . . . .

Malise Bookes was in London three weeks after Faire Chapelle arrived, and he was glad to get there, whatever the rather galling reasons for his return six months in advance of plan. Those damned islands! Life in that tropic confinement had upon imaginative and normally emotional people the same staggering effect that a long voyage on a ship will often produce. As the world of a passenger ship—in these days of organized ocean luxury, ocean sophistication, and heady excitements—is not a normal life, so the limitation of life on Bai and St. Rosario was not normal. And it continued for years. It drenched a man with the sun, the warmth, the color, and the physical ease.

Bookes thought, as he wondered to whom his steps should turn first on the pavements of London, that it took a fellow like Persian to remain himself: unweakened, unsoftened; unchanged; untempted. "At least," Bookes added to himself, "I don't know about untempted." He could still see the governor's face when he knew that Faire Chapelle had played lead in the hoax at the deserted bungalow. Also she had been at government house, coming quietly at night, alone in the government car, on the night before she sailed in the government steamer. All the island had hummed: "Sir Philip is sending her away from Bobby Grand." But Malise Bookes knew better. He knew that the governor sent her—jealously—out of all danger of all kind.

For what?

What had there been between them?

Malise Bookes, glad to escape six months ahead from his duties in the Tama Islands, yet could not feel too well pleased over the manner of his going. It savored—though no one knew anything save Persian and himself—of ignominy. After Faire Chapelle's sensational disappearance there had been two weeks of the usual work. Two weeks of growing rage, battened down, unexpressed; two weeks of the clear, silent understanding that one man may have of another as to why this thing had been done in this particular manner; and then suddenly the bombshell which Malise, keeping his suave look, manner, and procedure all those days of gathering storm, expedited: "Bookes, there is a steamer due to sail from St. Vincent. You can go any time. Grand can take over your job here—if you have any pressing business to attend to at home."

"Thank you, sir."

"Good day."

That had been the last word between them. He had left Bai by the government steamer for St. Vincent as soon as possible after that talk and Bobby Grand took on the duties of aid. A short term secretary was found in the person of a young relative who had come out to convalesce with the governor of the Windward Islands. . . . Malise Bookes did not care how Persian made up his establishment. He smiled, but was deeply furious. He had been sent home.

Bright Sayings of the Children

My sister, pretending to be a saleslady, was trying to interest my small niece, her hard to satisfy customer. After showing her various articles she said, "We have some very lovely pewter ware."

"All right," exclaimed my niece, "I'll take two suits."

Our little daughter, Mary Allen, had a tooth filled with cement one day. The next day in school she was telling her teacher about it, and her teacher asked her what she had had it filled with. Quickly she answered: "I had it filled with a piece of sidewalk."

Girls of Films, Not Men, Set Trouser Styles

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 20.—If you want to follow the new styles in trousers you must watch the gals, not the boys here. Jill Esmond went to Radio studio wearing brown trousers, yellow sweater, and a brown beret. One of the persons she talked to there was Anita Louise in a double-breasted jacket, blue flannel sailor trousers, and a red beret. The fad on Hollywood boulevard shopping jaunts seems to be all for navy blue flannel trousers now that it's warm enough after a cold, wet winter, to wear them.

Elsie Cort, who was a screen vamp 15 years ago, and the favorite heroine for J. Warren Kerrigan thrillers, is now the girl in charge of the information office at the Fox studio.

John Gilbert refuses to give out any interviews at all, on any subject. Says he is not getting Garboish, but he won't stand for having any "poor John Gilbert" articles appear any more; he likes to give his sympathy, not take it. John says he will begin talking to magazine writers and reporters again after his next film comes out, and if it is a success and they admit, he will feel like talking plenty. Gilbert probably has as many staunch friends pulling for him to make the grand movie comeback, as anybody else out here, with the exception of Bill Hart. As for Bill Hart, he is in a class by himself when it comes to holding the respect and liking of all.

Irene Purcell is doing double duty. Daytimes she is cast with Ann Harding's "Westward Passage" at Radio. Nights she is in the stage cast of Edward Everett Horton's comedy, "Springtime for Henry," at Vine Street theater in Hollywood. Besides Miss Purcell, Zazu Pitts, Nance O'Neill, just finished with a stage revival of "Lysistrata" here; Juliette Compton, Laurence Olivier, Irving Pichel, and Donald Reed are in the "Westward Passage" cast. Reed is just back from a trip in Mexico, playing rôles in a number of original Mexican talkie dramas.

In order that her expected addition to the family may enter life a full fledged American, Virginia Lee Corbin [Mrs. Ted Krohl], former child actress, is returning to California shortly from the British studios in which she has been spending most of her career for the last several years. The baby is expected in August.

Describe Fun in Hunting for Indian Points

Hobby Offers Romance and Exercise.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

For romance and exercise there is, in the opinion of at least two of our townsfolk, only one sport. That is hunting Indian points. Of course, they explain, you must be something of a Sherlock Holmes to determine the old camp sites and you may be mistaken for a revenue agent and driven away at the point of a gun, but witha!——

"It's the best hobby there is," Addison E. Avery commented yesterday as he displayed a hundred or more prehistoric flints he has gathered in the last 20 or 30 years. "Relaxation and an education all in one."

Mr. Avery, an artist living in Oak Park, and L. L. Lazelle, a resident of the south side, have, without doubt, as fine private collections of early Indian relics as there are to be found in this region. Effigy pipes, ornamental stones, beads, Aztec idols, pottery, and many other items. But not one of these relics is associated more intimately with the red men than the little flint points in a variety of shapes and sizes. What fun it is to weave a story around each one—a tribal battle, a chase after the game, a religious ceremonial about the council fire—for some imagination has been necessary to write the important chapter of history they represent.

Spring Best Time for Hunt.

The stone age, that important archaeological designation of the period preceding the discovery and use of metals, has left us little in written records. So it has been necessary to reconstruct much of the story of the Indian, who was roaming the North American continent when Columbus arrived, from the possessions he left in his camp or buried with his dead.

Centuries have rolled by—flints by the thousands have been uncovered—and still it is possible to find more along an old stream, on the banks of a river, or atop a mound that was once an Indian camp site. Spring is the best time to dig, Mr. Avery explains, when the farmers are out with their plows and rains are washing hidden secrets from the ground. In the past Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and Tennessee, all densely populated at one time by the red men, have produced some of the finest specimens of arrowheads.

"In some parts of the south the old belief that flint points are crystallized lightning bolts still prevails," Mr. Avery said. "By the chipping, the age and authenticity of the points is determined. Just as the Indian was without bullets, he had no implements to make the arrowheads. The accepted belief is that he shaped them by the process of pressure—a hide over his left hand, a deer horn in his right. Then he took the flint, already chipped off roughly, and pried the flakes, one by one, until he obtained the desired shape. Another method was by tapping one stone against the other."

Rotary Points Are Found.

Imagine a "bow and arrow" war today. Not so effective, perhaps, but speedy, nevertheless, especially with the beveled or rotary points included in both Mr. Avery's and Mr. Lazelle's collections. Found at an approximate ratio of one in every 10,000, these arrowheads represent in their shaping the rifling in the barrel of a gun which, you probably know, gives the whirl or spin to a bullet. Even the Indians were scientific!

There are examples of other shapes and sizes—sawtooth edges that show all the precision of an expert workman, and square barbs similar to those on flints found in Ireland. The tiny points called war tips were used for bringing down birds or small animals, so that the carcass would not be seriously injured. For war and hunting big game the larger arrowheads, often poisoned, were used.

Other Materials Used Frequently.

Flint [the word is frequently interchanged with arrowhead] was the material most generally used for the Indian points, both collectors point out. But even the earliest red men also employed other materials according to their location on the continent. In the southwest, for example, obsidian [a molten glass with such a fine grain that it chips easily] was most often used, while quartz crystal was in favor among the Indians around what is now our capital city. Quartzite or sugar stone [it looks like maple sugar] was made into arrowheads in the north, as well as the copper found in the Lake Superior region.

"But think of an Indian fashioning anything from a cold inflexible lump of copper brought down by the glaciers," Mr. Avery went on. "The art of smelting had never even been dreamed of in those prehistoric days. This is the fun, the romance in collecting arrowheads. Again I say, it is sport unexcelled.

One Satin, One Ermine Side Is the Lot of Distinctive Paris Evening Wrap

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The need of furs on spring and summer evenings is often an actual one. However, the fur coat or jacket in balmy weather has the fault of looking hot, a serious misdemeanor. To avoid this, and to provide a wrap that can be worn throughout an entire season for all kinds of weather, Bruyere has created a jacket that is a fur wrap or a silk wrap at will. This kind of wrap supplies an excellent idea for utilizing somewhat worn ermine.

The jacket is reversible and has a side which is black satin, with only a line of ermine showing around the edges and with ermine revers. On the other side it is all ermine and the revers are satin.

By consulting the accompanying sketch you may judge the chic of this dcuble faced evening wrap. On the large figure is shown the ermine face of the model, with its draped revers of black satin and its sleeves that are flared below the elbows, then caught into a narrow circle at the wrists. In the small sketch the back of the jacket is shown with the satin side out. The V shaped yoke at the back of the neck is repeated about half way down the back of the jacket, and this deeper yoke is cut in one with the back of the sleeves, giving the fashionable deep armhole.

The length of this evening wrap is a bit more distinctive than a shorter jacket would be. Many Parisiennes are wearing evening jackets of this length.

Institute to Hold Special Campaign Against Tuberculosis

A special campaign to prevent the spread of tuberculosis will be started by the Chicago Tuberculosis institute on Thursday, the fiftieth anniversary of the announcement by Robert Koch that he had discovered the cause of the disease. According to officials of the institute, economic depressions and the undernourishment they cause are favorable to the spread of tuberculosis. Persons suspecting the disease will be urged to have early diagnosis and treatment.

Real Beauty Has Little Need of Artificial Aids

Jeanette MacDonald Is Perfect Type.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Returned from tea-ing with the loveliest looking young woman seen in many a day, I fell to musing over the "agelessness" of certain beauty forms and the short, short tenure of certain other types. In our gallery of beautiful women today there are those so "dated" that you may predict with safety a short memory run for their charms. Certain screen beauty, for instance, is promoted under the steam of widely publicized lore as to the individual's background, habits and so on. The public imagination endows such with more beauty than they give the public, really.

Tomorrow a new inspirer with a better press agent takes their place. Then, there are the beauties manufactured out of clothes, coiffures, eyebrow drawings, silhouette control, out of studied pace and gesture. A credit to the manufacturer's art, to be sure, but not "ageless" in charm. Others are capitalizing pictorially on a certain eroticism that veins our current day and life. And, of course, there are the honestly pretty.

And then there is Jeanette MacDonald, the girl I tea-d with and the one who inspired my musings. As I'd tell it to the girl friends confidentially, "There is one wonderful beauty, that MacDonald girl!"

Her kind of beauty is the "ageless" kind, without a doubt. A hundred years ago or a hundred years from now, Miss MacDonald, as she appears today, would still inspire the painter's brush, the poet's pen, and typewriters belonging to the likes of me.

She is superbly lovely. Her coloring alone is sufficient gift of the gods for one woman. Her hair is a vital, live red gold. She has the loveliest shade of green eyes you ever saw. Her eyebrows are the untouched shade of her hair and not too sharply drawn. Teeth — perfect. Voice — charming. Figure—tall, slight with a beautifully curved line.

The gal has everything, my pals, even to a handsome, square cut diamond on the love finger.

'Tain't fair—all she's got!

All of the painting the lily that goes on in the MacDonald girl's boudoir is olive oil face baths, a light dash of orangey rouge and a mixture of white vaseline and brown eyeshadow for the upper lid.

No flaming nail tips. Nice, quiet polish. "The less touched up the red head," Miss MacDonald believes, the better the picture." And that goes for other types, in her judgment, but for the red heads particularly. Says when she wears browns, evening or daytime, to which she is addicted, people say, "How well you're looking!" The color must do something for her to earn the compliment. And that, Miss MacDonald, thinks the best kind of color guide.

Jelly Roll May Be Varied with Tasty Fillings

Proves Light and Dainty Springtime Dessert.

BY MARY MEADE.

Since this is Holy week in most of the churches, our menus have been planned with an eye to their appropriateness. They need not be immediately shelved after Good Friday, however, for their simplicity and inexpensiveness recommend them for use throughout the year.

We have been the recipient of requests asking the whys and wherefores of making jelly rolls. For tomorrow's luncheon we have suggested one for a dessert. Inasmuch as jelly rolls may be chocolate or plain, be filled with any of a variety of jellies and other fillings, we will give just the general directions here.

The base for any jelly roll is that of a sponge cake. You may use your own recipe or the one we are offering. However, the sponge batter must be baked in a shallow cake pan, or pans, instead of the regular angel food cake pan.

JELLY ROLL SPONGE.

4 eggs, separated
2 cups of sugar
2 cups of cake flour.
2 tsps. of baking powder.
½ tsp. of salt
½ cup of cold water

Sift both the sugar and flour once before measuring. Beat the yolks until light and lemon colored. Add the sifted sugar gradually to them and then the cold water, gradually, too. Sift the flour, baking powder, and salt together three times. Add to the egg mixture. Whip the eggs until they "peak" and are stiff, but not dry, and add to the other ingredients. Combine well, but do not beat. Pour into a shallow greased cake pan. Dust the pan with flour after it has been greased. Bake in a moderately slow oven [325 degrees F.] about thirty-five minutes.

The next step in making the roll is to place a cloth over a bread board and sift powdered sugar over the cloth. Turn the sponge cake out on the cloth while the cake is warm. Cut away the crusty edges on all sides of the cake. Spread any preferred jelly over the cake and roll it up carefully in the cloth. Just before slicing for tea or luncheon service, sprinkle it again with powdered sugar, or it may be served with sweetened whipped cream.

Jelly roll variations may be made, as we said, with different fillings. A fig or date filling is good, and also lemon and orange fillings. For a chocolate roll, divide the batter in half and add one square of melted chocolate to the egg and sugar mixture.

Official Contract

Do you like riddles? Gather around and I'll ask you one. When is a ruff not a ruff? This is a perfectly swell riddle because it has several answers. And one is when the hand on your left opens with a trump lead. This is a rotten thing for the leader to do and often causes the declarer no end of unnecessary trouble. Witness yesterday's play-a-problem:

♣—10

West dealt and bid a diamond. North and East passed. South bid a spade. West now passed and North took out with two clubs. After East's pass South jumped to three spades, showing not only a marked preference for that suit and more strength than announced by his original bid, but also that he needed no more than normal trump support. West passed. North now went to four spades, which closed the bidding.

West opened the ♠ 8, dummy played the 5, East the 2, and South took with the 10. South now led the ♣ 10, which West captured with the ♣ A, leading back the ♠ 6, which dummy took with the ♠ 9. Dummy now led the ♣ K, on which South discarded the ♦ 3. To the next trick dummy led the ♣ 5, which declarer trumped with the ♠ Q. Declarer now led the ♠ 7 to dummy's ♠ J. Dummy led back the ♣ 9, which was now high and on which declarer discarded the ♦ 4. To the eighth trick dummy led the ♣ 6 and declarer discarded the ♦ J. Next dummy led the ♥ K, which East took with the ♥ A and returned the ♦ 7, on which South played his last diamond, the queen, and which West took with the ♦ K. West then returned the ♠ A, which declarer trumped with the ♠ K. Declarer then proceeded to take the last two tricks with the ♠ A in his own hand, the ♥ Q in the dummy—North and South making four-odd and their game.

At first glance this looks like the ruffing type of hand, and it might have been ruffed except that West was unkind enough to open with a trump. This made it necessary for declarer to strip the trump suit in order to make his game and his contract. Any other possible plan of play against proper defense is bound to lose four tricks—one in clubs, one in hearts, and two in diamonds. I expect some one to write in and show me where I am wrong and maybe he will be right.

Here is tomorrow's play-a-problem:

NORTH (Dealer).
♠—A,5

WEST. EAST.

Mitzi Green and Clown Movie Are Good Time Week for Kids

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

This is good time week for kids, over at the Palace theater. You should have seen and heard 'em Saturday!

Practically every child in town—so it seemed—who could persuade a parent to be reasonable, was on deck to see Miss Mitzi Green, in person. Did she go over? She was a riot! And Mitzi proved to be only one endearing attraction of several, for the management with laudable perspicacity had also provided a "Mickey" comedy, and a film featuring a clown—Mr. Joe E. Brown, who is a hit with youngsters even when accompanying adults long to hit HIM.

Happily, "Fireman, Save My Child" is one of Mr. Brown's best releases up to date. He is seen as a Bush Leaguer who becomes the best pitcher in the Big League and whose prowess spells victory for the St. Louis Cardinals, but whose heart is not in his work. No. There are three things in life that Joe cares about—going to fires, patenting a fire extinguisher he's invented, and—Sally, to whom he's engaged.

A professional vamp who follows the ball team almost cramps the home town girl's future, but ONLY almost . . .

When the film opens Joe Grant, "Smoky Joe," is discovered as a member of the fire department and ball team of Rosedale, Kansas. When it ends, he's right back in Rosedale, but O, boy, how things have changed for the hero, since, reluctantly, he left the old home town! He has, in sooth, lived and learned since then—or, at any rate, lived and been lucky.

Mr. Brown writes his comedy in caricatural italics with much underlining in the matter of eye and mouth work. He's amusing, and only gives his seal cry twice. It is an awful noise, but Mr. Brown loves to make it, and has almost ruined himself with audiences by his intemperate indulgence in it. This time, however, only two incidents have been written in to afford him opportunity to yelp. They are the overturning of a canoe and the removal of a mustard plaster from his hirsute chest. O, well, tapering off is supposed to be one way of quitting a vice—so here's hoping.

"FIREMAN, SAVE MY CHILD."

Directed by Lloyd Bacon.
Presented at the Palace Theater.

THE CAST.

Joe Grant.....Joe E. Brown
Sally.....Evelyn Knapp
June.....Lilian Bond
Stevens.....George Meeker
Pop.....Guy Kibbee
Mascot for St. Louis team..George Ernest
Larkin.....Ben Hendricks Jr.
Miss Gallop.....Virginia Sale
Pitcher.....Frank Shallenbach
Dan Toby.....Richard Carle
Trainer.....Louis Robinson
Radio Announcer.....Curtis Benton

The picture has been brightly directed and Mr. Brown has an excellent supporting cast. George Kibbee is especially good as a baseball team manager and Evelyn Knapp as the hero's loyal sweetheart, plays sincerely. Photography is splendid, and there's an entertaining ball game toward the end. Some of the baseball stuff has, I imagine, been borrowed from news reels.

All told, the Palace this week is specializing in good, clean fun which should prove gratifying to grownups as well as children.

ITEM: In the hero's home town they still take horses to fires—which is one more reason for seeing this picture. The younger generation will probably never experience the thrill we used to get from the great, white galloping beauties that used to tote the hook and ladder to its destination.

See you soon!

Little Theater of Dance Gets Welcome Here

Berenice Holmes, Corey in Recital.

BY HAZEL MOORE.

Chicago's newest venture, the "Little Theater of the Dance," located at 218 South Wabash avenue, opened its doors with commendable promptness yesterday afternoon to introduce Arthur Corey, who accepts billing as the "Pre-Eminent Young American Dancer," and Berenice Holmes with perhaps more warranted but inaccurate title of "Premier Danseuse Adolph Bolm Ballet." As Miss Holmes is distinctly feminine, she should at least be so credited in the title.

This Little Theater of the Dance starts operations with an excellent idea as a basis, to offer a hall of size for presenting recital opportunity to the increasing number of young professionals [presumably local], of the dance. Their choice of quarters in the old McClurg building has the advantage of central location, adequate stage and lighting facilities, and the disadvantages of vitiated air, and a seating arrangement of chairs on a studio floor from which it is quite impossible to see more than the upper half of the dancer. The latter was overcome yesterday by this reviewer by the simple process of finding a comfortable perch on the ballet practice bar, where a bird's-eye view could be obtained. The air was unavoidable.

It was a pleasure to see again the delicate grace and sterling technic of Miss Holmes' dancing. Based on the sound principles of the ballet, her toe work is a delight and her easy control of the more acrobatic feats of the adagio work danced with Corey was unusual. Combined with this, Miss Holmes has the almost old fashioned attributes of youth, and beauty of face and form. She was most popular with the audience.

Arthur Corey is more difficult to classify. He is entirely modern, and entirely American. He obviously prefers dances of an eccentric nature or of an acrobatic trend. These he accomplishes with amazing ease and control. The "Allegro Barbaro" to music by Bartok, was deservedly popular, and his vaudeville take-off of a Harlemite was both amusing and effective. He, too, was an immense favorite.

Mary Wigman made her third and last Chicago appearance of the season at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon before a fair sized audience, in a program made up from three of her dance cycles, that called "Shifting Landscape," four numbers from the cycle "Sacrifice," and her famous "Monotony Whirl Dance" from "Celebration." These she danced with the dignified rightness that has made Wigman's dancing worthy of the wide recognition that it has received. As one auditor remarked, "She is like olives, she grows on you." And it is true that as one becomes accustomed to the unusual patterns, especially of the arms, in her dances, one is increasingly interested.

Next year Miss Wigman promises to bring a group of twelve of her pupils with her, and so afford an opportunity to see the Wigman plan as adapted to the larger group form.

String Quartet Follows Course of Good Music

The chamber music series of the Chicago String quartet at the Chicago Woman's club theater continues on a course that indicates both good music and a fair degree of popularity, two always desirable goals that are not always reached simultaneously.

Yesterday's program opened with the C minor composition of Beethoven's opus 18 set, and continued with a transcription made by Robert Dolejsi of Debussy's "The Maid with Flaxen Hair" and a single movement from a quartet by Giovanni Sgambati. Then, borrowing the services of Joseph Vito, the accomplished harpist of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, the organization gave the first American performance of a quintet for harp and strings by Jean Cras.

It was a fair sample of the Chicago String quartet's customary programs. They have a good sized repertoire of standard works; they are constantly looking over the field for new works. Moreover, they play with eagerness and sincerity, whatever may be the school or period of the chosen composition. E. M.

THE STAGE

The present plans of Katharine Cornell, who is now touring in Rudolph Besier's play, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," will bring her to Chicago Monday, April 18. Her engagement will be for not less than two weeks and not more than four. The theater in which she will appear has not yet been selected, but it is almost certain to be the Harris, from which "Experience Unnecessary" departed last Saturday night . . . Incidentally, the latter play will begin a second Broadway engagement next Friday night.

Harry Minturn, leading man and impresario of dramatic stock companies, has ambitions to enliven the Chicago Rialto. His hopes are said to include Woods theater, which has contributed nothing to the "legitimate" stage for more than a few years, and to be focussed upon a production of "Louder, Please," with Hal Skelly in the rôle that was played on Broadway by Lee Tracy.

The "Blue Mask" company, numbering seventy comedians, singers, and dancers, and headed by Guy Robertson, will arrive in Chicago today. Rehearsals will begin immediately in preparation for a première at the Grand Opera house next Sunday night.

Seven carloads of scenery and costumes will be delivered at the stage door of the Grand today, for use in "The Blue Mask" and other musical shows. The Shuberts plan to produce a series of operettas, extending well into the summer, in this theater.

George M. Cohan's latest play, called "Confidential Service" and dealing with detectives, is a prospect for Chicago. The piece will receive its first acting in Philadelphia March 28. After two weeks there and two more in Boston Mr. Cohan hopes to lead his company in this direction. C. C.

ST. PATRICK TAKES NATIONAL BASKETBALL TITLE

ST. MEL LOSES, 22-20, TO TEAM IT BEAT 3 TIMES

Father Ryan Third in Catholic Meet.

St. Patrick High school captured the United States Catholic High school basketball championship last night by defeating St. Mel, a rival member of the Chicago Catholic league, 22 to 20, in the finals of the ninth annual national tournament at Loyola university gymnasium.

Forty-five hundred watched the two teams from Chicago's west side battle for the title. St. Patrick was awarded the Cardinal Mundelein trophy and also the Mayor A. J. Cermak trophy for the best showing made by an Illinois team.

Comes Back in Second Half.

St. Patrick was completely outplayed in the first half, and came back in the second half to defeat St. Mel, which had beaten the new champions three times during the Chicago league season.

During the second half the score was tied three times. The lead changed several times, with the leader never holding more than a two point advantage. In the last quarter a basket by Ray Meyers, St. Patrick forward, gave the Shamrocks a 21 to 20 lead.

A few seconds later William Asher sank a free throw and St. Patrick led 22 to 20. In the last seconds of the game Asher fouled Donald Allen, the tall, red headed St. Mel guard. Allen was given two free throw attempts because of being fouled while shooting. With a chance to tie the score, Allen stepped to the free throw line. He missed the first shot. Again he tried and missed.

St. Mel Off to 10-4 Lead.

With Allen and Rigney scoring, St. Mel went into the lead at the end of the first quarter by 10 to 4, Ciensie sinking St. Patrick's only points.

Ciensie opened the second quarter by scoring a field goal. It was followed by a field goal by Cain and a few minutes later Meyer sank two baskets in succession. Allen scored a basket as the period ended with St. Mel leading, 14 to 10.

Meyers broke through to make two more field goals for St. Patrick, tying the score at 14 all. St. Patrick took the lead on a basket by McCauley, but the score again was tied, 16 to 16. Adams made good on a free throw attempt and again St. Patrick forged to the front.

Allen scored a basket and St. Mel took the lead. The lead changed again when Asher scored for St. Patrick, but as the quarter ended Crowley scored and St. Mel led, 20 to 19.

In the fourth quarter, Meyers put St. Patrick in the lead, 21 to 20, and a few minutes later Asher sank a free throw. Then Allen was fouled while shooting and missed his chance to tie the score.

Nashville Takes Third.

St. Patrick, by defeating St. Mel, becomes the sixth Chicago team to win the United States championship. St. Mel won the national title in 1925.

Father Ryan of Nashville, Tenn., finished in the same position as it did last year when it defeated Campion academy of Prairie du Chien, Wis., 25 to 23, for third place. A rally in the last quarter gave the southerners victory.

Prairie du Chien, trailing 7 to 4 in the first period, rallied to take an 8 to 7 advantage at the half. Nashville again went to the front in the third period on baskets by Geny, Pete Curley, and Curtis Curley.

In the fourth period Flannigan scored a free throw for Campion when he was fouled by Geny. Bradley sank a basket to put Campion in the lead, 19 to 18.

Score Tied at 23.

Bradley sank two more baskets. Geny scored a basket and a penalty throw. It was followed by a field goal by Kleiser, making the score 23 to 23. Kleiser a few minutes later dribbled down the floor and sank a basket just as the gun sounded.

Allen of St. Mel was named on the all-tournament team which was selected last night. John Ford of Cathedral High school of Indianapolis was picked as the other guard. The two forwards are Pete Curley of Father Ryan and Thaddeus Mahalko of St. Thomas, Scranton, Pa. Marty Peters, tall star of Spalding institute of Peoria, was chosen as center.

Veenker Now No. 1 Among Wisconsin Coach Prospects

Madison, Wis., March 20.—(AP)—The name of George Veenker, coach at Iowa State, tonight was mentioned prominently in campus gossip as the latest coach to be considered as a candidate to succeed Glenn Thistlethwaite, resigned head football coach at the University of Wisconsin.

Veenker's name came to the fore as Clark Shaughnessy, coach at Loyola university, New Orleans, started back south after a week-end conference with Badger athletic officials. The negotiations with Shaughnessy were not made public.

CUBS CUT DOWN OAKS, 6-2, AFTER 7-7 MORNING TIE

Smith, Malone Show They Are Ready for 9 Innings.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oakland, Cal., March 20.—After being humiliated by an eleven inning tie with the Oaks in a morning game, the Cubs bounced back impressively this afternoon and spanked the same foe with consummate ease. The after breakfast deadlock was called with the score at 7 to 7 and the afternoon decision was reached by 6 to 2. Most of the regulars took a hand in the latter affair, whereas the pre-luncheon workout was intrusted to a makeshift combination of youngsters.

The long day of toil uncovered two Cub hurlers able to weather the nine inning route. Bob Smith lasted that long in the morning, although he had considerable trouble with a lad named Leroy Anton, who uncorked two homers and a triple. The second of the homers came with a mate waiting in the ninth and erased a two run lead by which the Chicagoans expected to win. Pat Malone had no such trouble in the afternoon. His first inning was a bit shaky, but thereafter he showed the Oaks something they could not fathom.

Richbourg Drops Fly.

The morning exercises began with the Oaks staging a two run demonstration against Smith. Richbourg invited the outburst by dropping a fly by Pinelli, the leadoff hitter. Pinelli scored on a three base blast by Uhalt, and the latter scooted home on a long fly to right.

Hornsby's Boy Scout lineup made no impression on Kasich's pitching until the third inning, when they assumed a temporary lead by registering three times. Smith started this by singling with one out, and Uhalt did the Cubs a favor by muffing Hack's tall fly to center. After Herman's infield demise the bags were loaded on a pass to J. Moore. Barton was plunked in the seat of the pants by a pitched ball and this forced Smith to score. Hack and Moore hiked in on a single by Richbourg.

The Oaks moved out in front again with a pair in their half. The ingredients in this attack were a single by Kasich and the first of Anton's two homers over the left field signboards.

Smith Helps Own Cause.

Smith used his own bat to get his mates back into a tie for a few moments in the seventh. He doubled to left center, went to third on Hack's sacrifice, and home on Herman's fly. It was 5 to 4 in the Oaks' favor in their half of the same session when Kasich doubled and strolled over the plate on a triple by Anton. Then the Cubs tied it in the eighth. Barton doubled and Richbourg's single scored him.

Another double by Smith, Hack's triple and an error gave the Chicagoans two runs in the ninth, but this wasn't enough. In the Oaks' half, Smith gave a pass and Anton got loose again. He wafted his second homer over the fence and the argument became knotted at 7 apiece. It remained that way until called off so as not to interfere with the afternoon show.

AFTERNOON GAME

The Oaks started off against Malone in the afternoon much after the manner in which they had started against Smith in the morning. Pinelli opened with a single to left and was forced by Uhalt. Anton, who had so much fun with Smith before the luncheon period, was defiated on three strikes, but Hufft stepped into the breach. He clubbed a homer over the right field fence. The Cubs cut this handicap in half in the fourth when Cuyler doubled and scored on a boot by Anton at first base.

Malone had to show his mates how to do things in a big way in the fifth. What he started wound up in three runs. H. Taylor walked, stole second and scored on Malone's single. Pat

San Antonio, Tex., March 20.—A right interesting ball game was played by the White Sox here this afternoon against one of the series of minor league tipovers. The Sox scored a rousing 8 to 4 victory, with the main part of the triumph coming when they scored six runs after two were out in the fourth.

The Sox looked at pretty good pitching this afternoon and the manner in which they socked the ball afforded a measure of satisfaction to those who have been somewhat concerned about the manner in which the players had been swinging their batting implements. Thirteen hits were the day's total.

Blackhawks Beat Bruins, 1-0, to Enter Stanley Cup Play-off

The Chicago Blackhawks qualified for the Stanley cup playoffs, the world's championship hockey competition by defeating the Boston Bruins, 1 to 0, at Chicago Stadium last night in the final game of their regular schedule.

The victory was a personal triumph for Paul Thompson, young Blackhawk wing, who scored the only goal midway in the third period. The goal climaxed a season's endeavor on Thompson's part to score against his illustrious brother, Tiny Thompson, the Boston goalie.

Boston, up until the time young Paul had scored his first goal of the year on Tiny, had bent every effort to play for a tie in an endeavor to strengthen its chances for a playoff berth. The defeat leaves Boston with only an outside chance of qualifying. It must defeat the New York Americans at Boston Tuesday and Detroit must lose to the New York Rangers at Detroit on the same day. A Detroit tie Tuesday will make the Falcons the third American division team in the playoffs.

March and Gardiner Heroes.

Although Thompson's goal made it possible for the Blackhawks to prepare for a playoff game in the Stadium next Sunday night, Mush March, pint-sized wing, and Chuck Gardiner, injured goalie, were the chief factors in Boston's defeat. March's offensive efforts missed fire by the breadth of an eyelash half a dozen times when a goal seemed inevitable, and it was his solo dash in the third period that prepared the way for Thompson's score. Gardiner, zealously guarded by his mates in the first two periods, was virtually at the mercy of the five man Boston assault in the last half of the third period, but overcame the handicap of nine stitches in his head and a sleepless night aboard a Pullman to play the greatest game of the season.

Chuck Gardiner, the Blackhawk injured goalie, took his place in the Chicago cage amid a deafening cheer at the start of the scoreless first period. His head was swathed in bandages and he wore a regulation football helmet to protect the nine stitches taken in a cut suffered at Toronto Saturday night.

With Gardiner far below normal playing condition, the Hawks fashioned their defense to keep the Boston forwards beyond the blue line. They played the man, rather than the puck, and through some of the heaviest body checking seen on the Stadium ice, they were able to keep Gardiner well protected.

Tiny Thompson, likewise, received more than the customary aid from his defense, and the Hawks, although around his cage several times, gave Thompson no serious trouble.

Second Period a Deadlock.

No manner of exertion on the part of the Blackhawks could break the scoreless deadlock in the second period as the Bruins continued their determination to finish with nothing less than a tie. Vicious body checking kept the Boston forwards away from Gardiner again, but the Bruins got the one real scoring opportunity of the period in the last minute of play when Welland brought the puck down and Gardiner had to leave his net to smother a shot from the side.

With the net wide open and the puck loose scarcely eight feet in front of it, only the agility of March in the melee that ensued prevented one of three Bruins from nudging it in. Twice in this period March rose to heights with solo dashes through Boston's entire five man defense, but each time Goalie Thompson made sensational stops on his short, hard shots.

Thompson Scores Victory.

George Owen, the former Harvard football star, started the third period at defense for Boston and immediately knocked March to the ice. Welland grabbed the puck on the play and started down, precipitating great commotion, in which five Bruins participated, around the Hawks net. This was only a warning of what was to come.

March finally broke away on another of his spirited solo sprints and carried the puck through the forwards, around Foster, and back of the cage. He feigned a pass to Cook at the left and then shot the puck to Paul Thompson. Owen was between Paul and the cage, and when he attempted to give Paul a football block Paul skated around him, beating his brother, Tiny, with a close shot. The score came in eight minutes even.

Boston Bruins began to swarm around Gardiner by the score. Half a dozen times in the last three minutes, he staved off forays and broke up scrimmages in the very mouth of the net by falling on the puck. He had 15 stops for the period, nine of which came in the last three minutes. Twice he was prone on the ice away from the cage, but defense men blocked the gaping net.

U. S. NET TEAM FAVORED OVER FRENCH TODAY

New York, March 20.—(AP)—With the new national indoor singles and doubles champions and the singles runner-up composing the United States team, America was the favorite today to defeat France in the third international team match between the two countries which starts tomorrow at the Seventh Regiment armory.

The team match, which has come to be regarded as a sort of winter Davis cup match, is decided in the same way as the greater international competition. It will open with two singles matches which send Gregory Mangin of Newark, winner of the indoor title yesterday, against Christian Boussus, now considered the best of the three French stars, and Frank Shields of New York, the runner-up, against the veteran French star, Jean Borotra. The order will be reversed for the concluding singles Wednesday.

The doubles match will be played Tuesday. The new indoor champions, George Lott Jr. and John Van Ryn, have been chosen to represent the United States. France's team has not been named, but unless the singles indicate a one-sided match, Borotra and Boussus probably will play.

Agitato Wins $2,000 Auteuil Steeplechase

AUTEUIL, France, March 20.—(AP)—E. Ballero's Agitato won the Prix Adolphe Abeille steeplechase of 4,200 meters here today, with J. Cristobal's Vizille second and Viscount Derivaud's Le Miracle third. The race carried a purse of 50,000 francs [about $2,000].

BREAKS TRACK RECORD IN TWO LENGTH VICTORY

Reveille Boy Second, Scimitar Third.

Second in Earnings

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—Phar Lap's victory in the Agua Caliente handicap today enabled the Australian 5 year old to take second place in the list of the world's money winners.

Phar Lap now has won $332,750, and trails the great American thoroughbred, Sun Beau, by more than $43,000. Sun Beau, now retired, earned $376,744.

Gallant Fox, runner-up to Sun Beau until today, drops into third place with $328,165.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, March 20.—Phar Lap won the $50,000 Agua Caliente handicap today. And he came from behind to win it like the great horse he has proved himself to be in his campaigns in Australia.

Seventh past the grand stand the first time around, the mighty red terror from down under swept quickly into the lead, withstood the challenge of Reveille Boy, and went on to win by two lengths, in new track record time of 2:02 4-5 for the mile and a quarter. His time for the five quarters was: :22 4-5, :46 3-5, 1:11 3-5, 1:36 4-5, and 2:02 4-5.

Reveille Boy was second, with Scimitar third, Joe Flores fourth, and the rest of the field—Marine, Good and Hot, Seth's Hope, Spanish Play, Dr. Freeland, Bahamas, and Cabezo—finishing in the order named.

Proves His Superiority.

There wasn't an argument about the huge Australian's superiority. He broke last in the field of eleven and raced easily down the first quarter. Past the grand stand he was seventh, about six lengths back of Cabezo, which was in the lead. Round the first turn they thundered and then Phar Lap started moving up.

While the 15,000 fans in the stand roared approval, he rushed to the front. First it was Scimitar that fell before his rush. Then in turn Good and Hot, Dr. Freeland, Bahamas, Joe Flores, and Cabezo succumbed to his charge. With Billy Elliott riding a perfect race, the long striding Australian horse swept into the lead. At the half he was a length and half in front of Cabezo. At the three-quarters he was three lengths ahead of Reveille Boy. Into the stretch he was only a head in front, but then Elliott opened up. On and on swept Phar Lap. Reveille Boy tried gallantly, but he was no match for the Australian.

Rushes On in Big Stride.

On and on went Phar Lap, eating up yard after yard with his mighty 27 foot stride. Past the judges' stand he thundered, two lengths in the lead. Reveille Boy, which had made a galland stand, continued in second place, with Scimitar finishing fast to snatch third position. Joe Flores just lasted to beat Marine by a head for fourth honors.

David J. Davis and Thomas Telford, Phar Lap's owners, collected $50,050 for Phar Lap's winning effort, and the purse moved the gallant Australian champion into second place among the world's leading money winners with more than $332,750. His total is exceeded only by the sum won by Sun Beau.

Jockey Elliott rode a smart, capable race today, and Phar Lap's winning effort indicates that he will give future opponents all they can handle.

It was Phar Lap's first start on an American track. Trainer Tommy Woodcock had him in perfect shape.

Well Behaved at Barrier.

Phar Lap stood like well behaved old Exterminator used to at the barrier, while Reveille Boy and Scimitar kicked up a fuss.

They were at the post 6½ minutes before Starter Marshall Cassidy got them in line and away.

The Australian champion, which is scheduled to race in several Chicago and eastern stakes this summer, rewarded his backers with $5 for each $2 ticket. Place and show prices on Phar Lap were $6.60 and $2.80. Reveille Boy paid $6.20 and $5.40, while Scimitar checked in with $6.60.

The winning time was one-fifth of a second under the record of 2:03 set last year by Mike Hall.

No Sign of Depression.

There was no sign of economic distress on the part of the patrons. The gaming tables, betting booths, and the bar were so crowded elbow experts alone could get in to change their coin.

It was by far the best crowd seen at the track this year. Hotels on both sides of the border were packed last night. More than two dozen airplanes were lined up at the airport here and all possible planes were pressed into service by the big lines. A solid stream of automobiles passed over the international line through the morning hours and many persons crossed by train.

John McGraw, manager of the Giants, was on hand. So was Tom Heeney, the once heavyweight threat from Australia.

ONE MORE WEEK OF HARD WORK FOR GOLDEN GLOVERS

And Then, New York, Look to Your Laurels.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago's intercity Golden Gloves team began its final week of training yesterday with the fifth annual bouts against New York in Madison Square Garden eight days away. And in many ways yesterday was one of the best the Chicago boys have had for their drills.

In the morning the crisp air hastened the squad as it covered the required mileage along the lake front. Only one of the boxers missed this workout. Charley Neigo, the 160 pound champion, was excused to visit a brother in Racine, Wis. Charley, however, was back for the afternoon boxing lesson.

Workout in Toledo.

From now until Friday, when the team leaves on a special train for New York, no absences will be permitted. Every minute will be needed to have the boys in condition. The team which travels always has a disadvantage and must hasten its conditioning so that the enforced layoff of 24 hours or so will not disrupt the schedule at the conclusion of the preparations.

Only four days remain for boxing at the Illinois Athletic club. On Friday morning there will be the usual road work, and then, after an early luncheon, the team will report at the La Salle street station at 12:40 p. m. Light exercises will be the order at Toledo just before dinner. Saturday afternoon the final boxing will be ordered for all hands at the New York News gymnasium. From then on it's only a question of making weight and climbing into the Garden ring Monday evening.

Weight Will Be Easy.

Making weight is not expected to bother the Chicago boys. Henry Rothier, the lightweight champion, is the only one who may have a difficult time, for most of the others either are at weight now or within two pounds of it. Rothier does not expect to have any difficulty, but if he should, Chicago has two excellent lightweights—Danny Neenan of Chicago and Stanley Krannenberg of Grand Rapids, Mich.—ready to step into the two positions.

Chicago never has been so well fortified in all weights. In practically all eight classes any two of the three boys could be named for the bouts. Twenty-four are on the Chicago squad, but only 16 will box in New York.

Stress Light Divisions.

While the coaches realize that in a three round bout the decision may rest on one punch, and that the poorest fighter may win from the best if he is aggressive and in condition, they are stressing particularly the flyweight, bantamweight, middleweight, and lightweight divisions. In these New York appears to be stronger than Chicago.

Louis Salica, New York's 112 pound champion; John De Foe, 118 pounder; Billy Hogan, 135 pound winner, and Mark Hough, middleweight, are standouts on the Gotham squad. Al Soukup, Leo Rodak, Rothier, and Neigo, respectively, will face these boys.

This doesn't begin to tell the story of the bouts, however. Adam Smith and John Rutherford, the heavyweights, should provide a battle and it may be that their fight, the last of the series, may decide the 1932 intercity championship. To that end, Smith, a veteran of three years, is training as he never has before.

SMITTY—PRACTICAL ART!

New York Golden Glove Team Best Yet; Reserves Formidable

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 20.—Barring accident or injury in training, New York is going to put the most formidable front line of fighting men up against Chicago's Golden Gloves winners at Madison Square Garden a week from tomorrow night that it has ever had in five years of intercity competition.

There is no doubt about the caliber of the New York Golden Gloves winners at this stage of the 1932 festivities, for this year the lads who came off with first honors had to battle their way through the toughest elimination rounds amateur boxing has to offer.

All Winners Show Ability.

The eight winners in the open class just had to be the best in the Metropolitan district to get as far as they did, for the 1,600 lads who started the tournament a little over a month ago were the most proficient and sturdy in the six year history of the tournament. The standard of excellence was higher all along the line, and it is strikingly evident in the winners.

Among the Metropolitan district amateurs, those eight Golden Glove open champions are tops:

Lou Salica, flyweight; Johnny De Foe, 118 pounds; Richard Carter, 126 pounds; Billy Hogan, 135 pounds; Sammy Kanterwitz, 147 pounds; Mark Hough, 160 pounds; Walter Morris, 175 pounds, and John Rutherford, heavyweight.

24 Seek Runner-Up Positions.

Eight more will supplement them on the program of 16 bouts next Monday night. The second eight will be picked from the 24 reserves who are working out daily, each secretly hoping he's the man selected.

The reserve strength is what makes the team so formidable. In many cases the difference between the eight varsity members already sure of competing and the reserves is neglible.

Under the direction of Coaches Jack Elliott, John Gaddi, Johnny Marto, and Young Otto many a lad who was eliminated in earlier rounds of the tournament is blossoming out into a more formidable fighting man than any one suspected.

Pastor Makes Impression.

A notable example is Bob Pastor, 175 pounder. Pastor had only one fight in the tournament, that with Walter Morris, who won the 175 pound open championship. A hairline decision put Pastor out and it can be assumed that had the luck of the draw been different and Pastor not met Morris in the opening round these two would have come down to Madison Square garden as the finalists.

Pastor's daily workouts at the Daily News A. A. gym on the second floor of the News building have drawn the attention of the coaches. Bob, a student at George Washington High school, spends his evenings at the Hotel Delmonico, where the team is quartered, poring over his textbooks.

Sedgewick Harvey, clever colored featherweight, and Hugo Crowder, state welterweight champion, are others who were eliminated before the finals, only because they encountered the champions of their class in the draw.

"Firpo" Gets Attention.

The coaches have been drilling Tom Pontecorvo, giant high school lad from Jersey, who won the heavyweight subnovice Golden Gloves. Known as Firpo among his teammates, Pontecorvo is mildly reminiscent of the Wild Bull of the Pampas with his devastating clubbing right hand and his towering strength.

Grand Rapids Rolls 2,965, Leads A.B.C.

Detroit, Mich., March 20.—(AP)—Broggers Recreation of Grand Rapids, Mich., took the lead in the team division of the American Bowling Congress late tonight with a 2,965 total.

The score tops by 27 pins the 2,929 rolled by the Greenvilles of New York, who took the lead yesterday. The new leaders put together scores of 984, 998, and 974.

Lou Kauffman Five, Newark, N. J., caused the only other change among the ten leaders. After opening with a mediocre 926, the Jersey team came back with 938 and then 1,010, to take seventh place with a 2,874 total.

Billy Knox, who holds the all-events record, 2,019, shot at Milwaukee in 1923, will perform tomorrow night. The Philadelphian also holds the distinction of being one of two men to roll a 300 game in a national tournament. Charley Reinlie, Racine, Wis., is the other.

Chandler Beats Vines for 2d Time in a Month

Pasadena, Cal., March 20.—(AP)—Edward Chandler, San Francisco former intercollegiate tennis titlist, vanquished Ellsworth Vines, Pasadena, national singles champion, today in the feature event of the second annual north-south matches. The scores were 6-4, 6-8, 6-3. It was Chandler's second straight victory over Vines within a month.

SAN ANTONIO'S JUST A PUSHOVER FOR SOX, 8 TO 4

warrant, was inserted into the lineup at center field in a last minute withdrawal of Hal Anderson and proceeded to lead the Sox attack with four singles in five times at bat. Other slugging distinctions were won by Bill Cissell with two doubles, and Bruce Campbell with a triple against the center field scoreboard.

So great has been the zeal of the Fonseca forces in learning something about the batting art that they virtually have ignored the science of base running. This negligence showed up with a bang this afternoon. There were six double plays in the game. Four of these were executed by the Indians, and three of the four were due to amazingly stupid baseline activity on the part of the Sox, or maybe the coaches were sound asleep.

Jones Stands 'Em on Ears.

Sam Jones was the most effective of the three pitchers who performed. Only nine men faced Sam in the three innings he worked. The only man who reached first singled to start the third, but forthwith was sunk in a double play started with neatness and dispatch by Carey Selph.

Tommy Thomas suffered a little embarrassment in the three innings he worked. Tommy was nicked for three runs and six hits, including a double and a triple which came in succession in the sixth. Bump Hadley was reached for only one hit, but it was a triple which followed a base on balls in the eighth.

The Sox took a one run lead in the second. Blue singled and went to third on a single by Selph. Lu scored while Cissell was rolling into a double play.

Fourth Is Big Inning.

With the score tied at one all, Pitcher Joe Mallett disposed of Blue and Selph in the fourth, but Cissell came through with a double and Grube walked. Thomas singled to center, scoring Cissell and putting Grube on third. It appeared that the Indians would end the inning when Simons lifted a fly to right, but Frierson misjudged the ball, Grube scoring and Thomas stopping at second.

Hayes and Watwood followed with singles and Campbell tripled, bringing the net of the inning to six runs and six hits.

Tate scored the Sox's last run in the eighth on a two base error, an infield out and Simons' fourth single. The two teams will play Wednesday in an added entry on the original schedule.

Illinois Preps Begin Play for Title Thursday

Illinois' best eight high school basketball teams, survivors of two weeks of elimination tournaments, will make their bids for the state championship starting Thursday at the University of Illinois, Champaign.

From the Danville sectional, for the second straight year, comes Rantoul, 15 to 14, victor over Fairbury Saturday night, and from Johnston City comes Benton. Morton High of Cicero, national interscholastic champion a few years ago, will represent the Joliet section, and, by virtue of its 22 to 8 triumph over Sycamore Saturday night stands out as one of the favorites to win the state title.

Mattoon's sectional was won by Hillsboro, which defeated Monticello, 28 to 22, and Kewanee will represent the Moline section. Kewanee scored a 10 to 6 triumph over Galesburg.

Canton, a frequent entry in the state tournament, defeated Wenona, 16 to 9, at Peoria. Lawrenceville, a newcomer, defeated Collinsville, 26 to 20, to win the Salem sectional title, and Springfield walloped Beardstown, 32 to 13, to win its own sectional and earn another chance in the state tournament.

In the field are three former champions. Away back in 1914, Hillsboro won the crown, and Springfield took it in 1917. Canton won in 1928, and holds the distinction of having qualified for the state tournament more often than any team on this year's list. Canton has been in the big battle six times, Springfield has made it on three occasions, Hillsboro twice, and Benton and Rantoul twice each.

The first game of the tournament, at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, appears as one of the best of the tournament with Springfield meeting Canton. An hour later Lawrenceville and Rantoul will meet, and in the first night game Kewanee will tackle Benton. The final game of the first round brings together Hillsboro and Morton of Cicero.

DALLAS QUINTET HEADS 21 GIRLS' TOURNEY TEAMS

Shreveport, La., March 20.—(AP)—The champion Golden Cycle team from Dallas was favored among 21 entries in the Girls' National A. A. basketball tournament which will begin tomorrow.

Their laurels were threatened, however, by the undefeated Oklahoma Presbyterian collegians from Durant. The Presbyterians have twice defeated the champions this year, and also hold a victory over the Wichita, Kas., Thurstons, last year's runnerup.

KIECKHEFER AND HALL OPEN CUE SERIES TODAY

Allen Hall of Chicago will meet Augie Kieckhefer, world's champion, in the first of a twelve block 600 point three cushion billiard match at the Kieckhefer Recreation this afternoon. They will play at Kieckhefer's today, Wednesday and Friday and at Mussey's Wabash billiard room tomorrow, Thursday and Saturday.

In the world's championship tournament here Kieckhefer turned back Hall 50 to 39 in 42 innings.

Mississippi Volley Ball Title Goes to Chicago

Davenport, Ia., March 20.—[Special.]—Division Street Y. M. C. A. of Chicago won the 1932 Mississippi Valley volley ball championship in the class A division last night when it defeated Davenport in the finals. After losing the first game, 15 to 10, the Chicago team won two straight victories, 15 to 11 and 15 to 6. Chicago Y. M. C. A. won four games and lost none in the tournament while Davenport won three and lost one. Omaha was third with two victories and two defeats. Council Bluffs won class B championship when it beat Clinton, Ia., 15 to 8, 15 to 9.

Sarazen Wins Coral Gables $10,000 Open

Coral Gables, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—Dropping a short putt after missing a long one, Gene Sarazen, who already had won $6,375 this season, today won first money in the $10,000 Coral Gables Miami Biltmore 72 hole open tournament.

Sarazen scored a 73—70—75—69—287. In addition to $2,500 first prize money, he took $25 for the day's low score, a 69, one over the course record, for the last 18 holes.

A stroke behind the dapper Italian were Walter Hagen, Detroit, and Paul Runyan, metropolitan New York open champion, who carded 288.

Johnny Farrell, who led the field with 214 at 54 holes, dropped back into fourth money with a 75, four over par, for a total of 289 strokes. Ralph Guhldahl, St. Louis, took fifth money with his 290, after consistent golf throughout the tournament.

Herman Barron, Port Chester, N. Y., and Wild Bill Mehlhorn, New York, winner of the 1929 $15,000 La Gorce open, were next in the money with 292, while Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., and Harry Cooper, Chicago, finishing their round after the moon was up, had 294.

Far back in the money with a 299 was Tommy Armour, Detroit, who won this year's Miami open and who was co-winner with Ed Dudley, Detroit.

Clayton Attridge, Tampa, Fla., dropped his final putt for a 295 to tie with Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, and Ray Mangrum, New York, in the seventh money division.

REDS BLOW UP IN 9TH; LOSE TO A'S IN 13TH, 6-5

Grantham Aids Collapse; Muffs Double Play.

Tampa, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—Leading by three runs entering the ninth, the Cincinnati Reds blew up today, and lost to the Philadelphia Athletics, 6 to 5, in a 13 inning exhibition contest.

The Philadelphians won nominally on a double by Cramer and Oscar Roettger's third single. Actually the game became theirs when Roxey weakened in the ninth to allow a pass and three hits, and Grantham completed the collapse by a muff with a double play in his grasp. Outhit, the Reds gathered their lead by clever work afield. Score:

Philadelphia	0	2	0	0	0	0	1	—6	16	5
Cincinnati	0	0	2	0	0	1	0	—5	11	1

Batteries—Mahaffey, Deshong, and Madjeski, Heving; Benton, Rixey, Hilcher, and Lombardi, Manion.

LOUISVILLE BEATS SENATORS.

Biloxi, Miss., March 20.—(AP)—The Washington Senators' winning streak was interrupted here today when Rookie Pitcher Bobby Friedrich allowed the Louisville Colonels to pile up six runs in the first inning and one in the third for a total which Washington lacked one of equaling.

The Colonels got only two hits off Friedrich in the first, but he walked six men, and a bad throw to first proved costly. Score:

Washington [A.]	0	0	0	0	3	0	0	—6	2	3
Louisville [A.A.]	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	—7	10	1

Batteries—Friedrich, Griffith, Ragland and Bolton, Mapes; Penner, Williams, McLean, and Shea, Erickson.

PIRATES BEAT SEALS, 3-2

San Francisco, Cal., March 20.—(AP)—A double by Gussie Suhr, Pittsburgh first baseman, in the eighth inning gave the Pirates a 3 to 2 victory in an exhibition game here today.

The National leaguers were blanked for six innings by Henderson. Two walks, two hits and a hit batter were combined in the seventh to tie the score. Suhr's double in the eighth brought in Jensen with the winning run. Score:

Pittsburgh [N. L.]	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	—3	6	0
San Fran. [P. C. L.]	0	0	1	0	0	1	0	—2	7	2

Batteries—French and Finney; Henderson and Penebsky.

CARDS BEAT BROOKLYN, 9-8.

Clearwater, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—The world champion St. Louis Cardinals nosed out Brooklyn, 9 to 8, in an exhibition game here today.

The Cards scored six runs in the third inning after Dazzy Vance had two men out. Bottomley hit a home run with two bases filled in this frame and Pepper Martin followed with another. Jim Collins had given the champions a one run lead in the second inning with a circuit clout. Hack Wilson hit a homer with two on in the seventh inning. Score:

St. Louis [N.]	0	1	0	0	0	2	0	—9	8	1
Brooklyn [N.]	0	3	0	0	0	3	1	—8	13	3

Batteries—Derringer, Teachout, and Mancuso; Vance, Phelps, Gallivan, Day, and Picinich, Richards.

PHILS BEAT BROWNS, 4-2.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—After going scoreless eight innings the Phillies made two runs in the ninth to tie the St. Louis Browns in an exhibition game today, and in the extra inning made two more runs to win, 4 to 2.

Jimmy Level, young Browns shortstop, after having handled 10 chances without an error, faltered on a double play in the ninth inning and the Phillies overcame the two run lead of the Browns to send the game into an extra innning. In the 10th Klein, for the Phillies, walked, took second on a passed ball, Hurst sacrificed, Scarritt tripled to center field scoring Klein, and Whitney worked the squeeze play to bring in Scarritt. Score:

K. OF C. FIVES END FIRST ROUND TOURNEY PLAY

Championship Games to Begin Next Sunday.

Victories by Damen in the west division and Loyola-Hyde Park and Aquinas in the south section marked yesterday's concluding game in the preliminary round of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league. As a result, Damen tied Hennepin for first place in its section, while Loyola-Hyde Park again took the south division title, with Perez, second, and Aquinas third.

The championship round begins next Sunday at the 132d Regiment armory. Ties that still remain will be played off tonight and tomorrow night. Tonight at the West Side clubhouse, 4711 West Madison street, Damen and Hennepin will settle the west division title, and O'Connell and University will clash in the playoff for third place in the north division.

Tomorrow night at White City, Madonna and Lafayette will play off their tie for the central division championship, and San Salvalor will meet St. Philip Neri to break the second place deadlock in the south end section.

Trailing by seven points with less than three minutes to play, Damen scored four baskets—the last by Steve Barak with fifteen seconds remaining—to beat Hennepin, 21 to 20. Damen trailed all the way to the final basket, Hennepin leading at the half, 5 to 2. Jim Doody's sensational play and guarding, which held Cunningham without a point, was one of the biggest factors in the Damen victory, as well as his basket in the finishing rally.

It'll Be a Great Day for the Irish If a Setter Wins

BY BOB BECKER.

Sportsmen who are especially interested in the breeds of dogs used for upland game and waterfowl hunting will be given opportunity to look over scores of such blue blooded canines when the 31st annual dog show of the Chicago Kennel club opens Friday, March 25. The First Regiment armory at 16th street and Michigan avenue again will be the scene of this outstanding mid-western bench show. The event continues through Sunday night March 27.

Although this is an all breed show and some 800 dogs are expected to be benched, advance entries indicate that the sporting breeds will be unusually well represented this year. Last year's great climax for fanciers of sporting breeds, the choosing of an Irish setter as the best of the show, is again the goal of sport dog fanciers.

The rivalry between fanciers of beagles, setters, pointers, springer spaniels, cocker spaniels and similar breeds and those who are partial to the popular nonworking varieties of dogs has been further intensified by the fact that at the Westminster Kennel club show in New York a pointer owned by Mrs. Geraldine Rockefeller Dodge, New York, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, won best of show.

For the forthcoming Chicago show there are indications of a heavy entry in beagles, Irish setters, English setters, pointers, cockers and springers. Sportsmen also will have a chance to see some Chicago bred English Labrador retrievers [the breed that has been gradually winning high favor among hunters in the Mississippi valley] as Thomas H. Howell of Chicago will show several of his black Labradors. Moreover, Martin Hogan, the well known Irish dog expert who trains and handles the Howell Labradors, will show a pair of trained dogs under working conditions using live birds for the demonstration.

Some of the well known Edgerton, Wis., springer spaniels which a few years ago won many places in both bench shows and field trials have been entered for this show as James Menhall will bench four from his kennel.

A total of $8,000 in cash, medals, trophies, and merchandise goes to the owners of winning dogs in this Chicago classic. Competition reaches the climax Sunday night, when the best dog in the show is picked. The selection is made from the winners of each of six groups and the winner takes the John C. Eastman In Memoriam trophy valued at $1,000.

This was a rhythmic sing-song thrift jingle of the good old '70s:

There was an old soldier who had a wooden leg,
When he had no tobacco, why tobacco he would beg.
There was an old sailor as sly as a fox,
Who always had tobacco in his old tobacco box.
Said the soldier to the sailor, "O, give me a chew."
Said the sailor to the soldier, "I'll be darned if I do.
If you'd saved up your money and saved up your rocks,
You'd always have tobacco in your old tobacco box."

Ray Tramblie and Kilbourne to Sign Today

Ray Tramblie, Chicago middleweight, returns today from West Palm Beach, Fla., where he engaged in several matches, to sign for a 10 round combat with Jack Kilbourne, champion of Australia, at White City next Monday night. Tramblie's best accomplishment at West Palm Beach was a three round knockout of Clyde Chastain. Mique Malloy, White City promoter, has recuperated from a slight illness and will arrange supporting bouts today.

Nick Scialaba, intercity and international Golden Gloves champion last year, has entered the Olympic ring trials and Central A. A. U. championships at Loyola university gymnasium April 5 to 8. This is the first time Scialaba ever has sought a place on a United States Olympic team. He is entered in the featherweight division. The eight winners of the Wisconsin, Illinois and Minnesota tournament at Loyola will go to New York to compete for the national championship and places on the Olympic team.

Leo Salkin, manager of the Oriental theater, is back in the fight game for the first time since 1917, when he managed Pete Herman to the bantamweight championship against Kid Williams. He has agreed to manage Larry Johnson, who was a leading heavyweight a year ago. Johnson is under managerial contract to Jack [West Side] O'Keefe until September. Larry will arrange his own matches and give O'Keefe his percentage of the purses until the contract is up.

CRAWFORD WINS OUTBOARD TITLE AT MIAMI BEACH

Miami Beach, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—In a race that saw six drivers disqualified for beating the starter's gun, William Crawford Jr. of New York and Miami, won the Colonel E. H. R. Green trophy and the unlimited outboard motorboat championship of America here today.

Crawford's first place in the third heat, won with a speed of 38.516 miles an hour, gave him 400 points and brought his total for the two day competition to 969. He won the first heat yesterday and finished eighth in the second.

Charles H. Harrison of London, England, champion of Great Britain, was among the six disqualified. Harrison stood second in the score for the trophy, with 722 points piled up Saturday as he finished second in both heats. He was leading by 99 points as he went out for today's race.

G. P. Ellsworth of Durham, N. C., who finished second today, placed third for the trophy with 653 points. Clarence Collins of Troy, N. Y., winner of yesterday's second heat, stood fourth with 625 points.

Travis Chestnut of Jacksonville, Fla., was fifth with 613 points.

Besides Harrison, the drivers disqualified were Horace Tennes of Chicago, H. H. Libby of Kansas City, Tommy Estlick of Waukegan, Ill., and Cal Leeth of Cullman, Ala.

JARECKI'S SON MADE OFFICER ON BOND COMMITTEE

Is Composed Entirely of Bondholders.

BY AL CHASE.

George W. Dixon Jr. and John Jarecki, son of Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, both senior law students at Northwestern university, have been appointed secretary and assistant secretary respectively of one of Chicago's first bondholders' protective committees composed entirely of actual owners of bonds. This unique body representing the Glenwin apartment property, at the southwest corner of Winthrop and Glenlake avenues, is acting without charge and, according to Mr. Jarecki, hopes to save the expense of foreclosure proceedings.

There are 200 bondholders and the new committee has a complete list of them, which, of course, will accelerate their reorganization proceedings. A massmeeting of these bondholders will be held shortly to discuss reorganization plans and to get the approval of those present.

Whether the reorganization sailing will be entirely smooth remains to be seen, for the committee for the protection of holders of first mortgage bonds sold through H. O. Stone & Co. already has announced that it is acting for the bondholders and has sent out a letter asking for the deposit of bonds with the Chicago Title and Trust company.

Ask for Proxies.

Mr. Dixon Jr., secretary of the independent bondholders' committee, states that he believes the official H. O. Stone & Co. committee will work harmoniously with the independents. Meanwhile the latter is requesting the bondholders to retain their bonds and to give the committee a proxy with power to control the trustee, which is the Chicago Title & Trust company.

The independent bondholders committee is composed of George C. Erickson, chairman, of 130 North Wells street; Horace W. Boyd, Hamilton club; M. J. Vanderheyden, 206 South La Salle street, and John Kobos, 8156 Kingston avenue. Prof. J. W. Brabner-Smith, of Northwestern university, is attorney for the committee.

"The H. O. Stone committee was called for a deposit of these bonds as a matter of course," said Mr. Erickson, "but I'm sure they'll coöperate with us if any bonds are deposited with them. They're not bondholders themselves, but they've offered to protect those bond issues whose holders are unwilling to protect themselves, and, of course, must charge for their services."

Second Mortgagee in Control.

Mr. Jarecki stated that so many proxies have been sent in that a majority of bonds will soon be held by the independent bondholders' committee.

The Glenwin was built in 1925 and contains seventy-six suites of one, two, and three rooms. It was financed by a $250,000 H. O. Stone & Co. 6½% bond issue, since reduced to $216,000. It is about 90% rented.

The situation is more complex than usual on account of a second mortgage. This originally was $75,000. When the final $37,000 came due the owner defaulted, foreclosure proceedings were started, and a receiver appointed. Later, by agreement, the Roosevelt Finance company, second mortgagee, took, and still has possession. Hyman Phillips purchased the equity from Harry Zisook and Joseph Rosenberg some time ago, and is still the owner.

W. T. GRANT CO. REPORTS PROFITS FOR YEAR 1931

This compares with net income of $3,249,174, or $2.80 per share, in the preceding year. With the exception of 1930 earnings were the greatest in the company's history.

Sales for 1931 were $75,679,293, against $71,376,487 in the previous year, a gain of 6 per cent.

Fifty-four new stores were opened during the year, making 404 in operation on Jan. 31, 1932.

The balance sheet shows the company to have ended the year in the strongest financial condition in its history. Cash stood at $4,915,894, compared with current liabilities of $1,590,439. Current assets totaled $13,452,069, giving a working capital of $11,861,630, compared with $10,728,532 at the end of the previous year. Surplus increased $1,826,608 and stood at $14,688,722 at the end of the year.

In his remarks to stockholders, W. T. Grant, chairman, said:

"Expansion of the company will continue during 1932. Leases have already been signed calling for possession during 1932 of thirty-four new stores in sixteen states."

PRICES OF GRAIN END WEEK WITH BIG SHRINKAGE

Farm Board Wheat Seen Trade Drag.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Figured on the closing prices for the May deliveries of wheat, corn, oats, and rye on March 12, the farm reserves of the four grains as on March 1 had an aggregate value of $653,000,000.

As the result of the adverse action taken by the house on the prohibition question and the announcement regarding the contemplated sales of farm board wheat, that aggregate value at the market's lowest on March 19 shrunk to $596,000,000.

Liquidation, demoralization, too much farm board, and an absence of general speculative buying made one of the most unsatisfactory weeks the grain traders ever have experienced. The largest operators express themselves as either bearish and out of the market or simply trading in a limited way. They see nothing in the present situation to induce buying in expectation of getting an immediate rise in prices, despite the fact that prices are down close to 50c for wheat and at new low levels on some of the other grains, particularly corn.

Sets Market Record.

There are no traders in the market who have ever experienced such an unsatisfactory situation as that of the past week. At the close wheat prices were off 5⅞@6¾c; corn, 2¾@3c; oats, 2c, and rye 4½@4¾c as compared with the previous week. May wheat in Winnipeg closed at a loss of 8¼c and Liverpool 3c.

Conflicting reports regarding the federal farm board's efforts to unload 150,000,000 bu of cash wheat on foreign countries, presumably on credit, stirred up all importing countries of Europe and depressed their prices. Grain men said the confusing reports sent out from Washington relative to the farm board's attitude demoralized the trade. It is not believed that the farm board will be able to sell all its wheat holdings to China and other far eastern countries, as announced at the market's close, instead of to Europe on credit as previously planned. Selling wheat abroad on credit is criticized by exporters as poor business. Their impression is that the United States might just as well give the wheat away.

That there must be some disposition of the farm board's wheat within the near future is generally conceded by the entire wheat trade.

The traders expect the government will suffer heavy losses. They say it is up to farm board officials and the politicians at Washington to clarify the situation, if it is possible to restore confidence.

New Harvest 90 Days Off.

One of the largest exporters in the trade said that had the farm board officials given the regular export trade an opportunity to sell the government held wheat abroad that work might have been accomplished without demoralizing the market. He cited the sale of 15,000,000 bushels by regular exporters about six months ago, without disturbing the general trade. Had the same interest been taken into the confidence of the farm board officials and given its holdings to sell, the wheat might have been disposed of as easily then as previously.

One of the reasons for the disposition of the farm board holdings is that the new harvest of winter wheat is only 90 days away. That it is expected to be materially smaller than last year, and decidedly larger of spring. Storage space for the new wheat will be necessary.

It is said that should the farm board wheat be disposed of abroad millers would have to go to the farmers and other sources to get supplies. That should result in a clarifying of the general situation. That there will be a big carryover on July 1 is certain.

Closing prices in Chicago on Saturday were close to the lowest of the season. Further declines would cause no surprise. March finished at 51½c; May, 54⅜@54¼c; July, 56⅛@56c, and September, 58⅛@58c. Prices follow:

Low Prices for Corn.

A bearish feeling prevails in corn and prices are down to around the lowest of the year, with new low levels established on several deliveries on Saturday. Prices are so low that they suggest around 20c for the Illinois farmer, while in other sections they are irregular, depending upon the size of the supply and the feeding demand. The corn farmer is considered the real farmer as he has to be on the job the year round, and 20c for No. 2 yellow corn in Illinois is considered too low. However, there is an inadequate speculative and consumptive demand to change the situation at present.

Closing trades on March were at 34c, May, 36¾c, July, 39⅝@39½c, and September 40⅝@40¾c.

U. S. Issues Bright Spot of Bond Mart

New York, March 20.—(AP)—The bond market, as far as corporate securities were concerned, had a mild case of the shivers during the last week. The averages suffered accordingly.

The one bright spot was the United States government list. That paid little attention to the declining trend of general mortgages. Both Liberties and treasuries held firmly around their high levels for the year. In addition to bank buying of the federals, which amounted to some $25,000,000, there was a quiet but steady demand on the part of smaller investors.

Railroad Showing Less Good.

The railroads, as a whole, made the poorest showing of the week, a number of the lower priced carrier lines giving up most of their previous substantial gains. The attack on the rails began with the Missouri Pacific mortgages. Reports that bankers and the Reconstruction Finance corporation were at odds on the payment of Missouri Pacific notes falling due April 1, caused these issues to sag almost daily. Liens of other roads joined in the sliding movement.

Prices in the transportation section tried to do a right about face Saturday, however, after President Hoover's statement on the railway loan situation had been published. It was indicated that April maturities would be paid and that the Missouri Pacific notes would be extended. A few of the hard pressed carriers regained minor portions of their previous losses, but the majority could not hold recoveries.

Industrials Also Suffer.

The utilities and industrials were dispirited most of the week. Bonds of the Kreuger companies slumped sharply following the suicide of the Swedish financier in Paris. International Telephone and International Match loans sagged. Some of the power and light company bonds were firm.

Foreign obligations were generally mixed. Scandinavians were extremely heavy at one time, but they recovered later. The Argentines, for no apparent reason, dropped precipitately, recovered somewhat, and then eased again.

NIAGARA HUDSON SHOWS $13,409,865 INCOME FOR 1931

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 20.—The Niagara Hudson Power corporation in 1931 was again the largest seller of electric energy in the world, with a total of 5,159,069,101 kilowatt hours, compared with 6,153,430,568 sold in 1930, a decline of 16.2 per cent. Gas sales of the system totaled 8,397,812,100 cubic feet in 1931, against 8,608,061,000 in 1930, a drop of 2.4 per cent.

Operating revenues of the company and subsidiaries in 1931 amounted to $77,449,121, compared with $78,833,540 in 1930, a decline of 1.77 per cent; operating expenses $26,487,430, against $28,001,694, a decline of 5.4 per cent; depreciation $4,544,140, against $4,753,010. and taxes $10,024,869, against $10,070,864. Operating income was $36,392,682, against $36,008,763, and total income, including other income, was $37,507,221, contrasted with $37,513,235.

Net income after all charges, subsidiary preferred dividends and minority interests was $13,409,865, equal to 51 cents a share on the common stock, compared with $15,558,345, or 60 cents a share, earned in 1930.

LIBBEY-OWENS GLASS REPORTS $1,098,195 LOSS

The annual report of the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company reflects a considerable writedown of assets as well as unfavorable operating results for 1931. The company last year changed its fiscal year to correspond with the calendar year. For the 12 months ended Dec. 31, 1931, the company had a loss of $1,098,195, which included $290,000 as provision for possible loss on claims against banks in liquidation and $73,953 writedown on government and federal land bank bonds.

The previous fiscal period of the company ended Sept. 30, 1930, and during the last three months of that year the company incurred a loss of $601,918. This loss, coupled with that in 1931 and adjustments, reduced earned surplus from $7,040,588 to $5,289,550. In addition the company had capital surplus of $16,345,516. Last year the company made various charge-offs totaling $13,033,165, which reduced paid-in surplus to $3,312,351. Combined surplus as of Dec. 31, 1931, was $8,601,902. The balance sheet as of the end of 1931 shows current assets of $7,316,397, current liabilities of $901,038 and total assets and liabilities of $34,627,588. There are 2,335,342 shares outstanding.

British Steel Production Shows Gain in February

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 20.—Steel output in Great Britain during February was 480,600 tons, an increase over January, when production was 429,700, and not far below the February output of a year ago, which was 486,400. The monthly average of 1931 was only 431,500. Iron output last month was 318,100 as against 330,000 in January and 318,200 a year ago. The monthly average of 1931 for iron production was 313,200. Furnaces working at the end of February were 71, being a decrease of 5 for the month.

UNITED AIRCRAFT 1931 INCOME IS $2,907,548; SHARE EARNING $1.04

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 20.—The United Aircraft and Transport corporation, rated as the largest unit in the aviation industry, reported yesterday a net income for 1931 of $2,907,548, equivalent after preferred dividends to $1.04 a share on the average number of shares outstanding during the year. This compares with a net income of $3,302,207 in 1930, equivalent to $1.25 a share on the average number of shares.

Operating revenues and sales of aeronautical equipment amounted to $27,752,658 in 1931, against $29,989,836 in 1930.

In his report to stockholders F. B. Rentschler, president, said the company's liquid position improved substantially last year.

"Cash, United States treasury and Liberty bonds and other readily marketable securities amount to $17,791,256," Mr. Rentschler said. "Total current assets, including accounts receivable at $3,249,463 and inventories at $3,964,016, aggregate $25,005,006, compared with current liabilities of $1,642,516. During the year merchandise inventories were reduced from $6,407,445 to $3,964,016, a reduction of $2,443,424. Part of this reduction, $423,419, was a special writedown of certain planes and parts carried over from prior years that were found not to be marketable at the prices at which they were inventoried a year ago. These planes were built on orders received in 1929, but the delivery of which was not insisted upon for what were believed to be good business reasons."

MONTREAL, Que., March 20.—The Montreal stock brokerage house of McDougall & Gowans will reopen for business tomorrow morning. The resumption of business marks the consummation of an arrangement whereby future profits will be devoted mainly to the meeting the firm's liabilities.

PHELPS DODGE SHOWS COPPER TRADE DECLINE

Reports Big Deficit After Dividends.

New York, March 20.—(AP)—The Phelps Dodge corporation, first of the leading copper producers to report for 1931, shows a net loss of $983,903, before depletion, as against a profit of $515,173 for 1930.

After a charge of $4,068,898 for depletion of properties, and dividends of $2,131,420, the corporation showed a deficit to surplus of $7,188,798. This was substantially smaller than the deficit of $12,192,634 incurred in 1930, when dividends paid were substantially larger, totaling $5,911,342, and there was a larger charge for depletion, amounting to $6,796,465.

The balance sheet showed that this company, third largest American copper producer, had maintained a strong financial position. Current assets totaled $39,578,492, against current liabilities of $12,433,214. Cash on hand amounted to $7,206,629.

Must Sell Present Stocks.

A "return to normalcy and profitable operation must await the liquidation of present stocks and an increased demand for copper which will come with increased business," President Lewis S. Cates said in his report to stockholders.

While pointing out that conditions grew steadily worse during the last year, he stated "We have complete faith in the ultimate recovery of the copper industry," but he could see but "few indications of marked improvement in the immediate future.

"Since the beginning of 1932," he continued, "there has been a general curtailment of production by the industry and at present the mines of the Phelps Dodge corporation are operating at about 26 per cent of capacity. The demand for copper in both domestic and foreign markets has continued small and the price of the metal has dropped to an all time low of 5¾ cents. It appears probable that further curtailment of production will be necessary."

Subject for Conference.

The recent conference of international producers in New York tentatively agreed to reduce production to around 20 per cent of capacity. This further curtailment, however, was said to be dependent upon the coöperation of independent producers.

The annual report for 1931 of the United Aircraft and Transport corporation shows net income of $2,187,548, equivalent to $1.04 per share on the common stock. This is comparable with $3,302,207, or $1.24 a share, in 1930.

The company's operating revenue and sales for the year totaled $27,752,638 against $29,989,836 in the previous year. Total current assets at the end of 1931 totaled $25,005,006, of which $17,791,526 was in cash and marketable securities. Current liabilities aggregated $1,642,516.

U. S. Losing Trade of Baltic Nations; Barter Days Return

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLINN, Estonia, March 20.—American industries which have developed a profitable market for their products in the nations of northern and northeastern Europe are being barred from doing business in these countries by import contingents and restrictions on currency remittances abroad, according to a survey made in this territory by THE TRIBUNE.

Local business men report that trade has returned to the barter principle of the middle ages, with all countries directing their efforts to force exports and cut imports.

The most significant recent development is that the foreign offices of the Baltic countries are converting their diplomats into business men and the entire principle of trade agreements is being overturned in measures enacted by these states to save their currencies.

America Being Ignored.

America, which has until now enjoyed a most favored nation clause in trade agreements, is being ignored by committees appointed by Baltic governments to control trade. They are instead giving their orders to countries which promise to buy goods in return.

Northern Europe's complicated system of trade agreements has been nullified and committees of business men accompanied by diplomats with credentials from their foreign offices have begun to visit neighboring capitals to close contracts dealing with the delivery and purchase of each other's products.

Indications that trade in northern Europe will be governed by such international agreements instead of by out of date trade treaties are confirmed by Estonia's action in sending diplomats to Finland to negotiate the sale of 5,000,000 quarts of vodka. It was agreed to purchase Finnish porcelain and other manufactures in exchange.

There arrived at Tallinn today a delegation of Polish diplomats and business men who hope to sell Estonia kerosene and fat products in exchange for purchases of fish, paper, and shoes. The Poles, who stopped at Riga, Latvia, reported their negotiations with the Letts for a similar exchange of goods successful.

Awake to the fact that their trade agreements with these countries are being nullified, France and Germany have instructed their diplomats to close agreements with Baltic foreign offices concerning future exchange of both raw materials and manufactures.

Obstacles to Face.

Discussing the obstacles facing American concerns wishing to continue business in this territory, Baltic business men offered a suggestion which they say, while uneconomic, is still practical.

"America has thus far succeeded in obtaining a considerable portion of Baltic trade because of its wonderful selling organizations and the quality of its goods," said one. "As long as our countries maintained open door trade agreements we were glad to buy from America. Today the doors are closed and are being bolted by an increasing number of international agreements regulating the exchange of goods.

"The only possibility for American firms to regain an entry into our markets is that they organize a section of their sales departments to buy our products. We realize that while this suggestion is against the rules of economics, still the present situation in international trade is growing more chaotic and in order to buy we must have assistance in marketing our products."

KREUGER & TOLL FUTURE RESTS ON RESOURCE AUDIT

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 20.—(AP)—The body of the international financier, Ivan Kreuger, who killed himself in Paris two weeks ago, arrived here today and funeral services will be held on Tuesday. Only the family, a few business friends, and the press will attend final rites for the man who built a vast fortune out of a small match company.

Meanwhile, it was learned the future of Kreuger & Toll, the financier's operating company, will be dependent on an examination of its resources and liabilities now under way. The firm's short term credits with Swedish banks were estimated at 125,000,000 kronen [$23,750,000], which in the main has been rediscounted with the riksbank.

Similar credits with foreign banks and bankers amounted to about 175,000,000 kronen [$34,500,000]. The nature of securities for the foreign credits was not immediately determined.

EUROPE OFFERS BETTER TRADE REVIVAL SIGNS

U. S. Morale Higher; Recall '93 Crisis.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 20.—The drift of events last week seemed to cause frequent putting of the questions whether the financial situation has improved? Has it actually grown worse? Is it unchanged?

That part of the economic picture which is made up purely of developments in trade and industry cannot be said to have improved. When judged by steel production and railway freight traffic it is worse than it was a month ago.

As against those unfavorable signs there reasonably should be set the facts that the decline in staple prices has been checked, that bank failures have at the moment all but ceased and that hoarded money is pouring back into the markets.

Prices Nearer Stability.

Average prices have hardly varied since the end of January. Although they are no lower, they have shown little sign of definite recovery; yet the 4 per cent decline of the government's average since September makes at all events pleasant comparison with the 11½ per cent reduction in the same months a year ago.

The improving bank position may result largely from the Reconstruction corporation's activities. The Washington estimate of $100,000,000 hoarded cash released within six weeks possibly may be excessive. That the change in both regards has been important, however, there is no doubt whatever. It might be described as negative testimony, but, after all, a halt in the unfavorable movement would in any case have to come before tangible recovery.

Morale Seems Better.

In what may be called the recovery of stability and regaining of financial morale—no one is likely to deny that the change has been considerable. Nobody is yet able to say confidently how much of our continued financial and industrial reaction since the middle of 1931 was a consequence not of American home affairs but of the very disturbing shape which the outbreak of European panic assumed.

It is, therefore, a matter of real significance that th slow recovery of mental balance in our own financial community should have been supplemented as emphatically as it has been during the two or three last weeks by evidence of returning equilibrium in Europe, marked by the progressive lowering of nearly all European bank rates—notably in London.

There the idea of a "world break-

STEEL DECLINE REFLECTS LACK OF AUTO ORDERS

Price of Copper Steady in Quiet Market.

New York, March 20.—(AP)—Failure of automobile manufacturers to place substantial orders for steel has been reflected in a decline in ingot production of about 2 points to 25 per cent of capacity during the last week.

Decreased orders received by sheet, tin plate and other mills have more than offset slight increases in specifications for rails and structural shapes. Mills are still firm on their price ideas, however, and additional announcements have been made for advanced quotations, including bars, strips and sheets, effective in the second quarter. Buying of pig iron is moderately active at unchanged prices.

Copper Holds Steady.

Copper held steady in a quiet market, with export business early in the week hampered by nervousness in European financial circles, but slight improvement in demand from that quarter developed later. Consumers took small lots for the domestic trade at 6c for electrolytic, delivered, in the Connecticut valley. Prospects for reduced production are said to have created a little more confidence.

Better demand for tin in nearby positions developed as the market declined in sympathy with London. Recent buying is said to have reduced local stocks and importers are not pressing the market. Consumers still hesitate to pay the premiums asked for future shipments.

Lead Prices Ease.

Lead prices eased after moderately active buying tapered off, but the lower quotations failed to stimulate additional demand, owing partly to further increases in domestic stocks during February, although at a reduced rate. There is some expectation that low prices may force curtailment.

Zinc was dull, with small buying by the trade showing further slight contraction. Smelters, however, maintained quotations at unchanged levels, owing to the balanced statistical position of the industry and steadiness of the ore market.

With little or no interest in antimony, the market was dull at unchanged and nominal quotations. While imports from China decreased last month, stocks in that country are said to be increasing.

Shows a Gain.

Cleveland, O., March 20.—(AP)—Structural steel bookings amounted to 20,311 tons last week, the second highest this year, the magazine Steel announced today. Despite this gain, however, the industry fell off a half point to 24½ per cent of normal, and that in what is normally the highest production quarter of the year.

Although Ford has released orders for parts for the new Ford models, his tonnage specifications for finished steel still are withheld, the magazine said.

In the period of waiting, the steel industry is downcast, the survey said. Output of steel ingots for the first quarter was estimated at 4,500,000 tons, approximately 43 per cent below the corresponding period of 1931.

New higher price levels announced by the steel industry continue to be asking prices, as the magazine found a disposition to make concessions on occasional attractive requirements. Minor adjustments put the iron and steel composite up 2 cents last week to $29.57, the finished steel composite up 10 cents to $47.02. The steelworks scrap composite remained $7.93.

Pig Iron Business Emits No Squeals of Great Joy

Reports from practically all of the important pig iron markets of the country sound the same note, namely, that business continues to run at a very low level. In the middle western territory it appears that shipments are at a slightly better rate than in February.

Expect Denatured Alcohol Prices Will Be Adjusted

It is expected that the schedule of prices on denatured alcohol for the second quarter will be slightly changed because of the readjustment in freight rates. Except for this factor the quotations will be unchanged, dealers report.

Bright Spots in the Day's News

Officials of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad announced yesterday one thousand shopmen will return to work tomorrow at Parsons, Kas., Sedalia, Mo., and Denison and Waco, Tex., probably for a period of ten days. The shops have been closed since early in December.

For the week ended March 12 the Associated Gas and Electric system report shows gas output of 397,891,600 cubic feet, an increase of 10,629,200 cubic feet, or 27.1 per cent above the corresponding week last year. This is the highest gas output since the week of Feb. 7, 1931. Electric output, excluding sales to other utilities, totaled 49,167,168 kilowatt hours, a decrease of 7.1 per cent from the same week of 1931.

The cotton spinning industry was reported by the census bureau to have operated during February at 92.5 per cent capacity on a single shift basis, compared with 84.5 per cent during January this year and 87.2 per cent during February last year.

Only ten banks failed throughout the country in the past week and five others reopened, according to the American Banker, trade publication. Failures so far in March are only twenty-four, the lowest rate in several years, compared with 500 closing in the first two months of this year. Failures since the start of the year tied up $233,390,000 in deposits.

Export sales of copper have been made in somewhat better volume lately, although consumers continue to take metal only to meet their small current needs. Domestic consumers are said to be showing very little interest in the market, but sentiment in the trade seems more favorable as a result of the recent output curtailment agreement.

BUSINESS PUTS STRONGER FIGHT INTO ITS WORK

Several Lines Curb Profitless Activity.

New York, March 20.—(AP)—Business was unable to score any noteworthy gains during the last week, but it did put up a scrappier front.

The steel people refused to lower their prices still further; the copper industry showed greater firmness in declining endlessly to produce more metal for which there is a stagnant market.

The oil industry got along a little further on its program of curtailing production; the textile industry showed itself weary of working at unprofitable prices. Dairy products business showed new evidence that both farmers and distributors were beginning to insist upon a moderately wider profit margin.

Fear Anti-Trust Law.

In all of these industries, the leading executives were obliged to keep a discreet silence on the matter of prices, out of fear, they explained privately, of running afoul of the Sherman anti-trust law. Regardless of this fear, however, they said there was distinct evidence that producers were beginning to give more study to the question of price. Many executives have contended that stabilization of commodity and manufactured prices around present levels, although many are at historic low levels, would turn the whole tide of general business. Buyers, they explained, always hesitate to place orders in a declining market, but once it shows stability they step forward more confidently.

Buying Power Improves.

Potential buying power, long deferred, was reported in practically all lines—from the heavy work of manufacturing and selling locomotives to the lighter work of making and marketing hair nets.

The steel industry recorded a further decline in production, depressing the rate for the industry to about 25 per cent of capacity. A faintly perceptible increase was reported in structural business, but there was no pickup in automobile steel buying or other important lines.

The motor industry produced 800 units less than the week before, Cram's report showed, but yesterday a new ray of hope was thrown on the picture when it was announced that the new Ford cars would make their formal public appearance on April 9. Not only Ford dealers, but those interested in all other makes of cars, have been waiting for Ford production to get under way. Public appearance of the new Ford cars, it was said, might stimulate sales generally.

DUTCH DEFEAT PLAN TO RESTRICT RUBBER OUTPUT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 20.—Javanese and Sumatran natives in the Dutch East Indies who cultivate rubber trees in the same haphazard way that they raise chickens have defeated the protracted international negotiations to control the world's rubber output. This was learned in London tonight following a statement that Anglo-Dutch discussions had been abandoned.

The conferences had been going on for four months between representatives of the two governments and leaders of the rubber industries of both countries. They failed because the vast stretches of rubber producing areas of the Dutch East Indies had not even been surveyed. The control table put out by the natives wrecked the scheme to reduce and regulate production and the second world quota system failed due to the Dutch. A similar American attempt to control sugar production flopped due to the refusal of Dutch manufacturers in Java to join.

The statement was issued late last night to avoid upsetting the market. At present there is a year's supply of rubber. Much of this stock is held by the United States. It is over and above what will be produced this year.

Current Bond Offerings Include Municipals

Current bond offerings of dealers include several municipal issues, including $2,000,000 Louisville, Ky., 4½ per cent sewer bonds at a price to yield 4.40 per cent, by N. W. Harris Company, Inc.; $250,000 Meriden, Conn., 4¾s, to yield 4.75 to 4.40 per cent, by R. W. Pressprich & Co.; and $298,000 Hackensack, N. J., 6s, by M. F. Schlater & Co.

CHICAGO WHOLESALERS ADJUST ACTIVITIES CLOSER FOR PROFITS

A closer adjustment of profits than a year ago in the wholesale and retail business and an outlook for improvement as the season advances characterized the last week in Chicago, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Retailers in the loop reported business about the same as last year. A conservative feeling was noticeable in all lines of merchandise which suggested a disposition to keep purchases closely adjusted to consumer requirements.
